St. Hilaire Fire and Rescue personnel practiced skills learned at recent first responder training. Students in this 40-hour course learned patient assessment and basic life support techniques, including shock management, CPR and automated defibrillation. St. Hilaire and the surrounding townships are now served by 10 personnel trained at the first responder level or higher. Proceeds from a spaghetti dinner fundraiser on April 2 from 4 to 8 p.m. at the St. Hilaire Activity Center will go toward funding St. Hilaire Fire and Rescue. (Submitted photo)

Logan Swanson competes at Indianapolis motocross race

A dream came true for eight-year-old Logan Swanson, a Thief River Falls motocross racer, when he was invited to participate in the KTM Junior Supercross Challenge (KJSC) at the RCA dome in Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 12.

A week earlier, Swanson was contacted by a KTM representative and asked to ride for them at this Pro Supercross race. At each round of the Supercross series, 15 riders from around the country are chosen to participate in what has been called one of the most successful youth motorcycling events to date. Open to experienced riders age 7 and 8, the KJSC allows youngsters to ride on the same Supercross tracks as the pros, but on identically prepared KTM sportminicycles. KTM provided his race bike and all of his gear. Logan just had to accept the invitation and show up at the RCA dome ready to race.

After two separate practice sessions held during the day, the final race took place at 8 p.m. in front of 53,000 people. Logan finished in fifth place in this exciting event.

According to his mother, Karla, one of the most memorable moments for Logan was a [illegible]-minute autograph session. Logan, she said, tried to sign his name in cursive, which he is just learning in second grade, but gave that up after the first few autographs because it was taking too long and the line was [illegible]

Logan will begin his fourth season of racing this summer. He is the son of Jim and Karla Swanson of Thief River Falls.

The Thief River Falls Dental Association (TRFDA) in conjunction with Crest donated spin toothbrushes to the students in kindergarten through fifth grade at Challenger Elementary School. About 830 toothbrushes were donated. TRFDA Representatives Muriel Olson (far right), a registered dental assistant and Val Hutton as Mary Molar, recently spent two days at the school and visited with kindergarten and first grade children about oral health. The children learned about visiting the dentist for the first time, the proper way to brush their teeth and the appropriate snack foods to eat. Hutton and Olson are pictured with Carol Schmitz's first grade class. (Submitted photo)

Nordics win Section 8A basketball title

■ 78-60 victory over Clearbrook-Gonvick sends MCC to state tournament for first time

Career 1,000-point scorers Dustin Monsebroten and Jay Maurstad are the undisputed leaders of the Marshall County Central boys high school basketball team. They form the best backcourt in northwestern Minnesota, according to their head coach Jake Rantanen. In fact, that territorial range of superiority might very well expand well beyond this corner of the state. However, the Newfolden school is headed to the state tournament because of the inside play by Andrew Johnson and Tyler Blazejewski Friday as the Nordics stunned unbeaten, No. 1-ranked Clearbrook-Gonvick 78-60 in the 2005 Section 8A tournament championship game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

The 6-5 Johnson turned in an eye-opening 22-point, 12-rebound double-double that also included five blocked shots. The 6-2 Blazejewski was no less impressive with a 14-point, 9-rebound game. Add quality minutes off the bench by 6-1 Nick Haven, and the Nordics had a presence around the basket that dominated the smaller Bears

That's not to say the Marshall County Central guards didn't measure up. Monsebroten, the school career scoring leader, had a 21-point, 10-rebound double-double and Maurstad scored 14 points.

The usually high-scoring Bears could counter with only 11-point games from Chance Goudge and Clayton Johnson. They were outrebounded 38-19 and struggled through a 37 percent 23-for-62 shooting performance from the field, compared to a 70 percent 30-for-43 showing by the Nordics - a figure that included 10-for-13 shooting by Johnson, 7-for-10 by Blazejewski and 2-for-2 by Haven.

"We dominated inside," confirmed Rantanen. "Andrew and Tyler had great games."

Marshall County Central never trailed. The Nordics hit their first five shots and had a 13-2 lead 3:11 into the game. Clearbrook-Gonvick cut the difference to 19-13 by the end of the first quarter, but Monsebroten came up with a steal and fast break lay-up, then Maurstad converted another Bears turnover into a another fast break bucket as the difference shot back to 23-13 with just 38 seconds gone in the second quarter.

Biggest challenge of the night from Clearbrook-Gonvick produced a charge that pulled the Bears within 27-25 on a 3-pointer by Clayton Johnson with 3:33 left in the first half. But Marshall County Central had an answer: a 9-2 finish to the quarter that began with back-to-back baskets underneath by Haven, a bucket on the inside by Andrew Johnson, and after a drive by the Bears' Clayton Johnson, Blazejewski scored off a rebound and Maurstad added a free throw for a 36-27 difference at intermission.

The Bears were never able to make another run. A team that had rallied from a 15-point first half deficit and trailed by 11 through three quarters before beating Grygla-Gatzke 92-80 in overtime to win the Section 8A East title, couldn't duplicated that kind of magic a second time in four days. Marshall County Central took a 52-40 lead into the final quarter and won going away.

While the fast start certainly was pivotal, it was the Nordics' finishing kick that most impressed Rantanen. "I was so proud of how hard the kids worked down the stretch," he said. "Clearbrook-Gonvick is a great team, and we knew they would make a run at us. But the kids did a gut-check and found a way to finish it in the fourth quarter."

Marshall County Central made its way through the Section 8A West bracket with defense, winning low-scoring games over Kittson County North 44-40, Norman County West 38-32 and Tri-County 48-34. This time it was the offense that took the spotlight. "We finally got someone to play man-to-man against us," offered Rantanen. "We've got the two best guards in the section and they did a great job not only scoring, but getting the ball to other people."

After a quiet 1-for-2 first half at the free throw line, Marshall County Central finished with a 16-for-30 figure at the foul line. That's a lot of misses, but the volume of shots made a difference. Clearbrook-Gonvick had a 6-for-8 free throw game. The Nordics got by with 19 turnovers. The Bears turned it over 12 times.

The win put the Nordics at 21-8. The Bears finished 28-1.

MCC making first state appearance

Marshall County Central will be one of eight teams making their first-ever appearance when the 2005 Minnesota boys state high school basketball tournament starts today (Wednesday) in Minneapolis

The Section 8A champion Nordics will take on Section 2A winner Sleepy Eye St. Mary's in a 6 p.m. Class A quarterfinal game at Williams Arena on the University of Minnesota Campus.

A win means a spot in the 3 p.m. Friday semifinals at the Target Center against either Mountain Iron-Buhl or Russell-Tyler-Ruthton. A first-day loss ends the season; there is no state tournament consolation bracket.

Marshall County Central and Battle Lake are first-time state tournament entries in Class A. Others making their state tournament debut are Rockford, Chatfield and Moose Lake/Willow River in Class AA; Andover in Class AAA; along with Eastview and Champlin Park in Class AAAA.

This is the ninth year of the four-class state format, and the second with all games being played in Minneapolis. Quarterfinal games will be played at Target Center, Williams Arena and the University of Minnesota Sports Pavilion. Semifinals and championship games will all be played at Target Center. Third place games will be played at Concordia University in St. Paul.

Marshall County Central began post-season as the No. 3 seed in the Section 8A West bracket. The Nordics beat No. 6 seed Kittson County North 44-40 in the quarterfinals; knocked off No. 1 seed Norman County West 38-32 in the semifinals; and defeated Tri-County 48-34 in the finals.

That produced a Section 8A championship game showdown against unbeaten Clearbrook-Gonvick, the state's No. 1-ranked team in Class A boys basketball. The 21-8 Nordics stunned the Section 8A West winner 78-60 Friday at Lysaker Gym on the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus for the state tournament trip.

Sleepy Eye St. Mary's advanced with Section 2A North wins over Buffalo Lake-Hector 76-47, LeCenter 73-44 and Lester Prairie 48-31 that were followed by a 50-43 Friday victory over Mankato Loyola in the Section 2A finals at Minnesota State University Mankato.

It's the second state tournament appearance for the 26-2 Knights, who were there in 1998.

The first round match-up will feature the career scoring leaders at both schools – Dustin Monsebroten of Marshall County Central and Matt Gangelhoff of Sleepy Eye St. Mary's.

Class A state tournament Upper Bracket quarterfinal games include Cass Lake-Bena vs. St. Agnes and Battle Lake vs. Rushford-Peterson.

Russell-Tyler-Ruthon is the defending Class A state champion.

State tournament entries also include Crookston, a 54-53 winner over Pelican Rapids in the Section 8AA championship game, and Rocori, a 45-36 winner over Willmar in the Section 8AAA finals.

Semifinal and championship games will be televised statewide.

Clearbrook-Gonvick guard Casey Crane went above Marshall County Central defender Andy Brons as he took the ball to the basket during Friday's Section 8A boys high school basketball tournament championship game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. The Bears' Chance Goudge trailed the play. The Nordics won 78-60 to earn their first-ever state tournament trip.

Basketball history...

Newfolden girls won Region 8A tourney in 1987

While a 78-60 Friday win over favorite Clearbrook-Gonvick earned a first-ever state tournament trip for the Marshall County Central boys high school basketball team, it's actually the second time the Nordics have had a basketball team advance to state.

The Newfolden school played in the girls Class A state tournament in 1987 when the Tom Mjelde-coached Nordics beat Stephen 47-31 in the District 32A finals; defeated Plummer 59-47 in the Region 8A semifinals; and knocked off Win-E-Mac 40-36 in the Region 8A championship game.

Like the boys did Friday, the girls that year upset an undefeated highly-ranked team in the region/section finals to earn state meet berth. The Bears were ranked No. 1 going into the title game. The Patriots were rated No. 4 heading into that 1987 contest.

There were just two classes when the Marshall County Central girls went to state, compared to the four classes in the current system.

The Nordics' 1987 state tournament started with a 40-36 Thursday loss to eventual champion Rochester Lourdes at the old Met Sports Center in Bloomington. Friday, Marshall County Central beat Fairfax-Gibbon 55-52 in a consolation semifinal game at Normandale Community College. A return trip to the Met Saturday morning resulted in a 59-39 consolation championship game loss to Tracy-Milroy.

Marshall County Central finished 24-3 in 1987. The only regular season loss was a 43-40 setback to Class AA Thief River Falls in the opener.

Starters for the 2005 boys state tournament team include 6-3 senior Jay Maurstad, 6-1 senior Dustin Monsebroten and 5-9 junior Andy Brons at the guards; 6-5 senior Andrew Johnson and 6-2 senior Tyler Blazejewski up front. Junior Nick Haven, sophomore Andy Kragness and junior Tony Peterson are the top reserves.

The 1987 Marshall County Central state tournament starters were 5-6 senior Jodi Foss and 5-5 sophomore Kari Boe at the guards; with a trio of 5-9 front-liners: juniors Andrea Kragness and Natalie Ueland, along with sophomore Kelli Anderson.

Looker making calls in Asia

■ TRF hockey official gets new assignment

A veteran official in both North American and European international hockey, Rick Looker has now taken his game to Asia.

The Thief River Falls native left Feb. 21 to officiate in the first-year Asia League Ice Hockey, which has four teams in Japan, two in China, one in South Korea and one in Siberia, Russia.

Looker began his new assignment by working three games in Seoul, South Korea. He is based in Tokyo for the rest of his five-week stint.

Top four teams will make the league's post-season playoffs, and Looker will be working the tournament games.

Currently a Bemidji resident, Looker will return to the United States March 31 and will train in Thief River Falls with Tim Bergland before heading to Austria for the 2005 International Ice Hockey Federation World Championship April 30-May 15 in Vienna and Innsbruck, Austria.

The World Championship is a 16-nation tournament that begins with four-team round-robin groups.

In 2005, the line-up has Russia, Austria, Slovakia and Belarus in Group A; USA, Canada, Latvia and Slovenia in Group B; Finland, Sweden, Denmark and Ukraine in Group C; Switzerland, Czech Republic, Germany and Kazakhstan in Group D.

It will be the third straight World Championship for Looker. The 1989 Lincoln High School graduate also officiated the tournament in Helsinki, Finland, in 2003 and in Prague, Czech Republic, in 2004.

In addition, Looker has worked the IIHF Under 18 World Junior Championship in Riga, Latvia in 2001; along with the Under 20 World Juniors in Pardubice, Czech Republic in 2002 and Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada in 2003.

NCTC baseball, softball teams in Florida for spring training

Baseball and softball teams at Northland Community and Technical College left Saturday for their annual spring trips. This year for the first time, both squads are headed to Cocoa Beach, Fla. The softball team has been there in the past. The baseball team has made March trips to Arkansas the last four years.

Kathy Haschle is beginning her fourth year as Northland softball coach.

The Pioneers' baseball program is under new management this spring, but Steve Gust is far from being a rookie coach. He has a 350-125-3 record with three Ninth District tournament titles in 10 years as East Grand Forks American Legion coach, compiled a 127-33 record with four Section 8A runner-up finishes in eight years at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart High School, and last spring was an assistant coach on the University of North Dakota baseball staff.

Sophomores on Northland's baseball roster include Josh Remer, a pitcher/outfielder from Red Lake Falls; Brandon Wang, a shortstop from Hitterdal; Dominic Hamre, a pitcher/shortstop from Fertile; Cody Severts, a pitcher/infielder/outfielder from Middle River; Dane Kiemo, a pitcher/outfielder from Thief River Falls; Nick DeFrance, an outfielder from McIntosh; Grant Conway, a catcher/outfielder from Argyle; Tom Dostal, a first baseman from East Grand Forks; Jeremiah Smith, a pitcher/outfielder from Plummer; Will Leetch, a catcher from Roseau; and Gary Molek, a pitcher/outfielder from East Grand Forks.

The Pioneers' baseball freshmen are Justin Moran, a pitcher/outfielder from Winger; Nathan Bennett, a pitcher/second baseman from Newfolden; Brian Horgeshimer, a pitcher/third baseman from Fertile; Zack Collins, a pitcher/first baseman from Thief River Falls; Justin Buegler, a pitcher/catcher from Williams; Craig Johnston, a pitcher/outfielder from Thief River Falls; Patrick Anderson, an outfielder from Lancaster; Phillip Cloud, an outfielder from Bagley; Stacey Wiseth, an outfielder from Thief River Falls; Adam Violette, a pitcher/third baseman from Red Lake Falls; Andy Kays, a pitcher/outfielder from Moorhead; and Austin Johnson, a pitcher/outfielder from Britton, S.D.

"We have some solid talent, but it is going to take some time before we start seeing major results on the field," said Gust prior to taking his team to Florida.

The Pioneers start the year with two of their top pitchers trying to overcome physical setbacks. Molek had rotator cuff surgery in the off season and Moran has been both [illegible]

Senior Zach Anderson was named most valuable and was recipient of the Irv Wilson Award for dedication during Thief River Falls' March 8 high school wrestling banquet.

Sophomore Andrew Peralta was selected as the Prowlers' most improved wrestler.

Other varsity awards went to team statistical leaders: junior Dan LeDuc, most takedowns (114 - fourth highest figure in the state this year); Peralta, most pins (25); and eighth grader Jordan Engen, most nearfalls (34).

Junior varsity awards went to sophomore Josh Iverson, most improved; and sixth grader Chaz Abrahamson, hardest worker.

Introduced as All-Northstar Conference selections were Anderson, LeDuc, Peralta, Engen, senior Adam Lian and sophomore Kyle Iverson.

Prowlers given all-conference honorable mention status were seniors Thain Abrahamson and Josh Haverland, along with juniors Ben Nelson and Mancy Peralta.

Thain Abrahamson, Anderson and Lian were recognized as the Prowlers' 2004-05 captains.

Letter winners were (seniors) Thain Abrahamson, Zach Anderson, Ben Poissant, Lian, Haverland; (juniors) Mancy Peralta, LeDuc, Nelson; (sophomores) Brian Anderson, Kyle Iverson, Andrew Peralta, Travis Bach; (freshman) Billy Mattison; (eighth graders) Trevor Storey, Kevin Fynboh and Engen.

The Kenny Geiser-coached Prowlers finished 13-9 in dual meet competition this winter.

LeDuc set a pair of individual school records in 2004-05 with 156 career wins and 114 single-season takedowns. He broke Jeremy Anderson's record of 153 career wins and Jon Swanson's single-season mark of 100 takedowns.

Team records tied or broken this year, pointed out Geiser, included 10 Section 8AA tournament place finishers; six state tournament qualifiers; four individual tournament champions (at the Fertile-Beltrami Pine-to-Prairie Invitational); 541 team takedowns; and the fact that 27 Prowlers wrestled at least one varsity match during the season.

Prowlers with 15 or more wins in 2004-05 were LeDuc, who went 40-3 while wrestling at 145-152 pounds; Anderson, 39-3 at 140-145; Andrew Peralta, 36-7 at 275; Lian, 31-12 at 171-189; Kyle Iverson, 30-14 at 125-130; Thain Abrahamson, 27-14 at 140-152; Engen, 27-16 at 103-112; Mancy Peralta, 22-17 at 215; Fynboh, 16-23 at 119-130; and Haverland, 15-16 at 119.

Four Section 8A girls are selected all-state

Four Section 8A players were named to the 2004-05 Minnesota Coaches Association Class A all-state girls high school basketball team over the weekend.

The group includes Kierah Kimbrough, Badger/Greenbush-Middle River; Heidi Matzke, Red Lake Falls; Kayla Bagasson and Shelly Francis, Fosston.

Others on the squad are Katie Ohm and Candance Olstad, Elgin-Millville; Abby Oakland, Fulda; Kirsten DeWall, Southwest Star Concept; Andrea Fennern, Wabasso; and Ashley Samuelson, Underwood.

All the selections are seniors, with the exception of Fennern, a junior.

Fosston is second to Elgin-Millville in 2005 girls state tournament

Section 8A champion Fosston was the runner-up finisher in the 2005 Class A Minnesota girls state high school basketball tournament completed Saturday.

The No. 2-ranked Greyhounds stretched their unbeaten record to 29 games with a 51-38 Wednesday semifinal win over Sleepy Eye St. Mary's and a 64-45 Friday semifinal victory over Minneota before [illegible] by soreness in his throwing shoulder.

Northland's 2005 nonconference baseball schedule will include eight games March 14-18 in Florida; a March 23 doubleheader against Trinity Bible College in Ellendale, N.D.; a four-game April 3-4 weekend in Miles City, Mont.; and four games at the April 8-9 Riverland Community College tournament in Austin.

"We have an extremely difficult schedule to start the season, but it's exactly what we want," said [illegible]. "We need to play the best if we want to be the best."

The Pioneers' Minnesota Community College Conference [illegible] Division opener and home opener is planned Tuesday, April 12, [illegible] Mesabi Range.

[illegible] and Craig Peterson [illegible] with Gust as Northland [illegible] coaches this spring.

"This team has some potential," offered Gust. "If the kids work hard, have a lot of pride in the program and have the desire to be the best, we could challenge some good teams by the end of the year."

Huschle's softball team will play a series of timed practice games in Florida. The Pioneers will also be at the Husky Dome in St. Cloud March 25-26 before facing their first MCCC opponent in an April 6 trip to Fergus Falls. Their home opener is planned Wednesday, April 1[illegible] vs. Central Lakes.

There are only four sophomores on the Pioneers' early-season softball roster: outfielders Laura Anderson and Becky Lehrer, along with first baseman/third baseman Katie Walseth from Thief River Falls and Lisa Hardy, a second baseman from Embarrass.

First-year Northland softball players making the Florida trip included [illegible] Huschle [illegible], a pitcher/shortstop from Wheaton; Shannon Olson, a pitcher/shortstop from Bagley; Bobbi Cummings, a shortstop from Frazee; Bekah Lindgren, a first baseman from Bagley; Angie Van Maasdem, a catcher/outfielder from Frazee; Sarah Weisser, a catcher/outfielder from Fargo, N.D.; Allison Belanus, an outfielder from Langdon, N.D.; Steph Hoard, an infielder/outfielder from Thief River Falls and Tiffany Malwitz, an infielder/outfielder from Plummer.

"I'm not really certain where anyone is going to be playing," said Huschle. "I have lots of infielders, so I'll be making outfielders in Florida. That's what's nice about our spring trip - it gives me lots of time to try people in new places."

Guy Finstrom will be Huschle's assistant coach this spring. The Northland head football coach left his job as the Pioneers' baseball coach following the 2004 season.

TRF wrestlers qualify for national tournament

Jacoby Bergeron and Andrew Peralta of Thief River Falls won Minnesota/USA state folkstyle wrestling championships during the March 11-13 tournament at the Rochester Community and Technical College Fieldhouse. The event drew over 1,200 wrestlers from across the state.

Bergeron beat Jordan Kingsley of Apple Valley 3-0 in the schoolboy 70-pound title match.

Peralta defeated Blaine Hjelm of St. Francis 8-4 in the cadet heavyweight finals.

Results qualified Bergeron and Peralta for the nationals April 1-3 in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Dakota Clinic Triathlon set for May 21 in TRF

The 21st annual TRF Dakota Clinic Triathlon will be held Saturday, May 21 in Thief River Falls. The race begins at the Franklin Middle School pool, near the corner of Spruce Avenue and Nora Street, in Thief River Falls at 9 a.m.

The race consists of a 500-yard swim, 12-mile bike and three-mile run. Entries are available online at www.trftri.org or at Dakota Clinic Thief River Falls.

The race is limited to 100 entries. Awards will be given for five-year age groups from 14 and under to 70 and over.

All finishers will receive a race shirt. The adult entry fee is $21 and all participants who are not USA Triathlon members will need to purchase a one day license for an additional $9. No race-day registration is permitted. Entries postmarked after May 1 pay an additional $15 late fee.

A relay division is also available for two or three person teams. Relay team entry is $72 and includes the necessary USA Triathlon licenses. Relay divisions include Men, Women, Mixed and Family.

Following the adult triathlon will be the Hugo's Kids triathlon starting at about 11:30 a.m. This event is a 50-yard swim, 2.4-mile bike and 1.2-mile run. Age group awards are 7 and under, 8-9, 10-11 and 12 and over. Race shirts will be given to all preregistered finishers. The kids entry fee is $15.

A pizza and pasta feed will be held Friday, May 20 at Café Rhombus, Highway 59 S.E. in Thief River Falls. Information and registration if still available will be provided on site. All-you-can-eat salad, pizza, pasta and beverage will be available for $7.

The race is a fund-raiser for the Thief River Swim Club and is sanctioned by USA Triathlon. This year's major sponsor is the Dakota Clinic. Other sponsors include Pepsi of Thief River Falls, Hugo's, Northern State Bank and the Thief River Falls Convention and Visitors Bureau. Course security will be provided by the Thief River Falls Civil Air Patrol.

Additional information is available at the race Web site, www.trftri.org or from race director Jim Langland at 218-683-2718 or Langland@mncable.net.

Kandel's work is published in "Dust & Fire" anthology

Red Lake Falls resident Jill Kandel had work accepted for the 2005 edition of "Dust & Fire," an anthology of writing and art by women published at Bemidji State University.

Kandel had her prose piece, "SiLozi Song," which won the Carol Bly Award in Creative Nonfiction, selected for this edition.

"Dust & Fire" is an annual publication of the Women's Studies Program at BSU. This anthology is open to submissions of poetry, fiction, art or creative nonfiction pieces from any female authors or artists. It is in its 19th year and is published every spring.

For more information, call (218) 755-2766.

State's anglers should check new regulations

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reminds anglers to review the 2005 Minnesota Fishing Regulations as the new license year begins March 1.

Regulations booklets include special and experimental regulations, regulations changes and new information about exotic species, catch and release and fish identification.

"We made a number of changes this year and anglers need to make sure they are aware of the regulations before they fish," said Linda Erickson-Eastwood, program manager for the DNR Division of Fisheries.

"Besides that, the regulation book contains excellent information to help anglers protect their resource and enjoy their time on the water."

Key lakes with new regulations this year include: Fig Fish Lake (Stearns County), Big Sand Lake (Hubbard County), Black Bass Lake (Mille Lacs County), Horseshoe Lake (Cass County), Lake of the Woods (Lake of the Woods County), Lac Qui Parle Lake (Lac Qui Parle and Chippewa counties), Leech Lake (Cass County), Lida Lake (Douglas County), Rainy River (Lake of the Woods County), Rush Lake East and West (Chisago County).

In addition, the DNR, following and extensive and valuable public input process, made changes to trout regulations for 22 streams in six southeast counties. The changes are intended to improve fishing quality for larger trout while maintaining diverse fishing opportunities for anglers.

The regulations take effect April 16, opening day of the 2005 stream trout season. Trout regulations were also changed on eight lakes in Cook County.

Special and experimental regulations are summarized on pages 32-47 in the regulations book. New regulations are signified with an arrow. Unless specifically mentioned, all other general regulations, seasons, limits, border water regulations, possession and transportation apply to waters with special and experimental regulations.

Additional changes and new regulations are listed on page 9 of the 2005 Fishing Regulations book, available wherever fishing licenses are sold.

Fishing licenses valid for 2005 are on sale now at any of the 1,850 Electronic License System (ELS) terminals, located throughout the state.

Licenses are also available at the DNR Web site www.dnr.state.mn.us or by calling 1-888-665-4236.

Spring light goose hunt underway in Minnesota

In Minnesota and 24 other states, the harvest of snow geese, including blue-phased and the smaller Ross' geese, will be allowed under a federal conservation order this spring.

Since 2000, when Minnesota began participating in the conservation order, the state harvest of light geese has varied dramatically from a few hundred to 6,000 depending on weather conditions. Hunting this year will be open from March 1 to April 30.

"Minnesota is at the extreme eastern edge of the spring migration through the Midwest," said Ray Norrgard, wetland wildlife program leader with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. "March weather, particularly snow and ice conditions, can have a tremendous effect on the migration routes of light geese."

A spring light goose permit is required and may be obtained after Feb. 20 at any of the 1,850 Electronic Licensing System agents statewide.

Spring light goose permits will also be available by telephone at 1-888-665-4236 or online at www.[illegible] [illegible] license stamp or permit [illegible] to participate. Although the permits are free, there is a $3.50 application fee to cover the cost of issuing the permit.

Nontoxic shot requirements and federal baiting regulations, as well as most regulations that apply to fall goose hunting seasons, will also apply during the spring light goose conservation action. The use of electronic calls and unplugged shotguns is allowed.

Refuges closed to either duck or goose hunting during fall seasons are also closed during the spring conservation action. Shooting hours will be one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset each day and no daily or possession limits apply.

The conservation order is part of an international effort to reduce by 50 percent by 2005 the populations of lesser snow geese that breeds in Arctic coastal areas and the Hudson Bay area. High populations cause habitat damage on the breeding grounds.

A summary of regulations will be available from license vendors, DNR wildlife offices, or by calling the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-888-646-6367.

DNR seeking partners for ATV trail programs

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is actively seeking help in siting a new 70-mile all-terrain vehicle/off-highway motorcycle (ATV/OHM) trail somewhere in the state.

The DNR is responding to a 2003 Legislative directive to "plan, design, map and construct" a new trail, specifically designed for ATV/OHM use, on a mix of state and county lands.

Interested counties, acting singly or in combination, are encouraged by DNR officials to respond to request for proposals, which appeared in the state register on Feb. 14.

"Counties have long played an important role in providing for off-highway vehicle recreation," said Tim Browning, a spokesperson with the DNR Division of Trails and Waterways. "All reasonable proposals will be considered as the DNR moves forward with this project."

The trail is to be of a continuous loop design and feature links to other off-road trails, rest areas and at least two trailheads, complete with parking and vehicle off-loading facilities. The trail must be completed and ready to ride by 2007.

Browning believes this trail project provides an excellent opportunity for public land managers to work together to provide "a unique recreation opportunity for Minnesota's fast growing population of off-road riders."

For more information or for a copy of the request for proposals, contact Tim Browning at 218-833-8713, or by e-mail at tim.brown[illegible]. Copies of the [illegible] are also posted on the DNR Web site at http://files.[illegible]

Hunter education program turns 50

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources firearm safety/hunter education program. It also marks a significant milestone in the program, the millionth student certified.

Hunting has always been a part of Minnesota culture, according to Capt. Mike Hammer, DNR Enforcement education program coordinator. From the pioneers who depended on it for their survival, to today's recreational hunters who enjoy a day in the woods, there's no other form of social activity in the state that has a longer tradition.

"This tradition continues because of a dedicated group of volunteers who have provided millions of hours of instruction in safe and responsible hunting," Hammer said.

Today's 3,500 volunteer instructors bring the message of conservation, ethics and a better understanding of our natural environment to 23,000 young Minnesotans each year. Responsible, ethical behavior by hunters will be essential to the future of wildlife and the survival of hunting.

The Minnesota Legislature enacted the firearms safety program in 1955. Since then almost one in every five Minnesotans has completed firearms safety training with outstanding results.

With approximately 750,000 hunters taking to the woods, fields and marshes each year, Minnesota has one of the best safety records in the nation. In the past 10 years, there has been an average 1.7 hunter fatalities per year, with no hunting fatalities reported in 1998 and 2004.

"Hunting is safe and getting safer," Hammer noted.

Anyone born after Dec. 31, 1979 cannot purchase a license to hunt in Minnesota without first taking a DNR safety training course and receiving a certificate. Some states have even more stringent mandatory hunter education requirements.

Firearm safety and hunter education courses are available both in the spring and early fall. Spring classes are now available. Sessions fill up fast so hunters are encouraged to register today for best selection.

For class information, log on to www.dnr.state.mn.us or call toll free 1-888-646-6367.

Mike Baumann (right), Troop 199, St. Johns Lutheran Church, Thief River Falls, was presented the 2004 Assistant Scoutmaster of the Year Award at the annual recognition banquet for the Voyageur Trails District. Greta Kovar, district executive, presented the award to Baumann at the event, which took place on March 3 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. Baumann has been involved in Scouting for 19 years. He has served in various leadership positions and has attended many events. He was recognized for his leadership skills, and taking great pride in what he does and in relating well to the Scouts. (Submitted photo)

Diane Rokke (left), Pack 58, Newfolden, was presented the Voyageur Trails District Cubmaster of the Year Award at the District's annual recognition banquet, which was at Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls on March 3. The award, presented by Greta Kovar (right), district executive, recognizes Rokke's dedication and compassion, which has provided a quality scouting program for her pack. (Submitted photo)

Elizabeth Swenson • 681-3852

Kevin Swenson of Ogden, Utah arrived Monday evening to spend a few days at Grandma Liz's and visited his dad and other relatives and will leave for home on Saturday morning.

Byron and Peggy Stal were Sunday afternoon visitors at Virgil Hjelle's home.

Boy Scout leaders recognized at Voyageur Trails banquet

Several Boy Scout leaders were recognized at the annual recognition banquet for Voyageur Trails District March 3 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

District Awards included Cub Master of the Year, Scoutmaster of the Year, Assistant Scoutmaster of the Year, Committee Chair of the Year, Scouting Couples of the Year, Scouter of the Year, and 2004 District Awards of Merit. Greta Kovar, district executive for Voyageur Trails District, made the presentations.

District Award of Merit, the highest award that a volunteer scouter can earn on the district level, was presented to Harlan Boman, scoutmaster of Troop 50 in Warren and to Jim Cole, scoutmaster of Troop 151 in Warroad.

Harlan Boman. A father of an Eagle Scout, he started his Scouting career when his son joined tiger cubs. Though no longer having any children in Scouting, Boman of Warren has continued his involvement with Scouting and recently became a scoutmaster. His dedication to Scouting can be seen in his current involvement with the troop. During a Fall Camporee in Devils Lake at Fort Totten, even though he didn't have any Scouts attending, he and a co-leader traveled there to assist another troop in the District. His troop also has been involved with several work weekends at Camp Wilderness. This Order of the Arrow member remains committed to improving Scouting.

Jim Cole. James Cole of Warroad grew up in a Scouting family. His father was a District Executive, and Cole is an Eagle Scout, and now a scoutmaster. He has given exceptional leadership to his troop, shown by consistent rank advancement, district participation and community service. He was also instrumental in getting computers donated to Camp Wilderness. This Order of the Arrow member is committed to improving Scouting. His commitment and strong character is also displayed by his involvement with his church, serving as treasurer, deacon, and elder.

The following other district awards were also presented:

- Scouter of the Year Award was presented to John Loegring, Pack 44, Crookston, and to Sue Braastad, Pack and Troop 59, Thief River Falls.
- Couple of the Year Award was presented to Fern and Kent Johnson, Pack 44, Crookston, and to Greg and Bonnie Nygren of Fisher.
- Committee Chair of the Year Award was presented to D'Anne Johnson of Red Lake Falls.
- Assistant Scoutmaster of the Year was presented to Ross Axdahl, Troop 50, Warren, and to Mike Baumann, Troop 199, Thief River Falls.
- Scoutmaster of the Year to Glen Johnson, Troop 56, Roseau.
- Cubmaster of the Year to Diane Rokke, Pack 58, Newfolden.
- Den Leader of the Year to Bonnie Albright, Pack 101, Fosston.

Sue Braastad (right), Thief River Falls, Troop and Pack 59 at Zion Lutheran Church, was presented the Voyageur Trails District Scouter of the Year Award at the District's annual recognition banquet March 3, which was at Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. The award, presented by Greta Kovar (left), district executive, recognizes Braastad's dedication to Scouting. Her involvement with Scouting began 13 years ago when her son started Tiger Cubs, but Braastad has continued her enthusiasm and involvement with Scouting by serving in various leadership roles. This year, she served as the Unit Popcorn chairperson, making sure that it was a successful venture. (Submitted photo)

The weather in northwest Minnesota had us all believing that spring was right around the corner, water was collecting on the low spots and the snow had gone down over a foot on the level. All indications were there to change from the desire to go south for a couple of months to seed catalogues and "Who's coming to till the garden?" Sunday forenoon was nice and sunny but about 3:30 or so, clouds came in, followed by rain which turned into snow that caused even the freeway to be closed for awhile and many folks were stranded. The sidewalk to my garage that I had built up with 2 x 10 planks due to deep water that had accumulated there, was totally covered with new snow. Danny even brought the newspaper into the house for me when he brought my mail this morning. This set my planning back to winter.

Judy Kleinvachter called to tell me what had been going on in her life this past week, before she went up town to spend the day. On Sunday, June Severson accompanied her to Irene's Cafe were they enjoyed a delicious smorgasbord dinner. Later in the afternoon, they returned to the birthday party that Irene spread for her husband, Gayhard Nelson and Shalane McNanny at the restaurant.

Richard and Carol Thompson of Red Lake Falls brought Elmer Holmstrom and Evelyn Albaugh of Thief River Falls to Judy Kleinvachter's home to visit. Richard and Carol went to Isaac and Betsy Thomspon's for the day and in the evening they brought Elmer and Evelyn back to TRF.

Other guests at Judy's home this week were Marie Steffen, Joan Gohrls, June Kasprowicz, Vance, Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth, and Jim Fredricks of Warren, Larina and Pauline Berggren of Argyle, Kristin Kleinvachter from Fargo, N.D. was also home this weekend.

Elaine Grovum of Thief River Falls brought dinner for Elsie Lefrooth on Sunday afternoon.

I was looking for a certain recipe last week and in my collection of cookbooks, I ran, across an old "Cayuse Prairie Favorite Fixins", so named after the country school in the neighborhood. I found a recipe for an easy cherry pie with a no-cook filling and a no-bake crust. —In those days, Kellogg's sold "Corn Flakes Crumbs", nothing went to waste. I'll give you the recipe: Mix 1 cup corn flake crumbs and 1/3 cup of melted butter in a 9-inch pie pan. Press it firmly and evenly over the sides and bottom of the pan to form the crust. Chill then beat 1 (8 oz.) package of softened cream cheese until light and fluffy, add 1 can "Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk" and blend thoroughly. Stir in 1/2 cup reconstituted lemon juice and 1 teaspoon of vanilla flavoring. Turn into crust and refrigerate 3-4 hours or until firm. Do not freeze! Top with chilled cherry pie filling before serving. Serves 8.

In those days of trial and error, some would add some good advice. Betty Snell said that instead of scraping new potatoes, carrots or turnips, if you would use a wire chore ball it would be much easier and quicker and the valuable food elements will be retained.

Mrs. Dobrinski says: "I eat honey on my peas. I've done it all my life. It doesn't taste so very good, but it keeps 'em on my knife."

In those days, we would even dust the greased cake pans with flour, both bottom and sides. Usually the sides on a cake would be lower than the middle of it when done, but the sides seem to get more frosting. Lois Stout had made the discovery and the idea was -Do not grease the sides of the cake pans. How would you like to climb a greased pole!?!

Lori Johnson hosted a birthday party to help her mother, Jeannie Sorenson celebrate on Friday afternoon. Her guests were Jean Nelson, Edna McEnelly, Armilla Lundeen, Bernice Knutson, Darlene Hulleen and Judy and Harry Oen.

Supper guests on Friday at Stephanie Dagen/Bill, Connie and Maggie Stock's home were Mr. and Mrs. Rob Stock and family, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Bitzegaio and Kaitlin from Fargo, and Bernice Knutson.

On Sunday, Jean Nelson accompanied Eileen and Marvin Hutchinson to St. Paul. In the evening, they met Sandra, Larry, Becky and Braydon Pruden, Emily, Glen and Kim Dahlquist, Chad Dahlquist and his friend Sarah at Joe's Crab Shack for supper. Jean was an overnight guest at the Dahlquist home. Monday forenoon, Jean, Sandra, Emily and Kimberly visited Christina and Terry Kelly in their new home in Cottage Grove. Jean and the Hutchinsons returned to Thief River Falls on Monday evening.

Ida Rupprecht and Joyce Kron from Thief River Falls and Glen and Ella Sustad from Stephen were afternoon visitors and luncheon guests at Bernyce and Alvin Grandstrand's home near Viking.

Stacy and Steve Belman, Justin and Matthew, Tony and Janna Gustafson and Noah from Roseau were supper guests at the Larry and Carmen Gustafson home to honor Stacy on her birthday. In the evening, Carmen and Larry attended the "Kids Club" musical at Our Savior's Church. It was directed by Judy Olson.

Jean Nelson, Irene Nelson and Ida Rupprecht reminded Bernice Trochmann of her birthday when they treated her to dinner at a local restaurant.

Sheryl, Laura and Becky Melby and granddaughter Jasmine were overnight guests Saturday at Maxine Olson's home.

Barbara Champ brought birthday greetings to Bernice Trochmann on Tuesday evening. Wednesday forenoon, "Izzy" Melin stopped in with birthday greetings.

New Breakthrough Technology in Cataract Eye Surgery

Cataract surgery has become one of the most successfully performed surgical procedures in modern medicine. Now there is a new technique for cataract surgery that makes the experience easier and more comfortable for the patient.

The Clear Cornea technique makes an incision ⅛th of an inch long. The opening is so small, that in most cases, no eye patches or sutures are required.

When making this tiny incision, your doctor uses a sharp diamond blade that causes very little trauma to the eye and allows clearer vision more rapidly than with older techniques. Patients can return to normal activities with minimum interruption in their daily routine.

Singing out our praise for music and the "Star Spangled Banner"

After reading a story last week about the increasing longevity of Americans, I took up the author's invitation to go to another Web site and enter information into a program that could compute how long I might live. OK, I know it's foolish to believe that such a computation might accurately predict how long I might live. There are just too many variables. It didn't help that I couldn't answer some of the questions. For example, I have no idea what my blood pressure is. It's just not something I measure every day, month and sorry - even years, sometimes.

This week, The National Anthem Project kicked off a campaign to get America singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" while spotlighting the important role music education plays in giving Americans our patriotic voice. The impetus for this effort is said to have come from a Harris Poll shows that two out of three Americans don't know the words to our National Anthem, the "Star Spangled Banner."

Immediately after September 11, 2001, the resurgence in patriotism was obvious. Flags were waving, and most noticeably in this region - people were standing, taking off their caps, and placing their hands over their hearts whenever the American flag passed by. Since those days, the patriotic fervor might be lessening, but not by much, not here.

I come from a musical family. Everyone in my family except my dad played an instrument. All of the children in our family continued playing through college. Mom, a school teacher and piano teacher, strongly believed in the importance of music. In addition to bringing a little culture into our lives, I also suspect she thought it might help tame her four boys. At the very least, I think she thought it would give her a break between the teasing and fights. But even with all our musical background, not one of us has ever been invited to join a choir. Well, I was once invited to join a choir, but after the first rehearsal, they suggested that instead of singing that I join them with an instrument (trumpet and euphonium). They said some brass might help the choir. Yeah, right.

Can you remember all the words to the "Star Spangled Banner"? I don't think the fact that I can only remember about 90 percent of the words makes me unpatriotic. In fact, there may be some people out there who might thank me for not singing the 10 percent that I don't know. Maybe, those people might even think such a sacrifice was my patriotic duty.

There are lots of reasons for this national movement. Is it really necessary to give the nation another patriotic jump start? I can think of at least a few people who might think that increased patriotism means support for war, the current administration and more intolerance toward people with differing points of view. I suppose there's a danger of that, but finding a direct correlation is often quite a stretch.

If the goal of this organization is to give a boost to music education, there's a million other tunes out there to choose from that might accomplish the same goal. Maybe something from Diana Ross or Eminem. Wouldn't that be an interesting duet?

With all the violence in the world, maybe instead of a pop tune, we should be singing hymns.

In any event, I'm sure our readers might have lots of other suggestions, but a little more money to schools and educators to promote music education might be helpful.

Is it a national disgrace that two out of three Americans don't remember the words to the "Star Spangled Banner"? After years of good experience, I can say rather definitively that there are a lot of things that I should know (or remember) but don't. I don't always remember trash day, or always listen when someone's talking to me. I also don't remember my blood pressure, and some people might think that's more important. As far as remembering the words to the "Star Spangled Banner": I'll only sing it among the relative safety of large groups…I promise.

In case you're wondering, here are the words to the first verse of the "Star Spangled Banner":

O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
O say does that star-spangled banner yet wave,
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave?"

Minnesota Chamber of Commerce

Minnesota Moves proposes to move faster on priority transportation projects

by Bob Anderson and Ron Lifson

Highway gridlock and safety will worsen in Minnesota without substantive and predictable funding to address deficiencies. State officials predict another one million people and 560,000 jobs—in the region between 2000 and 2030. Substandard infrastructure will prompt businesses to take jobs elsewhere and threaten the livelihood of communities, especially in rural Minnesota.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) estimates that unfunded needs in the state and local road, bridge and transit systems exceed $1.1 billion annually.

The Minnesota Chamber of Commerce and nearly 40 local chambers of commerce, including Thief River Falls, have proposed Minnesota Moves, an initiative to identify and pay for priority projects across the state. Our plan both identifies the problem and recommends funding that has a realistic chance of becoming law. Minnesota Moves proposes to create a contract with Minnesotans. Sixty-six highway and transit projects are targeted under a proposed constitutional amendment that would provide a comprehensive infusion of $6 billion over 10 years.

At its core, Minnesota Moves strives to build a bridge between metropolitan and rural interests. Of 66 projects, 48 are located in Greater Minnesota. On average, 54 percent of the new money is targeted for state highways (29 percent metro, 25 percent Greater Minnesota), 25 percent for transit (majority in metro), 18 percent for local roads (formula weighted for outstate), and 3 percent for air/port/rail (primarily Greater Minnesota).

Minnesota Moves is based on six working principles:

The plan emphasizes accountability and efficiency. It proposes reform to increase efficiency and effectiveness in transportation systems.

The plan is statewide. Recommendations address transportation/transit concerns in urban and rural areas.

The plan addresses all forms of infrastructure, including roads and bridges as well as transit, air, port and rail facilities.

The plan provides a long-term strategy of meeting identified needs.

The plan is project specific and lets voters know what they are buying.

The plan is funded by user-based revenues.

The final two principles make the plan distinctive among other proposals. The plan addresses the public's frustration with delayed construction by constitutionally directing new money toward specific projects. And Minnesota Moves recommends that all new money raised be linked to transportation.

Gov. Tim Pawlenty's bonding initiative in 2003 resulted in the largest sum of transportation money in recent history. Those dollars will expire in the summer of 2007, at which time money generated under Minnesota Moves would be available. The funding options, on an annual basis, include:

- Efficiencies in transportation construction and operations - $60 million.
- Federal funding - $160 million.
- General obligation bonds - $65 million.
- Trunk highway bonds (first five years only) - $150 million.
- Tolls - $25 million.
- Match by local governments - $25 million.
- Up to a 5-cent increase in a constitutionally dedicated fuel tax - $160 million.
- Motor vehicle sales tax transfer (80 percent) - $72 million.

Citizens are inherently skeptical of government proposals to spend more money without accompanying accountability. Minnesota Moves strikes a balance between increasing money and achieving greater efficiency in transportation operations.

A complete list of recommended projects is available on the Minnesota Chamber's Web site: www.mnchamber.com. Projects were identified using long-range blueprints of Mn/DOT and the Metropolitan Council along with safety data, population patterns and freight movement.

All regions benefit from this plan, even if a specific local road is not among the targeted projects. Directing money to priority projects will help free up the regular Mn/DOT budget to address ongoing needs. Together, accelerated project completion and more flexibility in public works budgets will make a measurable impact on consistency of travel time, safety and long-term costs.

Minnesota Moves follows in the Chamber's tradition of supporting additional money to address specific and overriding statewide concerns. In contrast, the Chamber has a longstanding policy against raising general fund taxes – such as the sales tax – which are not dedicated to a specific purpose.

Minnesota Moves is not a cure-all, but rather proposes accelerated funding to address priority projects that will make a difference in the livelihood of all Minnesotans. Legislators for too long have split along metro/rural interests in debating transportation funding, and the result has been gridlock in the Legislature and on the roads. Now is the time to move Minnesota forward on transportation.

ACLU opposes expansion of DNA collection

Teresa Nelson, legal counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) of Minnesota, testified March 9 in opposition to HF1244, a bill to require DNA data collection of all people arrested for felonies.

"The ACLU MN has many serious concerns about the prospect of the state collecting and retaining permanent DNA samples and profiles on fellow Minnesotans and their extended families," Nelson said.

ACLU MN concerns include:

- Treating innocent people as [illegible] least some individualized suspicion is required to take blood samples from those who have been arrested.
- Historical misuse of government data. Social Security numbers were forbidden from being used as Federal ID numbers when the Social Security Act was passed. Today, that is exactly what has happened. Census data was used in World War II to track down and intern Japanese Americans.
- Medical privacy concerns. While the results of the DNA tests are considered private, the samples themselves are not. It is reasonable to forecast that these samples which contain intimate medical information [illegible] only on those arrested [illegible] blood relatives, could be [illegible] insurance rates, in public [illegible] or even sold [illegible] their own purposes.
- DNA [illegible] lished means of identifying someone. DNA can do that and much more. Currently, DNA tests can determine whether the subject or his blood relatives could be afflicted with an inherited disease.
- There is no governmental reason why people want to collect this data. Felons who have been convicted of violent crimes against people already give up their DNA. This information has solved additional crimes. Widespread collection of DNA from arrested (not even convicted) check forgers or embezzlers whose crimes leave no DNA behind has not proven to effectively solve crimes. In addition, the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension [illegible] currently handle the testing it is required to do. Tripling the number of tests will require more work[illegible] space and storage space for the samples. The amount of space required to store the samples will [illegible]

MN budget woes demand new approach

by Rep. Bernie Lieder

The governor was scheduled to release his supplemental budget proposal based on the February Forecast on Friday. There weren't a lot changes, just a few minor adjustments based on a slight up-tick in revenues. And that's too bad because it means the underlying flaws in the governor's approach to the budget will remain.

The biggest problem is the governor's starting point, which has been the same since he was elected. Ever since he came into office, he has approached the state's budget with an eye to what can we do without, rather than a real consideration of what our priorities should be as a state.

This isn't new. Too often, the budget debate at the Capitol begins with the question, "What will it cost to keep doing what we're already doing, in the way that we're already doing it?" If the answer costs more than the money that's available, the Legislature and the governor look for places to cut. If there's extra money, or extra money can be found or raised, there's a debate over what to do with it.

It's pretty clear the approach isn't working. Despite all of the governor's cuts, we continue to struggle with budget deficits. Meanwhile, key priorities like school funding and affordable health care go wanting. Something has to give.

That's why I'd like to see us turn the budget debate on its head. Instead of starting with the previous budget and making adjustments to it, we should start from scratch by outlining goals and priorities for the budget cycle. Then we could ask for proposals from anyone qualified to help meet these goals: government agencies, non-profit organizations, and perhaps even for-profit companies. These proposals would say what the agency or organization planned to accomplish and what it would cost to do so.

Lawmakers would then be faced with a menu of possible ways of addressing the state's goals and priorities, all costing different amounts and using different strategies. Constructing the budget would then consist of choosing the proposals that best address the state's goals and priorities with the money that's available.

There are three advantages to this system. First, old programs won't continue to be funded by default: in every budget, every dollar spent must be justified by one of the priorities. Second, state government would have to be explicit about what it was trying to do. We could then have a real discussion about what government is for and what's important to us as a state. Finally, since any agency or organization could put in a proposal for any priority, there would be much more flexibility and the possibility of new creative solutions.

For example, one goal might be to increase high school graduation rates and test scores. Local school districts would likely have proposals in this regard. But suppose it was found that poor health care was also dampening student achievement. Schools and local health care providers could work together on a proposal to address the issue.

Of course, this new approach wouldn't solve all of our budget problems. Programs could still become entrenched, priorities could become masked by vague rhetoric, and agencies might not be willing to think creatively about opportunities outside of their normal operations.

Still, it's worth a shot. After all, it's clear our current budget approach isn't working and no amount of spin is going to change that.

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher — March 16, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

The First Blood
A Thief River Falls Supporter Comes Out on Top

"The first blood in the county seat fight was drawn last week. The battle was fought at Plummer, which will be one of the storm centers of the county campaign. A Garnes farmer was giving his reasons for supporting Thief River Falls for the county seat, and a supporter of Red Lake Falls at once commenced to use the line of argument his side is putting up, which is [verbal] abuse, and succeeded in getting the Garnes man to lose his temper. What happened we will not state, since there is no use of rubbing it in, but it will be sufficient to say that the Red Lake Falls man looked like he had gone through a sausage mill and if he is able to get out on election day to cast his vote, will be the greatest luck:

"While the News does not believe in fighting, we are of the opinion that if you must fight, do so for Thief River Falls and we don't believe the recording angel will put any mark against you."

The Land is Going Fast
About Five Hundred Claims Still Left on the Eleven Towns

"The taking up of land on the eleven townships has again been resumed in quite an active way, and a large number are coming in on every train to look the land over with a view to filing upon it. Last fall after the sales were over about three hundred claims were filed upon, and it is expected about all of the 500 claims that are left will be filed upon this summer. Of course some of the land is low and swampy, but the demand for land is so great that this does not seem to keep the settlers from taking it. About all the land that is now left is in the three eastern townships and there is some very desirable land there. Most of the land on the south side of the river, little of which was sold at the sale, has been entered upon since that time."

Have New Duty
Great Northern Agents Must Know How to Milk Goats

"Agent Baker of the Great Northern, has always been considered a very good railroad man, in fact it has always been stated by knowing ones that there was nothing about the business he did not understand, but last week he fell down, and good and hard, too.

"The trouble was all caused by a farmer who lives up near Middle River, and who was having a pair of Angora goats shipped to his land of brush. The goats arrived all safe and sound, and as it was necessary for them to remain here for some time, before they could be shipped up on the Greenbush line, instructions were received to milk them. Now Mr. Baker says that had it been a cow, he or any member of the Great Northern force at the depot could have done the job, but tackling a goat was a different proposition and after several attempts, all of which proved failures, the goats were allowed to carry their milk to their destination, and Operator Stewart's prize pup missed a square meal."

Log Houses in Style
Thief River Falls Lumber Company Thinks the Style Will Not Last Long

"It is said that log houses have been very much in fashion among the settlers living close to the river on the eleven towns and the Thief River Falls Lumber company has caused a little investigation to be done. The result is that they estimate that about $1,000 worth of logs have been taken from the river by settlers and converted into buildings, and they are going to make an effort to put a stop to this practice.

"County Attorney Germo was up from Red Lake Falls last week and authorized Judge Bishop to issue warrants for the arrest of two settlers, who will be tried for the offense. A special law governs offenses of this kind and provides for a fine of not less than $50 and three months in jail."

To Take Notice
The Hotel Ogahmah to be Enlarged and Improved

"The Hotel Ogahmah is going to look up and take notice. At least that is what Mine Host Robbecke says, and what he don't know about the Ogahmah is not worth knowing.

"Plans have been drawn for an addition 30 by 32 feet which will stand just north of the present structure. It will be built of cement building blocks and will be three stories high. The first floor will be used as an office room and will join the present office of the Ogahmah, making a decidedly large office for the hotel. The second and third stories will be used for accommodation of the traveling public, and will contain all modern conveniences, such as bath rooms, steam heat, electric lights etc. The yard in front of the Ogahmah will be converted into a small park and will contain numerous cement walks." [The Hotel Ogahmah, owned by Charles Robbecke, was given that name after the Ojibway Indians from the Red Lake Reservation gave Mr. Robbecke the nickname, Ogahmah (or Ogema), which means "friend". The building had been previously known as the European House, located in St. Hilaire, and was moved to Thief River Falls in 1888. The name was changed at that time.]

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minnesota — March 18, 1905

News Items

"The first rain of the season fell yesterday afternoon.

"Yesterday was St. Patrick's Day and a few of the faithful 'wore the green.'

"The snow has about all disappeared again and the country roads are far from good.

"The last cold snap was hard on the piling that had been driven in the river and almost all of the work had to be done over again.

"Miss Agnes Lindahl, daughter of M. J. Lindahl, was surprised by a number of her young friends who called and had a pleasant time last Thursday evening.

"There were about sixteen hundred quarter sections of land on the reservation opened last summer and the Crookston land officials now state that only four hundred of the claims remain. A good many of the claims are worthless swamp so if you are looking for a claim, you had better not waste much time.

"Assistant General Manager Brown and Engineer of Maintenance Davis of the Great Northern, accompanied by Master Carpenter Mills, were over this line in a private car last Thursday. It is stated that the object of the trip was to look over the new track connecting with the Northern Pacific at Red Lake Falls, which has already caused considerable trouble. The cuts at Red Lake Falls have always given considerable trouble, but the sliding embankment they have there now is easily the worst the company has struck for a long time. It is not known when the work will be safe for trains to run over that way."

Basket Social

"The basket social given by the Modern Woodmen last Tuesday evening at their hall for the benefit of Jacob Enerson, one of their members who has lost an arm, was a decided success in every way. The ladies furnished forty-two baskets well filled with good things to eat and they all sold at good prices, realizing over sixty dollars which the lodge will send to Mr. Enerson."

Soo Survey Finished

"The following from the Thief River Falls News would indicate that our chances of getting the Soo are not very good.

"J. J. Hankerson, engineer in charge of the Soo survey from this city to Kenmare, North Dakota, arrived here Sunday noon with the crew, which has been disbanded. For the past two weeks they have been busy making surveys between this city and Warren, and now believe that a suitable route has been selected. The grade will not be more than 16 feet to the mile in any place, and that is hardly noticeable, in fact it is what is known as a water grade. Regarding the stories printed by the Red Lake Falls papers to the effect that a survey would be made out of Plummer and through St. Hilaire, Mr. Hankerson stated that he knew nothing about the matter, and did not believe that there was any truth in the matter, for if there was orders would not have been received to disband the surveying party.

"Mr. Hankerson left Sunday night for Minneapolis to make his report to the Soo officials. He will be division engineer upon the road [illegible]

Birthday Party

"A pink and white motif was carried out in the favors and a beautiful birthday cake decorated with seven white candles centered the table at a party given Monday afternoon by Mrs. R. H. Burrell in honor of the seventh birthday anniversary of her daughter, Ardith Marie. The hours were spent playing games and the honor guest received many lovely presents from her friends. The guests were Marjorie Hellquist, Ardith and Dolores Schulz, Suzanne Brink, Minnie and Chester Joyce, George Rude, Peggy and Jean Gustafson, Alice Anne Severson, Melford, Harold and Earl Burrell, Walter Kinghorn, Wesley Burrell, Ardith Marie Burrell, and Miss Pearl Fjelstad. Mrs. George Joyce and Mrs. James Burrell assisted the hostess in serving."

Swedish Mission Church

"Next Wednesday, March 19th, a Young People's meeting will be held at the church at 7:30 o'clock. Some excellent stereopticon pictures will be given in connection with a lecture on places of historical interest in Bible lands. All are heartily invited to attend. Seats free. Light refreshments will be served. Silver offering.

"Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening at 7:30."

Church of the Lighted Cross
(Methodist-Presbyterian)

"March 16, second Sunday in Lent.

"The Church School at 9:45 a.m.

"Church service 11 a.m. Special music. Sermon theme: 'The Mantle of Charity.' Last in the series of the three cardinal virtues.

"The Christian League 7 p.m.

"The popular evening service with a book review 'Son of the Gods.' A startling romance presenting the Unchristianity of Christendom.

"Anthem by the junior choir.

"This service begins at 7:45.

"Neighborhood Bible studies for March as follows beginning Monday: L. Rayson, 210 Kendall avenue South; Tuesday: C. Erickson, 708 Knight avenue North; Wednesday: H. Buck, 219 Duluth Avenue North; Thursday: G. Biddick, 115 St. Paul avenue North; Friday: V. E. Robarge, 719 Horace avenue North. 7:45 each evening.

"You'll like the Church of the Lighted Cross."

High School Progress
Staff is Doing Extensive Work on '30 Yearbook
"School Life" Theme Chosen; Class Dedicates Annual to Future Students

"Work on the 1930 Prowler is progressing rapidly under the editorship of Irwin Sponheim. The final photographs are being taken this week and all pictures are now being sent to the engraver. The various departments other than those concerning photographs may now expect to begin work in earnest.

"The Prowler staff are confident that they can put out the best annual ever published from this school. The book is dedicated to the future students of Lincoln High and the staff hopes that their Prowler may be pointed to with pride in years to come. A 'school life' theme will be used throughout.

"The successful and original sales week has indicated that the students will support an annual and would object to the discontinuance of such a publication. This year's Prowler staff is trying to make the publication a school book instead of a Senior project and will devote a portion of it to every school organization.

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 Years ago • March 16, 1955

30 FFA Members Sign Up In Ground Observers Corps

"As a community service activity, thirty members of the Thief River Falls Future Farmers of America chapter signed up March 8 for duty with the ground observers corps in Pennington county, the boys being assigned the responsibility of operating five posts in the rural areas of the county. Sgt. Scott and Sgt. Pies of the United States Air Force were present at the meeting to give the boys instructions."

Northern State Redecorating Job Enhances Looks

"The attractiveness of the interior of the Northern State Bank has been enhanced by a redecorating project, in which the walls have been repainted, with a figured paper being applied to the rear wall. Another addition is a new type of vertical Venetian blinds of treated fabric, finished in shades of brown and green. Art Terrian had charge of the redecorating work."

Four Boys Disrupt Church Services

"What seems to be a new type of vandalism was perpetrated at St. John's Lutheran church during its mid-week Lenten service last Wednesday evening, according to Rev. W. P. Clausen, pastor. Four boys, ages unknown because of the semi-darkness in which they operated, first caused a minor disturbance on the front steps of the church, when Roland Mammengo, usher at St. John's, went out and told the boys to leave inasmuch as a church service was in progress.

"The boys then went to the side entrance of the church, putting out the yard light. Two large snowballs then skirted the altar to crash against the door which leads into the vestry. At this particular time Pastor Clausen was in the pulpit delivering his Lenten message to an overflow congregation.

"One snowball was seen to come through a rear window open for ventilation while another came from a direction which seems to indicate that one of the boys had entered by the side entrance to take several steps up the stairway which leads to the chancel. The boys hurriedly ran off so that positive identification was impossible, although the two ushers who gave chase have strong suspicions.

Pastor Clausen stated that a ten dollar reward is being offered for information leading to positive identification of the boys.

STATE OF MINNESOTA
COUNTY OF PENNINGTON
DISTRICT COURT
NINTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

TO: ALL PERSONS WITH A LEGAL INTEREST IN THE PARCELS OF REAL PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN THE FOLLOWING DELINQUENT TAX LIST

A list of real property in Pennington County on which delinquent property taxes and penalties are due has been filed with the County Administrator of Pennington County. This list is published to inform all persons that the listed property is subject to forfeiture because of delinquent taxes.

The property owner, taxpayer, or other interested persons must either pay the tax and penalty, plus interest and costs, or file a written objection with the Court Administrator. The objection must be filed by April 15th, 2005, stating the reasons why the tax or penalty is not due on the property. If no objections are filed, a court judgment will be entered against the property for the unpaid tax, penalty, interest and costs.

For property under court judgment, the period of redemption begins on May 9, 2005, and ends three to five years later, depending on the type of property and where it is located. The period of redemption means the time within which taxes must be paid to avoid losing the property through forfeiture.

To avoid forfeiture, taxes on property located within a township must be paid by May 10, 2010. Taxes must also be paid by May 10, 2010, if the property is one of the following types in a city: (1) residential homestead, (2) farm homestead, (3) private cabins, (4) resorts occupied by the owner, and (5) resorts in operation for not more than 250 days a year. Payment of tax by May 12, 2008 is necessary to avoid forfeiture of any property in a city which is not described in the preceding sentence.

To determine how much interest and costs must be added to pay the tax in full, contact the Pennington County Auditor's Office, PO Box 616, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701. The telephone number is 218-683-7000.

Hazing, binge drinking are subjects of April 14 presentation

A free public presentation on hazing and binge drinking, "Hazing: When Rites Become Wrong," will be held Thursday, April 14 at 7 p.m. at the Chester Fritz Auditorium in Grand Forks, N.D.

Hank Nuwer will lead the presentation. Nuwer is the author of "Wrongs of Passage: Fraternities, Sororities, Hazing and Binge Drinking."

What forces young men and women to accept inhuman and degrading rituals in order to belong to a social club, sorority, fraternity, military or sports team? Are they the same forces that have made college binge drinking a national epidemic?

In his recommendations for reform, Nuwer provides numerous examples of what parents, universities and high schools, military, fraternities and sororities, and society in general can do to stop hazing and binge drinking.

This event is sponsored by the University of North Dakota University Counseling Center & the Region IV Children's Services Coordinating Committee. For more information, contact Sarah Shimek at (701) 775-0805 or sshimek@region4cscc.org; or Sue Thompson at (701) 777-4188 or suethompson@mail.und.nodak.edu.

Viking Community News

Elizabeth Swenson • 681-3852

Kevin Swenson of Ogden, Utah arrived Monday evening to spend a few days at Grandma Liz's and visited his dad and other relatives and will leave for home on Saturday morning.

Cousins gathered at China King Cafe on Thursday noon to celebrate the birthdays of Vernette Stokke and Gerald Peterson. Also present were Thelma Peterson, Alvin and Bernyce Grandstrand, Ruth Sustad, Lonell Peterson and Susan Bendickson.

Grandson's Blake and Brady Sustad and great-granddaughter McKayla Vad and Kinzie Melvie ventured out with a 4-wheeler pulling a sled and got over to great-grandma Ruth's for a treat and to get their mittens dried and warm up their hands.

Byron and Peggy Stal were Sunday afternoon visitors at Virgil Hjelle's home.

Eldon and Corrinne Swenson of Holt were Thursday afternoon visitors at Liz Swenson's.

Sunday morning baptismal service was held at Viking Covenant Church for Chesney Lee, daughter of Brian and Jennifer Lee. Godparents are Luke and Jennifer Alpperspack.

On Friday evening, Kevin Swenson prepared a beef stroganoff supper at Grandma Liz's and had his dad and wife in to enjoy a meal together.

As death toll in school shooting rises, parents, students and staff wonder:

Are our students safe?

by David Hill
Editor

Are our kids safe?

In the wake of the shootings at a Red Lake school, parents, teachers, students and community members throughout the region, and perhaps even across the country, might be wondering "Are our kids safe?"

In School District 564, Thief River Falls, policies and plans that address a host of emergency situations have been in place for many years. Schools practice lock-downs, fire drills, and administrators and teachers meet weekly and discuss security and other issues.

But as Superintendent Irv Peterson said, you can't say it will never happen here. There's nowhere you can go anymore that is immune from this type of violence.

Peterson said the issue of security is reviewed frequently. But after the Columbine shooting, the Board of Education took a very close look at security at the schools. As a result, a number of changes were implemented. Exits were limited, identification badge use implemented, visitors policies instituted, and then there was considerable discussion about adding security cameras. In the wake of this most recent incident, Peterson anticipates the School Board will revisit security issues.

Peterson also noted that the District works closely with local law enforcement.

Though they never know whether this may happen here, the teachers and administrators do their best to provide the support students need.

At Lincoln High School (LHS) in Thief River Falls, the theme proudly advertised throughout the school is "Attitude is Everything."

Principal Tom Hunt said teachers and administrators constantly remind students to have respect for each other, and that life is precious.

Tuesday morning, Hunt said the school's crisis team met to discuss the Red Lake shooting. An announcement that counseling was available to students, was also made.

Hunt and other administrators are operating under the assumption that because of the close geographic relationship to Red Lake that students have friends, and possibly even relatives at Red Lake.

"Our prayers and sympathies go out to friends and families," said Hunt.

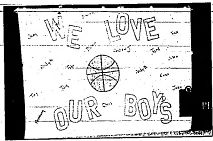
Last one out of town turn off the lights

Area residents did everything they could to support the local basketball team. Many of this town's residents attended the championship games in Minneapolis.



Newfolden appeared to be deserted last Friday, as many of the city's residents made the trip to Minneapolis to watch Marshall County Central compete in the boy's state basketball tournament. Newfolden, competing in Class A, won a state quarter-final game against Sleepy Eye-St. Mary's 64-62 in double overtime on Wednesday, before losing its next two contests, to eventual champion Russell-Tyler-Ruthton in the semifinals, 52-44; and to Casslake-Bena 69-40 in the third place contest.

Jury selection begins in TRF for Heden trial

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Jury selection began Monday in the case of an Oklee man accused of killing his infant daughter in 2004.

John Russell Heden, 33, has been charged in Pennington County District Court with felony offenses of first degree murder (criminal sexual conduct), first degree murder (child abuse), and second degree murder.

At press time, jury selection was still in progress. At Heden's March 21 plea hearing, Judge Dennis Murphy noted the trial is expected to take two weeks.

Earlier at the plea hearing, Assistant Pennington County Attorney Al Rogalla said the trial may take three to three-and-a-half weeks. He noted opening statements are expected to begin Friday, March 25 or Monday, March 28.

Heden was taken into custody March 1, 2004, and remains at the Pennington County Jail. A grand jury indicted him on the murder charges a month later. The criminal complaint alleges that Heden admitted to shaking his infant daughter and inappropriately touching her.

Heden was arrested after the Pennington County Sheriff's Department received a 911 call from Heden's Highlanding Township residence. According to the department, Heden said his infant daughter had a bloody nose and was not breathing. Heden's 3-month-old daughter, Rose Marie Heden, was pronounced dead at the scene.

John Heden

The two charges of first degree murder carry maximum penalties of life imprisonment. The second degree murder charge has a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison.

Nominations sought for TRF business, entrepreneur awards

For the past 18 years, the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce has recognized specific businesses and entrepreneurs for the vital role they play in building the community and the positive impact they have on the economy.

Area individuals, agencies and businesses are encouraged to help identify candidates for the 2005 awards. The Business of the Year Award recognizes outstanding business owners and operators for their achievements in running a successful business that has had an impact on the community; the owners/managers of the business have demonstrated creativity in product development, marketing, production, methods or service delivery and has shown involvement in the community. Businesses in all sectors of the economy are eligible. The Thief River Falls Entrepreneur of the Year Award honors an individual who has started a successful, new operation with a three-year track record; has demonstrated creativity; and overcome constraints or barriers.

Special recognition will be given to the Thief River Falls Business of the Year and Thief River Falls Entrepreneur of the Year at a breakfast on Tuesday, May 17 at 8 a.m. at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. The public is invited to attend.

Nomination forms are available at the Chamber office. The nomination deadline is April 15. For more information or to have a nomination form faxed or e-mailed, call the Chamber office at 681-3720 or e-mail trfchamb@wiktel.com.

She may be experiencing the semester of her life

Kate Levinson shares thoughts on her experience in Uganda

(Editor's note: Kate is the daughter of Dr. Steve Levinson and Teresa Levinson of Newfolden. She is a 2003 graduate of Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls. She attends Ithaca College, N.Y. Currently, she is participating in a semester of study and experiences in Uganda. Recently, she asked for a summer job recommendation, and in exchange I "encouraged" her to write this story. I told her that I didn't think she should be depriving area residents of her talent as a writer.)

by Kate Levinson

"We don't need tablecloths. We're training soldiers here," my academic director told the workers setting up tables for our first class. From that second, I knew I was in for the semester of my life. Never mind that these cloth-less tables were nestled in the hills of the East African country of Uganda.

At the end of January, I left my college-kid-on-winter-break routine of sleeping the mornings away, raiding my parents' fridge and spending the majority of the day puttering around the Internet for a lifestyle that couldn't be more different. In that spirit, as I write from the capital of Uganda, I'd like to share what it's like for a 19-year-old white girl to wake up each morning in sub-Saharan Africa.

I try to ignore the chorus of roosters outside my window and men singing in the village mosque, but the lumpy pillow covering my head doesn't quite cut it. Every few days, I set my alarm clock one minute later (so my host mother doesn't catch on to the fact that I'm sleeping in). At exactly 6:07 a.m., the succession of beeps begins; now even lying awake in bed is not an option. After trying, unsuccessfully, to shut off my alarm through my mosquito net at least once, I claw out of my mesh bubble and smooth the bedding that was too hot to sleep under. I then stab the dark until I find everything I need to bathe and feel my way to the back door and its intricate system of bolts and locks. I stumble outside in my towel and grab the trusty green bucket that will contain my entire "shower" and trip on a pile of rocks on the way to the water tap which, thankfully, works more often than not. My bucket and I spend a few minutes in a pitch black, barn-stall-like structure, and I pray each time that I come out cleaner than I was when I went in. Most days, that's debatable. In that fashion, I finish getting ready, stopping to iron my clothes on a holey towel on the peeling linoleum floor no fewer than three

Two health care grants totaling more than $400,000 were signed Friday at the Swenson House in Thief River Falls.

Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) received the Minnesota Job Skills Partnership (MJSP) grants – one grant totaling $49,993 and another grant totaling $352,692. The grants will enable 308 health care employees to receive training on new materials and technologies.

The smaller grant will cover training for 80 employees of Roseau Area Hospital & Homes in Roseau and First Care Medical Services in Fosston. The other grant will cover training for 228 employees of those two hospitals as well as Northwest Medical Center and Dakota Clinic Ltd., both of Thief River Falls; Kittson Memorial Healthcare Center in Hallock; LakeWood Health Center in Baudette; Northwest Mental Health Center Inc. of Crookston; and Clearwater Health Services of Bagley.

The grants may impact patients' lives, health care workers' lives and Pat Wangler (left), chief executive officer of First Care Medical Services of Fosston, and Richard Tvedten, director of Customized Training and Continuing Career Education for the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities System, signed grants Friday at the Swenson House in Thief River Falls. The grants will provide more than $400,000 to Northland Community and Technical College for the training of health care employees. Three hundred eight health care professionals from eight northwest Minnesota hospitals and health care organizations will receive the training.

TRF woman faces drug charge

Second degree controlled substance crime: On March 16 at 8:21 p.m., police received a report of a possible domestic disturbance in the 300 block of LaBree Ave. N. Upon responding to the scene, police found that a domestic assault allegedly did not occur. However, two possible methamphetamine pipes and a baggie with 7.1 grams of meth were allegedly found. A marijuana pipe with marijuana residue was also allegedly found. Amanda Dee Johnson, 24, Thief River Falls, has been charged with second degree controlled substance crime.

Second degree driving while intoxicated: On March 6 at 2:26 a.m., a sheriff's deputy allegedly observed a vehicle with a taillight that was not functioning. The driver was stopped near the intersection of Third Street and Barzen Avenue. Tracy James Kotrba, 36, Thief River Falls, has charges pending for second degree driving while intoxicated.

Disorderly conduct: On March 14 at 10:04 a.m., police received a report of disorderly conduct at Franklin Middle School. A 13-year-old Warren male allegedly said an obscenity and kicked an instructor in the stomach. The juvenile has charges pending for disorderly conduct.

Disorderly conduct: On March 15 at 12:10 a.m., police received a report of a disturbance in the 700 block of Markley Ave. S. Jeremy Brian Hendrickson, 27, Oslo, was allegedly loud and boisterous at a residence. When asked to leave the residence, he allegedly became belligerent. Hendrickson was cited for disorderly conduct.

Accident: On March 15 at 3:15 p.m., police received a report of an accident in the United Methodist Church parking lot. A 2004 Ford F-250 driven by Jeremy John Woinarowicz of Warren backed into a parked 2005 Dodge Caravan owned by Philip John Schmidt of Thief River Falls. Schmidt's vehicle sustained $2,000 in damage. The state of Minnesota truck driven by Woinarowicz did not sustain any damage; however, an Arctic Cat snowmobile in the truck bed sustained a broken taillight.

Property damage: On March 16 at 4:45 a.m., police received a report of property damage in the Northland Village parking lot. A vehicle sustained three flat tires and broken driver's side and passenger side windows. A hammer was also lodged into the vehicle's front windshield. The make and model of the vehicle were not listed in the report. The damage amount was also not listed. The incident remains under investigation.

Terroristic threats: On March 16, police received a report of terroristic threats at the Alternative Learning Center. Michael Alvin Edgar Krengel, 19, Thief River Falls, allegedly threatened a woman and said he was going to hurt someone. Krengel has been charged with terroristic threats.

Theft: On March 17, police received a report of a theft in a Franklin Middle School locker room. A silver class ring with a blue gem was stolen. The ring, valued at $217, had a person's name located on the inside of the ring. A watch, valued at $50, and a chain necklace, valued at $100, were also stolen. The incident remains under investigation.

Property damage: On March 17 at 6:03 p.m., the sheriff's department received a report of property damage in the 11000 block of 300th Ave. S.E. in Highlanding Township. Someone apparently threw marbles into a window of a residence. The window sustained $100 in damage. The incident remains under investigation.

Assault: On March 17 at 6:15 p.m., police received a report of an assault in the Altru Clinic parking lot. A 13-year-old Thief River Falls male allegedly threatened two people with a folding knife that had a four-and-a-half inch blade. The juvenile has charges pending for assault.

Public nuisance: On March 18 at 2:29 a.m., police received a loud noise complaint regarding an apartment at Northland Village. Sharon Elaine Perkins, 36, Thief River Falls, was cited for public nuisance after loud music and voices were allegedly heard.

Domestic assault: On March 19 at 3:42 p.m., police received a report of domestic assault in the 900 block of Falls Ave. Cheryl Lynn Peterson, 35, Thief River Falls, allegedly pulled the hair of Mark Alan Peterson, 43, Thief River Falls. She also allegedly shut a refrigerator door on his wrist. Mark Peterson allegedly argued verbally and physically with Cheryl Peterson, causing cuts on her face and abrasions on her hand. Cheryl Peterson was cited for domestic assault, and Mark Peterson was cited for fifth degree domestic assault.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Middle River juvenile certified as an adult, sentenced for fleeing

A Middle River juvenile has been certified as an adult and sentenced March 14 in Pennington County District Court on a felony charge of fleeing a police officer. Juvenile sentences were revoked for two burglary charges, and he was sentenced as an adult for those felony offenses.

Kevin Edward Browne, 17, was certified as an adult and pled guilty to a felony charge of fleeing a police officer. He was sentenced to 15 months in jail with all but nine months stayed for five years. That sentence is concurrent with two other charges. Browne was also ordered to serve five years of supervised probation. He was ordered to pay $298 in fees and fines as well.

The charge stems from a Feb. 4 report of someone driving away without paying for gas at Kum & Go. A vehicle matching the description of the suspect vehicle was spotted in the 300 block of Red Lake Blvd. N. A police officer attempted to initiate a traffic stop north of Long's Bridge on 180th Street Northeast. Browne stopped the vehicle. Once the officer exited the squad car, Browne drove away. Even though the police officer had engaged the emergency lights and sirens on the squad car, Browne continued driving. He later maneuvered between two squad cars on 150th Avenue Northeast and continued driving. Police terminated their pursuit, and the Pennington County Sheriff's Department and Minnesota State Patrol continued the pursuit. From 340th Avenue Northeast, Browne turned south onto an unplowed, narrow gravel road. The vehicle became stuck in the snow, and Browne was apprehended.

As a result of that charge, Browne violated his probation on a juvenile sentence for third degree burglary. For that offense, Browne was sentenced as a juvenile and had received a stayed adult sentence. The court also had extended juvenile jurisdiction. The juvenile sentence was revoked as a result of the latest offense, and Browne was sentenced as an adult March 14, 2005, for that 2002 offense.

Browne pled guilty to the felony offense of third degree burglary. A charge of theft over $500 was dismissed. He was sentenced to 15 months in jail with all but nine months stayed for five years. That sentence is to be served concurrently with other charges. Browne was ordered to serve supervised probation for five years. He was given credit for time served. Work release privileges were granted.

That charge stems from a Aug. 22, 2002, burglary at Evangelical Covenant Church. At the time of the offense, Browne was 14 years old. He and another individual allegedly stole a laptop and broke windows at the church. The laptop was later found at Browne's residence.

As a result of the fleeing charge, Browne also violated his probation on another juvenile sentence for another charge of third degree burglary. For that offense, Browne was sentenced as a juvenile and had received a stayed adult sentence. The court also had extended juvenile jurisdiction. The juvenile sentence was revoked as a result of the latest offense, and Browne was sentenced as an adult March 14, 2005, for that other 2002 offense.

Browne pled guilty to that felony offense of third degree burglary. Another charge of theft over $500 was dismissed. Browne was sentenced to 17 months in jail with all but nine months stayed for five years. That sentence is to be served concurrently with other charges. Browne was ordered to serve five years of supervised probation. He was given credit for time served. Work release privileges were granted.

That charge stems from the Aug. 22, 2002, burglary at Redeemer Lutheran Church. He and two other individuals allegedly stole a laptop computer. A third person allegedly dumped the laptop into a river. Browne and another individual allegedly stole $19 in change and $2 from Trinity Lutheran Church.

Numerous traffic offenses and other misdemeanors are included in the latest edition of the Pennington County Citation Disposition Bulletin.

Thief River Falls Police Department cases: Darren Craig Torkelson, 24, Thief River Falls, 42/30, $120; Thain Norman Abrahamson, 18, Thief River Falls, duty to drive with due care, $120; Bryan Dwain Delaney, 18, Park Rapids, underage consumption, $120, 10 days in jail stayed for one year; Benjamin Norman Gervais, 21, Red Lake Falls, open bottle/passenger, $270; Jordan Douglas Aasen, 21, Roseau, driving after suspension, $170, 30 days in jail stayed for one year, unsupervised probation for one year; Patrick Michael Barry, 16, Thief River Falls, stop sign violation, $120; Kasey Dean Johnson, 28, Thief River Falls, stop sign violation, $120; Einer Arthur Langelett, 32, Thief River Falls, failure to yield, $120, five days in jail stayed for one year; Derek Lajuan Shropshire, 20, Thief River Falls, theft under $250, $120, $2.69 restitution, 10 days in jail stayed for one year.

Pennington County Sheriff's Department cases: Antonio Garza III, 35, Crookston, second degree driving while intoxicated, $340, one year in jail with all but 90 days stayed for six years, supervised probation for six years; Tyler James Skogen, 19, Shevlin, underage drinking and driving, $120; Lona Rae Moen, 35, Thief River Falls, open bottle/driver, $148, 10 days in jail to be served concurrently with other charges, 42/30 dismissed; Benjamin Chris Furuseth, 25, Fargo, N.D., failure to display registration on a snocat, $90; Cole Jonathan Furuseth, 29, Fargo, N.D., failure to display registration on a snocat, $90.

Minnesota State Patrol cases: Ashley Kay Burton, 21, Thief River Falls, 65/55, $110, no proof of insurance, $170, 10 days in jail stayed for one year; Arther Alfred Ohlwine, 34, Red Lake Falls, 65/55, $110; Joseph Allan Ryba Jr., 22, Lankin, N.D., 70/55, $130; Gregory Lawrence Spaulding, 49, Red Lake Falls, no seat belt worn, $95, no proof of insurance dismissed; Richard Michael Besmehn, 54, Nisswa, 65/55, $110; Cheryl Ann Wardner, 30, East Grand Forks, 68/55, $120; Justin R. Winters, 20, Liverpool, N.Y., 65/55, $110; Robin Susanne Deiter, 41, Grygla, illegally passing on the right, $120; Paulette Fay Johnson, 59, Greenbush, 65/55, $110; Nathan John Olson, 20, Thief River Falls, no seat belt worn, $95.

Area Food Shelf volunteer Lee Haugen updated the Boy Scout Food Drive official progress chart several times during Saturday's food drive. By day's end, 3,250 pounds of food were collected for the drive, surpassing last year's total of 2,664 pounds.

Penas supports ATV ambassador program in forests

Minnesota House Environment and Natural Resources Committee last week voted to create an ambassador program to have off-highway vehicle users patrolling the state's forest trails.

The bill (HF1547) will be forwarded to the House Government Operations Committee.

Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger), a committee member, was one of the bill's co-authors, and said the majority of OHV riders are respectful to the environment and should not be punished.

"It states that all forests north of Highway 10 shall be in a managed state," Penas said, whose amendment request was added to the bill. "I think that's important. This allows for more flexibility, and it won't endanger the environment."

The bill calls for $200,000 in grant dollars to assist state officials to train OHV riders about the rules, what to look for in violations, and how to contact Department of Natural Resources officers to ticket any offenders. The program is similar to one currently used in Wisconsin, and mirrors Minnesota's snowmobile ambassador program.

Penalties for violators do not include the confiscation of ATVs, but does state that those who receive three or more citations in a two-year period must complete an independent study course along with safety training before being allowed to operate their ATVs.

The Legislature has increased the penalties for improper ATV use and enforcement. In 2003, the DNR began examining the 57 state forests to determine the appropriate level of ATV use in each forest. The study is not completed, but the forests that have been reviewed now have trails appropriately marked.

Currently, the Senate does not have an OHV bill in committee. A bill, which was introduced by Sen. John Marty, failed in committee. Penas said the House's version has the necessary mustard to pass because it is a reasonable, common-sense approach.

"It's important that we address the needs of ATVs in Minnesota," Penas said. "ATV users care about the environment, and the damage statewide has been very limited. With approximately one-quarter of a million ATVs licensed in our state, they are not going away and we need to provide sufficient trails for their use.

"ATV manufacturers and ATV users are also vital to the economy of northwestern Minnesota, as well as adding an important tax base to our state."

Funding approved for soybean rust detection and research

The North Central Soybean Research Program (NCSRP) has joined forces with the United Soybean Board (USB) and several federal agencies to create an early detection system for Asian soybean rust (ASR) in key soybean producing states.

David Wright, Ph.D., director of NCSRP's Plant Health Initiative (PHI) program, said the "sentinel plot" research project represents a major milestone in providing soybean producers with information critical to managing Asian rust this spring.

"PHI's partnership with USB and various USDA agencies on this project will allow us to effectively monitor movement of Asian rust in the United States, and provide growers with the timely information they need to make effective management decisions," said Wright. "Controlling ASR is paramount to profitable soybean production."

Wright continued, "We'll have trained experts on the ground in all the major soybean-producing states, monitoring local sentinel plots and feeding information to a centralized data bank. We'll use this information to develop a state-specific timely risk assessment, hosted on the USDA and PHI Web sites."

The checkoff-supported sentinel plot program was devised and will be coordinated by X.B. Yang, a professor and plant pathologist at Iowa State University. It will include an extensive system of sentinel plots in 20 soybean-producing states, from the deep South – where ASR was first detected in the United States last fall – to the northern reaches of the Soybean Belt.

Plots will be located at university research fields or grower fields, and planted 15 to 25 days prior to normal planting times and monitored every three to seven days. If ASR spores are present, disease symptoms will begin appearing in sentinel plots before appearing in acres planted along a more traditional planting schedule.

This early-warning system will give producers a window of opportunity to make decisions regarding fungicide applications prior to ASR's arrival to their own fields.

Once ASR is identified in a sentinel plot, plant samples will be sent to USDA for immediate verification. All information on the presence of ASR will be immediately deposited on a central computer network for immediate access by experts and soybean producers. State-specific risk assessments will be distributed to soybean producers via the PHI and other Web sites to alert them of the need to spray preventative fungicides. Each state will have a local coordinator to manage the program and determine strategic locations for the sentinel plots.

Wright emphasizes that this project would not have been possible without the partnership of the USB and USDA. Jim Sallstrom, USB Production Committee chairman of Winthrop, agreed.

"USB and NCSRP work together on a variety of projects designed to bring benefits to soybean producers. And with this issue on everyone's mind right now, we're extremely pleased to help bolster the line of defense against the spread of Asian soybean rust," said Sallstrom. "USDA-APHIS, USDA-ARS and USDA-CSREES have identified ASR detection and response as a key area of emphasis in 2005, and this joint checkoff-funded project goes a long way to help those agencies meet the challenge ahead of us."

"The goal is to let producers know how rust is progressing, so they can plan ahead and be ready to apply the appropriate fungicide at the appropriate time," said Gregg Fujan, NCSRP Board president and soybean producer from Weston, Neb. "We'll provide the incremental information to add to the USDA database, and we'll use the PHI Web site – www.planthealth.info – as an additional tool to help disseminate the information to producers."

"We are excited about this program's potential to help provide soybean producers with information to protect their bottom line," said Wright. "But there is still so much to learn about ASR, and new information is arriving everyday, so I strongly suggest growers stay on top of ASR and do their research as planting season approaches."

Kiffmeyer releases "Minnesota Legislative Manual 2005-06"

Minnesota Secretary of State Mary Kiffmeyer recently released the "Minnesota Legislative Manual 2005-06."

The 400-page book, which is produced biannually, includes information about federal, state and county officials, the state legislators, and the legislative process. The book also includes historical documents, facts about Minnesota, and precinct-by-precinct 2004 election results.

Unique features in the 2005-06 edition include:

- Historical essay on Minnesota's State Capitol centennial (chapter 7)
- Essay on the Minnesota State Quarter Dollar being released in the spring (chapter 7)

"I'm pleased that our office is able to provide this resource," said Kiffmeyer. "I hope that citizen-activists, public officials, researchers and students find it useful, and I hope those who read it will be encouraged to be even more active citizens."

Copies of the book have been sent to all Minnesota libraries, schools, colleges and county courthouses.

While supplies last, the blue book is free to anyone who requests a copy. To receive a copy, people may come in person to State Office Building Room 180, or they may send a self-addressed 9-1/4 inch by 14-1/2 inch padded envelope (Jiffy padded #4), along with $1.84 in stamps (not money) for each copy to Secretary of State, Minnesota Legislative Manual Request, 180 State Office Building, 100 Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55155.

The Minnesota Legislative Manual is available at www.sos.state.mn.us/BlueBookOnline.htm in pdf format as well.

Former TRF resident to appear on "The Bachelor"

A former Thief River Falls resident will appear on ABC's "The Bachelor."

Carrie Rud, a Lincoln High School graduate, will be one of the 25 bachelorettes on the season's two-hour premiere show Monday, March 28 at 8 p.m. on WDAZ-TV (Channel 8).

The 27-year-old Rud is the daughter of Duane and Diane Rud of Thief River Falls. She is currently working as a computer programmer at Employer's Associates in Plymouth.

MEC board to meet March 30

The Multi-Events Center Joint Powers Board will meet Wednesday, March 30, at 4 p.m. in room 545 at Northland Community and Technical College. Several items are on the agenda, but of particular interest is a request to add soccer fields to the facility. This is a public meeting.

MDA announces new organic processing fact sheets

Growing consumer demand for organic products spells opportunity for Minnesota processors as well as Minnesota farmers. To help the state's meat, poultry, food, and livestock feed businesses learn more about organic processing, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) has produced three new fact sheets: Organic Meat and Poultry Processing Basics, Organic Livestock Feed Processing Basics, and Organic Food Processing Basics.

Meg Moynihan, MDA organic and diversification specialist, edited the organic fact sheets.

"Some processors may find the organic certification can help them [illegible] find new markets and offer additional value to the products they make," said Moynihan.

The four-page color booklets provide information about organics, benefits and challenges to processors, the organic certification process, and labeling requirements. Each also offers a brief profile of businesses that do some or all of their manufacturing under certified organic conditions.

For a free copy of the fact sheets, contact the MDA Resource Management and Development Division at 651-296-[illegible]. Copies are also available [illegible]

St. John Lutheran to offer daycare services for infants

On April 4, St. John Lutheran School will open its daycare to infants.

"We've heard there's a demand for daycare," said Delores Kading, school principal.

A maximum of eight infants will be cared for at the daycare, which has been inspected, Kading added. The school has hired four additional staff members to work in the infant room with infants ages 6 weeks to 16 months.

"It's open to anyone, but we do teach Christian bible stories," Kading said.

Currently, the school offers daycare for preschoolers. According to Kading, it cares for approximately 10 kids, but not all at the same time. The school began offering daycare for those children last April. Ila Anderson is the director of the daycare, and two to three part-time workers care for those kids.

The daycare is open from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. It will be open through the summer and also during school vacations. For more information, call the school at 681-7753.

Evangelical Covenant Church of TRF to hold Maundy Thursday service

The community is invited to a Maundy Thursday Upper Room Service on March 24 at 6:30 p.m. at the Evangelical Covenant Church of Thief River Falls. The young people of the confirmation class will present a fully costumed recreation of the upper room experience of Jesus and his disciples the night before his crucifixion. It will be portrayed in an authentic setting of what the upper room would have looked like in Biblical times.

A sampling of Passover foods typical of those served during the Last Supper of Jesus' will be included as part of the evening's dramatic presentation. Along with special music, the youth will also do a multi-media portrayal of the first Passover as recorded in the book of Exodus. The evening will conclude with an open communion service for all attending.

Emmanuel Lutheran Church to host 8 a.m. Easter service

Easter service will be held at 8 a.m. on March 27 at Emmanuel Lutheran Church of rural Holt. Irwin Schmitke will speak. Music will be provided by Lois and Lois. Coffee and rolls will be served following the service. Matching funds will be provided by Thrivent.

Agassiz Audubon Society to hold membership banquet

Agassiz Audubon Society Wetland, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary will host its 23rd Annual Spring Membership Banquet on Monday, March 28. The event will be held at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls. The social begins at 5:30 p.m., and dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Scott Elkins, state director of the Sierra Club is the guest speaker. He oversees all of the club's environmental protection and conservation work in Minnesota. Statewide, 11 staff members, several hundred active volunteers and 20,000 members work on the issues of clean air, clean water, urban sprawl, and forest and wildlands protection.

"The hardest step any volunteer should ever take is that first, brave step to get involved," said Elkins. "From that point forward, our goal is to make them a part of a supportive, engaging community that is making the world a better place, and making them a better and more fulfilled person for the effort."

Elkins has worked for a variety of public interest organizations since 1993. He obtained his bachelor's degree in psychology from Trinity University in 1989 and his master's degree in social psychology from the University of Minnesota in 1992.

For the membership banquet, the cost is $15 for adults and $7.50 for children. For reservations or tickets, call (218) 745-5663 or e-mail wpp@wiktel.com.

Door prizes will be given and drawings will be held during the event. The Beito Family will provide music. K & K Catering will cater the meal.

Hagen named student leader of the month

Plummer student named Student Leader of the Month at Minnesota State University - Moorhead. The MSUM Student Organization Advisory Committee presented Emily Hagen of Plummer, Minn., with the Student Leader of the Month Award for March. Emily was nominated by the Campus Activities Board. In addition to serving as the advertising coordinator for Campus Activities Board, she is also the organization's Pro-Tempe, or in other words, the unofficial vice president, which leads her to pick up many extra responsibilities when needed.

Emily is also involved in Campus Crusade for Christ and has a part time job. Tracy Leukam, the executive director of CAB, described Emily as "an extremely hard worker that gives 100 percent in everything that she does. If someone could see how things operate inside the CAB office, they would instantly realize that Emily plays a huge part in keeping CAB going. We would be lost without her."

A graduate of Pershing High School, she is the daughter of Donald and Connie Hagen.

Remembering Yesterday

November 19, 2002 is a day that is permanently etched in my mind; a day that will never be erased, no matter how badly I wish I could go on pretending nothing happened. Saying good-bye to a loved one may be the hardest experience a person has to endure, whether it is expected or not. I, myself, was forced to undergo this experience in both ways, each of which I was never ready for.

Two and a half years ago, my sophomore year, my daily routine turned into a nightmare that I will remember clearly for the rest of my life. I was forced to say good-bye unexpectedly to the one person I felt understood me and was there for me throughout my life. Since then I have sat and wondered what his last thoughts were but I have never managed to come up with a theory.

Mark died instantly when he was struck by a semi-truck at age 39. That day seemed endless; I lost one of the most important people in my life. I felt emotionless. The reality of his being gone hadn't fully hit me until the moment I saw him in the bed of his final resting place.

He was my uncle, the father I imagined having, and the friend who always stuck by my side no matter the circumstance. When he was around, I never had an unhappy face. He always made me laugh. One thing I loved about Mark, although it annoyed me to the point of insanity, was how he always called me back when I left to do something. He said he needed to talk to me. When I got there, he would say "just kidding," and send me off to continue my journey once more, laughing the whole time.

It's been a little over two years now, and I still can feel his presence with me. If I listen carefully and close my eyes, I think I can hear his voice whisper in the wind and hear his laugh echo in the distance. It comforts me to know that he is watching over me just as he always had.

When I finally attempted to move on with my life, my grandfather was admitted into the hospital the summer I was to become a senior. I never dreamt he wouldn't make it out alive. That whole week, I watched him slowly fade away in his hospital bed. At the end of the week on June 2[illegible], 2004 in Fargo he [illegible] always told me stories [illegible] and when [illegible] I will always remember when he told me how he met my grandma. I miss the small things from them, things that I took for granted.

A person always imagines a future, never thinking about death until they grow old and gray, like my grandpa. Some people, like Mark, are not fortunate enough to live a long life. In my personal perspective, God sends us mortals home when our mission in life is complete. The ones who are left behind grieve the passing and loss. It is considered a loss in the battle with death, but it is also a blessing when the person reaches the "Golden Gates of Home," knowing one day they will reunite with those left behind.

Swenson is SJU swimming and diving participant

Saint John's University first year student, Joshua James Swenson, son of Ronald Swenson of Thief River Falls, was a member of the 2004-05 swimming and diving team at SJU.

SJU had a successful season as the Johnnies finished third at the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Championships in February and competed in various meets during the season in Minnesota and Florida.

SJU had seven student-athletes earn All-MIAC performances at the meet and five student-athletes qualified for the NCAA Championships.

Bill Saxton completed his seventh year in 2004-05 as the head swimming and diving coach at SJU. The Johnnies have finished in the top three at the MIAC meet the last seven seasons and have two top-20 NCAA finishes under Saxton.

Johnstons top DHIA list for February

Todd and Kathy Johnston were the top dairy herd producers for the month of February, according to Randy Rasmussen, supervisor of the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Rasmussen put the following herds at the Top 15 in the association for the month of February 2005:

1. Todd and Kathy Johnston – 64 cows, 92 percent in milk, 73 pounds of milk, 2.7 pounds of fat, 2.2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 104 percent of test-day milk sold.

2. Wayra Dairy 3X – 177 cows, 91 percent in milk, 70 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of fat, 2.1 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 109 percent of test-day milk sold.

3. Northwest Research & Outreach Center – 112 cows, 89 percent in milk, 70 pounds of milk, 2.7 pounds of fat, 2.2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 102 percent of test-day milk sold.

4. Tom and Diane Kolstoe – 35 cows, 94 percent in milk, 69 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of fat, 2.0 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 103 percent of test-day milk sold.

5. Walter Brothers Farm – 271 cows, 84 percent in milk, 65 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat, 1.9 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 105 percent of test-day milk sold.

6. Beyer Brothers Farm – 60 cows, 85 percent in milk, 64 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 1.9 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 104 percent of test-day milk sold.

7. Morlyn and Debbie Ornquist – 42 cows, 90 percent in milk, 63 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 2.0 pounds of protein, in unsupervised testing with 103 percent of test-day milk sold.

8. Gary and Polly Bakken – 23 cows, 87 percent in milk, 63 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat, 2.0 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 102 percent of test-day milk sold.

9. Greg Zak – 32 cows, 97 percent in milk, 62 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat, 1.9 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 102 percent of test-day milk sold.

10. E. Duane and Faith Knott – 92 cows, 85 percent in milk, 58 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 1.8 pounds of protein, in unsupervised testing with 104 percent of test-day milk sold.

11. Kevin and Sheila Tharaldson – 43 cows, 86 percent in milk, 57 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat, 1.6 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 112 percent of milk sold.

12. Kevin and Beth Roppe – 40 cows, 90 percent in milk, 55 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat, 1.8 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 106 percent of test-day milk sold.

13. Mark and Darla Lehmann – 48 cows, 85 percent in milk, 54 pounds of milk, 1.9 pounds of fat, 1.6 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 102 percent of test-day milk sold.

14. Hamrick Farms Inc. – 64 cows, 88 percent in milk, 52 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat, 1.7 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 108 percent of test-day milk sold.

15. Leonard and Marge Geske – 42 cows, 76 percent in milk, 51 pounds of milk, 1.8 pounds of fat, 1.4 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 102 percent of test-day milk sold.

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low even though the cow that is milking produces a lot of milk.

Continental Auctioneers School announces graduates

Continental Auctioneers School of Mankato has announced the graduation of two local residents.

Continental Auctioneers School of Real Estate, a division of the school, has announced the graduation of auctioneer Ron McKercher of St. Hilaire. Continental Auctioneers School also announced the graduation of Penny Schindler of St. Hilaire.

In the School of Real Estate, McKercher received instruction in all phases of the real estate auctioneer profession and was awarded a diploma and the "Certified Real Estate Auctioneer" designation from Rich Haas, president of the school. McKercher acquired knowledge and skills to recommend the real estate auction method.

Schindler received instruction in all phases of the auctioneer profession and was awarded a diploma and the "Certified Auctioneer" and "Certified Real Estate Auctioneer" designations from Haas. She acquired knowledge and skills to recommend the auction method of marketing.

Schindler also completed the Personal Property Appraisal Course and was awarded a diploma and the "Certified Personal Property Appraiser" designation.

Even children in Barb's Daycare (Barb Ekman) were excited about the Nordic basketball team going to state. With assistance from Ekman and Lisa Sillanpaa, the children created numerous decorations, some over 50-feet long, to show their support for the team. The daycare is located one mile north of Newfolden. (Submitted photo)

Extension offers food safety certification and renewal courses in TRF

The University of Minnesota Extension Service is offering two courses to help food service establishment meet the educational requirement for Certified Food Managers.

The initial certification course, called ServSafe®, will be offered on Wednesday, May 4 and Thursday, May 5 at the Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) in Thief River Falls. The class will run each day from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The test will follow at 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 5. Participants must attend both days to be eligible to take the certification exam. This eight-hour course includes information about safe food preparation, handling, sanitation and prevention of food borne illnesses. Registration is required by April 20.

Serve It Up Safely is a four-hour renewal course for certified managers. Certified food managers need four hours of continuing education credits within three years of becoming certified. University of Minnesota Extension educators and university specialists developed this renewal course that meets these criteria. The Serve It Up Safely course will also be held at NCTC on May 6. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Registration is due by April 22.

Pre-registration is required. For a registration brochure or for more information, call 507-337-2819 or 888-241-3261 or contact Connie Schwartau at schwa047@umn.edu.

The Serve It Up Safely renewal course is also available online. You can also get more information about the online course and register for it on the Food Safety Web site at www.extension.umn.edu/foodsafety.

ServSafe is also available online. Although the course is online, participants do need to go to a testing site for a proctored final exam. For information about this course or to register, contact Connie Schwartau.

ACTIVITIES
Egg Sounds

The following activity is a fun way to exercise our sense of hearing. You will need:

rice macaroni
tape

Fill each plastic egg with a different material, such as salt, rice, macaroni, etc. Tape the containers closed. Shake each one. Discriminate between soft and loud sounds. Variation: Fill two containers with the same material. Make several pairs and place all containers on the table. Shake containers to find pairs that make the same sounds.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need carrots, raisins, honey and crackers.

JOKE OF THE WEEK

Q: Who always steals the soap in the bathroom?
A: The robber ducky!

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls Public Library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Ross, Kathy. Crafts for Easter. This book presents 20 simple craft projects for springtime and Easter that young children can make from everyday materials.

Friedrich, Priscilla and Otto. The Easter Bunny That Overslept. Having slept past Easter, the Easter bunny tries to distribute his eggs on Mother's Day, the Fourth of July, and Halloween, but no one is interested until finally Santa Claus is able to get him back on track.

VIDEO VARIETY

The Easter Bunny is Coming to Town. A movie that is great for this time of year. In the village of Kidville, a town run entirely by children, a baby bunny grows up to make friends with the seven year old king of a nearby "grown up" town, bringing him beautiful Easter eggs of lovely painted colors. Every Easter, the clever rabbit would invent another Easter tradition -- egg rolling, jellybeans, chocolate bunnies -- until the king's mean old aunt becomes angry over all the joyful Easter celebrations. But, once she sees the Easter lily, she too joins in the love of Easter day.

PARENTING TIPS
Children and Routines

A routine is a consistent way of doing things. When routines are used with children they can become effective ways to manage children's behavior. Some families have routines such as hanging coats on hooks as soon as they are taken off, or reading a story before nap time or saying grace at the dinner table, etc.

Routines are effective with children because then they know what to expect. When they know what to expect, they feel secure and security allows them to learn trust.

Routines should be nurturing, in other words, a consistent way of doing things that promotes a child's self-concept and self-esteem. Nurturing routines tell kids that the way to do things in our family helps everyone feel good about themselves. Positive feelings towards oneself and positive thoughts about oneself are two important personality traits which emerge from nurturing routines. Without positive feelings and thoughts about oneself, there is little chance that the child will treat others with respect and kindness.

Nurturing routines can best be established in the following areas of parent-child interactions:

- feeding times
- diapering and dressing times
- bath and bed times

Nurturing routines will include the following:

- happy, pleasant expressions and tone of voice
- gentle, positive touch
- praise for being a person (I love you)
- praise for doing something (What a good helper)
- caring, empathic caregivers; being aware of the needs and feelings of children
- consistency
- fun
- enjoyment of children.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When praising your child, it helps to be specific. Say "Thank you for hanging your coat up on a hook" rather than just saying "Good job."

Farm Management Minute

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

The crop insurance program

by Mike Lockhart

Much has changed in crop insurance in the last few years. We are familiar with multiple peril insurance. It has many levels of coverage that includes a fixed price at different levels of coverage to include what is called catastrophic (CAT) coverage paying losses at 50 percent of the fixed price and 50 percent of the yield.

Many have had a chance to use several rather new types of crop insurance commonly called Revenue Assurance (RA) and Crop Revenue Coverage (CRC). The one thing they both have in common is that the price paid for losses varies depending on the current situation in the grain commodity market. The loss prices are determined as follows: for spring wheat, it is the average of September futures during the month of February, and for corn, it is the average price of December corn futures during the month of February. For soybeans, it is the average price of November soybean futures during the month of February. The price for each of these crops for 2005 are wheat – $3.35; corn – $2.32; and soybean – $5.53. These are called "spring prices."

The RA and CRC programs allow us to purchase what is called "fall option" or "harvest price option" and that is figured similar to the "spring price." Wheat is average of September futures during the month of August and new crop corn and soybean futures during the month of October.

This is how the process works: The RA spring price times the actual production history (APH) times the percentage of coverage. Example: 2005 soybeans at $5.53 times 31 bushels times 75 percent = $128 per acre loss guarantee. Then if you choose the "Harvest Price Option" and the price goes up, the APH will be refigured using the fall price to raise the guarantee. If the price goes down, the guarantee stays the same. As is in the case of last year, a 20 percent drop in fall prices gave some with high coverage loss payments at their APH because the guarantee remained the same.

Example from 2004 – Soybean spring price – $6.72 times 31 bushel APH x 80 percent coverage = $166 loss guarantee.

Harvest price option: $166, loss guarantee, divided by $5.40 (fall price) = 30.86 yield. Anything less than that yield results in crop loss payment.

I am always interested in pricing grain. My marketing plan includes grain sales at 10 and 20 percent over the spring insurance prices regardless of what those prices are. The 20 percent over the spring price targets for 2005 are: Example – soybeans 5.53 times 1.20 percent = 6.64; wheat; 3.35 times 1.20 percent = 4.02; and corn 2.32 times 1.20 percent = 2.78.

Take the time to visit with a crop insurance agent to better understand and use this risk management tool and tie it into marketing plans.

For more information about farm business management, contact an instructor by calling Northland Community and Technical College at 1-800-959-6282.

Get rid of the bark intact elm wood by April 1

City Forester Myles Olson reminds residents that bark intact elm wood must be disposed of by April 1.

"Do our elms a favor. Do not let your firewood pile help spread Dutch Elm Disease," said Olson. "Bark intact elm wood is a breeding place for elm bark beetles that carry the Dutch Elm Disease fungus to healthy trees. In the spring, adult beetles – up to $1,500 in a single fireplace log – emerge from diseased wood with the fungus clinging to their bodies. When the beetles fly to healthy elms to feed, they spread Dutch Elm Disease to previously uninfected trees."

Due to this danger to healthy elms, the city of Thief River Falls enacted an ordinance pertaining to the storage of elm wood. Bark intact elm wood is permitted only between Sept. 15 and April 1 – the dormant period for elm bark beetles. Proper disposal includes burning or removal to an approved disposal site.

Oak wood and elm wood are similar in appearance. It takes a trained eye to tell the difference. For questions or an inspection, call Olson at 681-1835.

Down On The Farm

An inheritence better than money

After I spoke to a gardening group last week, a woman came up to me and introduced herself. "I knew your grandfather," she said.

That jolted me. Grandpa's been gone for a dozen years, and this woman didn't seem old enough to have known him – unless she had been one of his nurses at the nursing home.

It came out that her father was Alf Benson, a long-time nurseryman from Valley City, N.D. My grandfather, also a nurseryman, and Alf had done business together for decades.

The memories rushed back: Alf was a bear of a man, always in overalls, a gentle giant who probably didn't need to take no for an answer because nobody ever dared turn him down.

My grandfather, Melvin Bergeson, wasn't tall and burly like Alf, but he made up for his lack of physical stature by carrying himself like Napoleon Bonaparte. Whether you were a member of his family or an important elected official, Grandpa expected you to submit to his will, and people generally did.

One of Alf's projects was to landscape dozens of rest areas in the upper Midwest. When the Amur maple leaves turn blaze orange in the fall along Interstates 29 and 94, you are seeing Alf's work. His wise tree planting plans are just now taking their final form, years after his death.

My grandfather, meanwhile, made his mark by planting hundreds of windbreaks and shelterbelts for farmers up and down the Red River Valley during the late 1940s and early 1950s, a time when government tree planting programs were idle.

Both men ran huge crews who took on massive tree-planting projects far from home. Both seemed motivated more by their vision of a well-forested prairie than by profit.

When Alf appeared for a visit to the nursery, he was immediately ushered into Grandma's little kitchen and seated at the place of honor at Grandpa's left hand.

Alf was in overalls. Grandpa was in his dirty work clothes. Grandma's slanty-floored kitchen was a humble venue, but as I child, watching two commanding personalities like Alf and Grandpa have coffee there was a bit like sitting in on a summit between Brezhnev and Nixon.

From the outside, I suppose Grandpa and Alf were two rustic small-time nurserymen who barely scraped by. By any conventional measure, their success, what there was of it, was small.

But to people who knew them, Alf and Grandpa were men made larger than life by the nobility of their vision and their willingness to get up every morning and turn it into reality a little at a time.

Alf's daughter and I didn't visit long. She just mentioned that she remembered her dad and my grandpa sitting around the table in Grandma's kitchen talking shop. After that, we sort of just nodded and mumbled, not knowing what to say, sort of wistful.

Perhaps it overwhelmed us both that times have changed so drastically. The big personalities who dominated Grandma's kitchen are long gone.

Grandma's kitchen is gone, too, mainly because the house finally just fell apart. It had always been a ramshackle affair, with bats in the attic and a leaky roof and a musty dirt basement and a tiny kitchen with a sagging table which squeaked and wobbled.

But when Grandpa and Alf sat at the kitchen table and discussed their big tree planting dreams, the little house, at least to their young descendants, could just as well have been a villa in Geneva.

The people are gone, the house is gone, but the vision Alf and Grandpa shared lives on in thousands of trees now reaching maturity in shelterbelts, yards and along highways all across the prairie.

For me, to drive past Alf and Grandpa's plantings – to see their vision still reaching fruition – is to enjoy an inheritance better than money.

The Thief River Falls Friends of the Public Library recently donated a book bin for board books and a large assortment of new board books to fill the bin. Board books are used with babies and toddlers as an introduction to the world of books. The group's board members (from left) Glenice Johnson, Kaylynn Wold and Betty Langelett recently looked at the books with library patrons (from left) Jonah Kalsnes, Marryn Dalager and Annika Dalager.

Friends of the Library begin membership drive

The Thief River Falls Friends of the Public Library have begun their annual membership drive. Their goal is to increase their membership in order to provide more enhancements at the public library. The enhancements change every year in response to the needs of the public.

This year, the Friends purchased a book bin for board books and a large assortment of new board books to fill the bin. Board books are used with babies and toddlers as an introduction to the world of books.

They also purchased a monthly subscription to books-on-CD, thus providing two to three new books on CD monthly to the library for the public. In addition, they purchased $500 worth of books-on-cassette. The books-on-CD and the books-on-cassette are two of the most popular collections in the library and are used by all age groups, but particularly by those whose vision is failing and those who are traveling (whether individuals going on a vacation, people traveling to work, truckers, or people traveling on a treadmill).

This past year, the Friends, in conjunction with the Roseau Area Friends of the Library, purchased a subscription to an online bookclub that can be accessed via the library's Web page, which is available at http://nwrlib.org/trf.htm. The benefits from the Friends' generosity have been extraordinary, according to library staff. The additions have helped expand what the library has to offer the public.

The Friends of the Library are a service organization that believes good library service is important to everyone. Benjamin Franklin began the first library in the United States, because he believed that in a democracy, there should be a level playing field for information – that information should belong to all, not just those who could afford to purchase it. With the help of the Friends, the Thief River Falls Public Library has been able to do just that.

For a membership form or for more information, call the library at 681-4325.

Expectant parent classes begin April 4 at NWMC

The Spring session of Expectant Parent Classes will begin at Northwest Medical Center (NWMC) on Monday, April 4, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Registrations are being received now.

Topics covered are labor and delivery, comfort techniques, nutrition, risk factors, etc. There is also a tour of the Obstetrics Department and birthing suites. Parents-to-be are provided with information that promotes healthy babies and healthy mothers and gives new families a good beginning. The classes will be held on Monday evenings for five consecutive weeks and are free.

The instructor for all of the classes is Sheri Schoon, RN, and several of the other obstetrics nurses at NWMC. For more information or to register, call the OB department at 683-4226.

Coping with grief support group to begin meetings April 4

"Coping with Grief and Loss Support and Education Group," sponsored by First Care Hospice and Home Health will begin April 4.

Kathy Dahl, LSW, Hospice family services coordinator, will provide information on grief reactions, coping with loss, finding support and getting through special days of remembrance. Four weekly sessions will be held Monday evenings from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the First Care office located at 319 LaBree Ave. N. Sessions are free and open to the public. Call First Care Hospice at 681-6189 to pre-register.

Frederick C. Wilde, 88

Thief River Falls - Frederick C. Wilde, 88, died on Wednesday, March 16, 2005 at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, March 19, at Ebenezer Lutheran Church in rural Oklee, with Rev. Gwenn Bazajou officiating. Casket bearers included Jarrod Wilde, Kirt Wilde, Kelly Forsberg, Eric Wilde, Kevin Wilde, Scott Anderson and Stacy Torblaa. Honorary casket bearers included all of Fred's grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Interment was held at Ebenezer Cemetery in Mayfield Township, Pennington County.

Frederick "Fred" C. Wilde was born February 6, 1917 in Pennington County, on the Wilde Family Claim, the son of Wilbur H. and Alice Mae (Cox) Wilde. He was delivered by his 16-year-old sister. He was baptized and confirmed at Ebenezer Lutheran Church, rural Oklee, and attended rural school.

Fred started farming at the age of 9. He moved to the Family Farm in 1933 at the age of 16 and purchased the farm in 1938 from his parents, at the age of 21.

Fred's life-long work was to tend to the animals, farm the land and revamp machinery. Fred was a steadfast steward of his farmstead, where he lived for 72 years of his life. He bought the only school he ever attended and moved it home, where he made it into a farm shop. He always said that is where he continued to learn.

Fred lived his life by the 10 Commandments and left his family with a strong heritage and Godly values. He was a life long member of Ebenezer Lutheran Church, where he served on the church council and was president of the Ebenezer Cemetery Board.

On March 14, 1941, Fred was united in marriage to Erma Viola Bakken at the Lutheran Parsonage in Thief River Falls. In 1979 Fred and Erma decided to spread their wings and traveled to seven countries in Europe. They found Switzerland to be their favorite "fun place." They celebrated their 55 years of marriage in 1996.

Survivors include daughters, Sharon (Roger) Forsberg and Dinne (Douglas) Torblaa, all of Thief River Falls, Lois (Lynn) Anderson and Carol (Budd) Mermon, all of Lake Park; sons, Ralph and Leslie (Trudy) Wilde of Thief River Falls and Dale Wilde of Detroit Lakes; 27 grandchildren; 38 great-grandchildren; daughter-in-law, Sheryl Wilde of Oklee; and sister-in-law, Ruby Wilde of Fosston; and several nieces and nephews.

Fred was preceded in death by wife, Erma on September 24, 2001; son, Dennis; one grandson; parents; three brothers: Milo, David and Lawrence; and three sisters: Grace Zimmer, Leone Murphy and Hattie Monson. A00003B2005MR23

Alyce Anderson, 89

Karlstad - Alyce Eleanor Anderson, 89, died on Thursday, afternoon, March 17, 2005, at the Karlstad Healthcare Center in Karlstad.

Funeral services were held on Monday, March 1, 2005 at Bethesda Lutheran Church in Strandquist, with Pastor Curt Matz and Father John Kleinwachter officiating. Honorary casket bearers included all of Alyce's fellow WELCA members. Casket bearers included Walter Kostrzewski, Laures Kleinwachter, Roy Lemke, Marshall Storeby, Don Carlson, Orville Koland, Richard D. Anderson and Carl Britten.

Alyce Eleanor Anderson, the daughter of the late Charley and Annie (Johnson) Kittelson, was born on Oct. 2, 1915, in Minneota. At the age of 6 months, she moved with the family to Strandquist, where she spent most of her life.

Alyce was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith, and graduated from Strandquist High School. On April 5, 1944, Alyce was united in marriage to Arthur E. Anderson in Halma. They farmed in Nelson Park Township of Marshall County, west of Strandquist, until October 1987.

They then moved into Karlstad. Art died on August 19, 1988, and Alyce continued to make her home in Karlstad. She was a life-long member of the Bethesda Lutheran Church of Strandquist, where she taught Sunday School, Bible School, and was active in other organizations. In 1994, she moved to the Oakwood Homes in Karlstad. Since Oct. of 2002, she has resided at the Karlstad Healthcare Center in Karlstad.

She is survived by her daughter, Corienne, and her husband, Wayne Jacobson, of Karlstad; several nieces and nephews; two sisters-in-law, Ruth Storeby of Fergus Falls and Julia Kittelson of Seattle, Wash.; one brother-in-law, Harold (Lois) Anderson of Park River, N.D., and her special "sister" Gloria Renstrom.

She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents; five brothers, Ted, Arnold, Clarence, Melvin and Elmer; and four sisters, Agnes, Myrtle, Gladys and Lily. She was the last surviving member of her family. A00003B2005MR23

Milton Sande, 78

Red Lake Falls - Milton Sande, 78, of Red Lake Falls, died on Sunday, March 20, 2005 at Hillcrest Nursing Home in Red Lake Falls.

Funeral arrangements are pending with Johnson Funeral Service in Red Lake Falls.

A complete obituary will appear in the next edition of The Times.

Russel A. Walsberg, 82

Sacramento, Calif. - Russell Alfred Walsberg, 82, formerly of Thief River Falls, died of pneumonia on February 21, 2005 in Sacramento, Calif.

Russell's Masonic memorial is scheduled for 1 p.m. on April 1 at Live Oak Cemetery, Monrovia, Calif. A reception in Russell's honor will be held immediately following his memorial at a location to be announced. All his friends, Masonic, Scottish Rite and Eastern Star family are cordially invited.

Russell Alfred Walsberg was born on May 3, 1922 in Grand Forks, N.D. Russell was the oldest of 14 children of Yvonne Gregoire Walsberg and Victor A. Walsberg.

Russell grew up on a farm in Thief River Falls. He lived for many years in the towns of Duarte and Monrovia, Calif., where he was a past master of Sojourner Masonic Lodge No. 608, a member of Scottish Rite, and a past patron of the Order of the Eastern Star. Russell was a member of the Union of Operating Engineers for over 50 years. He was an avid hunter, fisherman and gardener. Russell was a gifted mechanic and could repair just about anything. He was hailed by family and friends for his wonderful backyard barbeques. Russell served in the United States Navy during World War II, being honorably discharged on December 10, 1945.

Russell is survived by his daughters, Doris Reva and her husband, Fred of Encinitas, Calif., Joan Quinn of Sacramento, Calif.; his stepdaughter, Stephanie Rogers of Monrovia, Calif.; and his stepsons, Jeffrey Shultz of Cincinatti, Ohio, Craig Schultz of Redmond, Ore., and Andy, David and Susie Reva of Encinitas, Calif.; four grandchildren; two great-grandchildren, eight sisters and four brothers.

Other surviving family include Duane (Beverly) Walsberg of Borup, Colleen (Willie) Lazarz of Faribault, Yvonne (Lloyd) Johnson of Victoria, Rene (Jo) Walsberg of Wichita, Kan., Carol (Harold) Jude of Dekalb, Ill., Judy Budely of Federal Way, Wash., Ralph Walsberg of Two Harbors, Jeanette Walseth of Thief River Falls, Virginia (Ron) Anderson of Thief River Falls, JoAnn (Larry) Wold of Detroit Lakes, Dennis (Susan) Walsberg of Federal Way, Wash., and Mar[illegible] of [illegible], Tex.

Jerry M. Jensen, 50

Thief River Falls - Jerry M. Jensen, 50, died on Sunday, March 20, 2005 at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. on Friday, March 25, 2005 at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, with Rev. Terri Cuppett officiating. Honorary casket bearers included Virgil DeFreece, Norman Blackstad, Val Schill, Lyle Olson and all of Jerry's family and friends. Casket bearers included Les Iverson, Blair Gustafson, Roger Meunier, Donovan Erlanson, Doug Martell and John Houske. Interment will be held at Clara Cemetery in River Falls Township, Pennington County.

Visitation will be from 2 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 24 at the Johnson Funeral Service in Thief River Falls, with a 5:30 p.m. prayer service on Thursday evening.

Jerry Mark Jensen was born on May 30, 1954 in Thief River Falls, the son of Max and Ina (Crown) Jensen. He was baptized at home and confirmed at Ekelund Lutheran Church. He attended school in Goodridge, graduating from Goodridge High School in 1972. Following school he stayed home to help on the farm.

Jerry was united in marriage to Nancy Marti on October 11, 1975 in St. Hilaire. In 1975 he started his work career with the Street Department in Thief River Falls, where he had continued to work. Jerry was a very dependable, hard working man.

Jerry loved life; he enjoyed watching and playing sports, baseball in summer and basketball in winter. He loved spending time outside, gardening, bird watching, hunting squirrels and tending his cows. Jerry loved lefse.

He was a very unique man; he could ride a bicycle backwards and ride a unicycle. Jerry loved and appreciated his family, and loved to tell jokes and stories. He enjoyed playing the accordion, guitar and singing. Jerry had a wonderful sense of humor and had fun, no matter what. He was always ready for any adventure and could make any situation positive.

He was a member of St. Pauli Lutheran Church.

Jerry is survived by his wife, Nancy of Thief River Falls; two children, Jason (Carrie) Jensen and Kelsey Jensen, both of Thief River Falls; three grandchildren; his mother, Ina Jensen of Thief River Falls; sisters and brothers, Janice (Herb) Vettleson of Thief River Falls, Karen (Andy) Peterson of Oklee, Glen (Dolores) Jensen of Goodridge, Donald (Danette) Jensen of Goodridge, Kendall (Renae) Jensen of Thief River Falls, Kermit (Verlene) Jensen of Warroad, and Joani (David) Frederick of Goodridge; Goddaughter, Pamela Frederick of Fargo, N.D.; mother-in-law, Lois T. ## Bergina Schultz, 84

Eveleth - Bergina Schultz, 84, a long-time resident of Eveleth, died on Saturday, February 26, 2005, at St. Raphael's Health and Rehabilitation Center in Eveleth.

Funeral services were held at the Bauman-Cron Funeral Home Chapel in Virginia. The Rev. Donald Norr officiated.

Bergina Schultz was born on July 23, 1920 in Oklee, to Ole J. and Bertina (Grande) Dahle. She attended school in Oklee and was married to Leonard R. Schultz on September 17, 1940.

Bergina was a homemaker and also worked at the Cluett-Peabody Arrow shirt factory in Eveleth and Gilbert. She was a member of United in Christ Lutheran Church in Eveleth. Her family was her most important focus and priority.

She is survived by two daughters, Linda (Ron) Wilsey of Eveleth and Betty (Mark) Trumm of Alexandria; two grandsons; a great-grandson; one brother, George Dahle of Thief River Falls; and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Leonard in 1996; a brother, John Dahle; two sisters, Alma (Dahle) Malvig and Olga Dahle; an infant brother, Burton Dahle; and an infant daughter, Bonnie Kay, in 1947. A00003B2005MR23

Clarence Vatthauer, 80

Red Lake Falls - Clarence Vatthauer, 80, died on Friday, March 18, 2005 at Hillcrest Nursing Home in Red Lake Falls.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, March 22, at Bethany Lutheran Church in Red Lake Falls, with Rev. Gary Graff and Rev. Tom Potter officiating. Casket bearers included Steve Seeger, Mike Seeger, Gary Purath, Mike Wavra, Dan Wavra, Joey Wavra and Bruce Colombus. Honorary casket bearers included Honorary casket bearers included the men's Bible study group at Bethany Lutheran Church. Interment was held at Oak Grove Cemetery in Red Lake Falls.

Clarence Henry Vatthauer was born May 21, 1924 in Red Lake Falls, the son of Henry and Laura (Hagl) Vatthauer. He was active in the Presbyterian Church where he was baptized and confirmed. He grew up and then graduated from high school in Red Lake Falls in 1942. Clarence married Fern Johnson on October 2, 1949 at Our Saviors Lutheran Church in McIntosh.

Clarence and Fern established a home south of Red Lake Falls on a farm. To this union, five children were born, Calvin (Cindy) Vatthauer, Julie (Terry) Ford, Ellen Marie (Loren) Luthi, David Vatthauer and William (Janell) Vatthauer; seven grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; brothers, Ernie (Theresa), Dean and Don (Kathy); sisters, Frieda Twete and Irene Rafferty; and several nieces and nephews.

When Clarence passed away at age 80, he had long been gone from the public stage, but that meant that people remembered him as he had always been. He believed in himself and others, was admired and respected by all who knew him and seemed untouched by arrogance. He had a lifelong belief in the goodness of people. Clarence was likeable in his own way and never gave up on anything.

His Christian faith was evident throughout his life. Clarence had an active role in the life of the church where he served as an elder and deacon in the Presbyterian Church and attended for many years the men's breakfast and Bible study at Bethany Lutheran Church.

Clarence was very active in the community where he was a fireman and volunteer ambulance person for 10 years, a school bus driver for 18 years, member of the Red Lake Falls Saddle Club, member of the Red Lake Township board for 21 years and member of the Minnesota Wheat Growers Board in which he helped bring the Wheat Growers headquarters to Red Lake Falls.

Clarence and Fern were chosen the first Ag couple of Red Lake Falls and in 1994 he was appointed outstanding senior citizen in Red Lake County. He gave an acre of land for a swimming pool in Red Lake Falls in honor of his granddaughter, Tera (Ford) Schechinger.

He took a lot of pride in his driving where he was always happy behind the wheel. Clarence made many friends through the years. There were not many places he went that he did not run into someone he knew. Clarence cherished his wife, family, and friends. He also enjoyed hunting and fishing.

Clarence leaves a legacy of love and testimony of his great faith. May his memory be blessed and glory given to God for his presence among us. A00003B2005MR23

Mildred Oseth, 76

St. Paul - Mildred (Langlie) Oseth, 76, formerly of Newfolden, died on Tuesday, March 1, 2005 in St. Paul.

Funeral services were held on Friday, March 4 at Pilgrim Lutheran Church in St. Paul.

Mildred Langlie was born in Newfolden on September 27, 1928, the third of seven brothers and sisters, Ion, Howard, Millie, Dennis, Gale, Gloria and Mavis. She was preceded in death by her brother Dennis and her parents, Hans and Thora Langlie.

Millie lived on the farm in Newfolden until she graduated from high school in 1946. She moved to Thief River Falls where she went to nursing school. After that, she moved to Minneapolis, where she met her future husband, Glen. They were married on July 22, 1950.

They moved to Waterloo, Iowa, where Glen worked at John Deere and Millie worked at St. Francis Hospital as a nurse. Sheila was born there. About two years later, they moved to St. Paul where Gary, Diane and Nancy were born. She retired from the VA Medical Center after 25 years of service as a nurse. Millie and Glen resided in St. Paul for 52 years, with Pilgrim Lutheran Church the entire time.

Millie went to Merriam Park Community Center for exercise class three times a week for the last five years. She really enjoyed trips to the casino a few times a year and really loved to shop.

Millie would be the one everyone would go to for advice when they had a problem. She was always patient, never angry and always had the right answer for everyone. She also had a great sense of humor.

She always took excellent care of everyone, especially her husband, no matter how weak or tired she was becoming. She never complained.

Millie is survived her children, Glen, Sheila, Gary, Diane and Nancy, 11 grandchildren, ages 15 to 25, and one great grandchild, eight months of age. [illegible]

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: A friend told me she gets both her own Social Security retirement and a SSA widow's benefit. Can this be true?

A: You need to understand the fine print, but it is possible for a person to receive SSA benefits through more than one record, such as their own retirement and as a spouse or widow(er), at the same time. With that said, the total dollar amount received would equal the higher of the two benefits, not all of one benefit plus all of the other. As a rough example, say you are eligible for SSA retirement benefits of $200 dollars per month and widow's benefits of $300. Your monthly benefit would consist of $200 from the retirement benefit part of SSA plus an additional $100 from the survivor portion to total $300.

Q: I started SSA retirement at 62. Although I was widowed then, and still am, the SSA representative showed me how I could get a higher widows SSA benefit by starting my own retirement first and later switching to widows benefits near age 65. I could afford to wait then but I'll be 65 soon. Do I need to do anything?

A: Yes. This is very important. You need to file an application for widow's benefits. What the SSA representative pointed out for your consideration was how, by taking only your own retirement benefit at an age 62 reduced rate, you could get a higher widow's benefit when older.

As with all SSA age based benefits, a widows benefit is higher the older you are when it starts because there are fewer age based reductions. Coupled with the fact that your husband's earnings were higher than yours, waiting provided you a higher survivor benefit. People eligible for Social Security survivor benefits have options available to them that others do not have. For example, age based survivor benefits can begin at 60 compared to 62 for life benefits.

Also, as in your situation, a person old enough and eligible for both their own retirement and a widow(er)'s benefit can start either one of them while delaying the start of the other to have higher future benefits. With life benefits, such as someone immediately eligible for their own retirement and a spousal benefit, both must be started at one time. Deciding among the various options is a very individual decision. Some people, like you, can afford to wait before starting one of the benefits while others cannot. SSA representatives explain the options but the final decisions are up to the person. Ask questions

Geller joins Valley Home Assisted Living as administrator

Lynn Geller has accepted the position of administrator at Valley Home Assisted Living.

Geller was previously the chief operating officer of the Villa in Crookston. Arden Solheim, previous Valley Home administrator, will continue with Valley Home as the project chairperson of the new unit to be built this spring.

"I am excited about joining the Valley Home Assisted Living team. In the short time that I have been here, it is obvious that the staff truly care about the people that they serve," said Geller. "I look forward to the challenge of the construction of the new unit. Valley Home has a commitment to the community and with the new construction of the new dementia unit, we will be able to provide a needed service for the community. Please stop in at any time for a visit or a tour."

Three hundred eight health care employees will receive training as a result of two Minnesota Job Skills Program grants recently awarded to Northland Community and Technical College. More than $400,000 in grants were awarded to the college and eight hospitals and health care organizations. Among those signing the grants Friday at the Swenson House were (front) Pat Wangler, chief executive officer of First Care Medical Services of Fosston; Rick Failing, chief executive officer of Kittson Memorial Healthcare Center of Hallock; and Dan Olson, chief operating officer of Dakota Clinic Ltd. of Thief River Falls. Milly Prachar, senior leader of quality at Roseau Area Hospital & Homes of Roseau, and Richard Tvedten, director of Customized Training and Continuing Career Education for the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities System, looked on as the others signed the grants.

the bottom line of employers, said Richard Tvedten, director of Customized Training and Continuing Career Education for the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities System.

Mentioning the team name of the NCTC Pioneers, President Dr. Orley Gunderson said, "We're pioneering something different today."

Pat Wangler, First Care Medical Services chief executive officer, expressed her thanks for the grants. She noted she was optimistic about the impact of the grants on not just health care, but on health care costs for patients as well.

"As a health care leader, I'm both proud and disheartened by our current health care system," added Wangler, who referred to the health care bureaucracy as well as the ability of consumers to inspire growth, especially in terms of procedures related to beauty.

There's also the fear of litigation. "We check everything two or three times," said Wangler, who noted health care professionals order more tests in order to not be sued later.

Wangler hoped the partnerships would bring back effective prevention before treatment, she said.

Wangler also noted other changes that may result from the partnerships, including having uniform, standardized billing forms and credentials.

Currently, she said, each insurance company requires a special credential for every health care provider. If a hospital or other health care provider has 10 providers and 10 insurance companies, the facility is credentialing 100 times.

Other health care problems relate to the number of people becoming employed in the industry. "We need to make health care a more appealing profession for young people to aspire to," Wangler said.

Wangler appeared to be excited about receiving the grants. The other grant recipients were also apparently excited about the grants. The enthusiasm of staff at those hospitals and organizations was noticeable after they heard they received the grants, said Kirsten Melby, NCTC workforce development director. "The excitement is rather contagious."

Besides the benefits to the health care providers and community, NCTC may also benefit from the partnerships. "We also expect Northland Community and Technical College will benefit and grow through their delivery of long-term, alternative programming to meet the health care training needs of northwest Minnesota," said Matt Kramer, Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development commissioner and MJSP Board chairperson, in a news release.

In their quest to improve, the hospitals and health care organizations will also receive support from the manufacturing community.

"We have this wonderful linkage of the educational community, health care community and manufacturing community," said Paul Moe, MJSP director.

"The board is really impressed with the commitment of the area's leading manufacturers," Tvedten said.

Manufacturers are offering their assistance to help health care facilities improve quality and costs, said Rick Trontvet, a Digi-Key employee and member of the Manufacturing Steering Committee. They will provide encouragement as well as support in practical ways.

Similar MJSP grants have improved quality and increased customer satisfaction in the manufacturing sector, Trontvet noted.

"Again, we think this initiative has real potential," Trontvet said, speaking on the behalf of the manufacturers that include, among others, Arctic Cat, Central Boiler, Digi-Key, Marvin Windows, Polaris and TEAM Industries.

Admitting that he didn't know the impact of the grants five to 10 years from now, Gunderson said he expected the grants would have a positive impact. "It's the start of something that will probably be replicated statewide," he said.

Wangler agreed, "Foundations are built one block at a time."

Are our students safe?

LHS staff and administrators meet regularly to discuss issues that may affect the school and community. The Student Assistance Team consists of counselors, teachers, law enforcement officials and social workers. Hunt said among the items discussed in those meetings, which take place every Friday, are reports of altered behavior among students. Hunt explained that the team tries to provide support, and that at this age, he noted that teens may be attempting to address a whole host of emotional problems.

"We're constantly working on trying to build healthy relationships," said Hunt.

Students are also encouraged to share their concerns with teachers and staff. District staff and administrators believe it's important to foster a relationship where students feel comfortable sharing important information with them.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Kim Murphy said law enforcement has a good working relationship with the District and school administrators. Officers meet regularly with staff and try to figure out what concern areas there are.

Officers regularly visit with students in and out of classrooms. They also provide security at the schools.

The purpose of all this activity is [illegible]

One of the questions Murphy [illegible]

"Definitely," said Murphy.

To parents, Murphy said be aware of what your children are involved in, what Web sites they visit, who their friends are, and whether they are involved in drugs or alcohol.

He also reminds parents to ask themselves whether there have been significant changes in their child's behavior. Have they become more withdrawn, violent or unkempt? If they have become more unkempt, it may be a signal that they don't care about themselves. He also wants parents to ask whether their child's writings have become more violent or graphic.

Has your student become extremely secretive? Murphy said a significant change in behavior might be an indication of an internal struggle that needs to be addressed.

The most important thing for parents to do, is to not ignore the signs, said Murphy. "The worst thing you could possibly say is that it's just a passing phase."

Murphy urges parents to ask questions, to prod, to pry gently, and, in some cases get tough, and intervene. "Know what your child or grandchild are doing."

Murphy echoed sentiments of staff and administrators throughout the District when he offered that we never want anything like this to happen here.

He also offered his thoughts and prayers for the citizens of Red Lake. This is a stressful time, and in the days and weeks to come, it may become even more stressful.

times (my mom insists). Then I throw some Siibe bulungis - spend the day well - over my shoulder and slip out the gate into the (rest of) the most real world I will ever see.

I walk to catch my taxi bus with quite a following on the red dirt road - usually several chickens, some goats and some children, screaming "Mzungu, mzuuuungu!" just to remind everyone around that my skin is, in fact, glowing white. By the time I reach the main road, most of my menagerie is gone, and I'm free to fight for a dilapidated seat heading for the city. What locals call The Jam varies everyday, as do the creative ways of dodging it. Often, the "shortcut" involves a rollercoaster ride through the narrow dirt roads of a village or two, which often prove some sort of entertainment. A couple weeks ago, I glanced out the taxi window to see a shirtless man absolutely covered - his head, his arms, his chest - with blood. Walking behind him was an angry man with a giant bloody stick. When we had passed, everyone's eyes fell right back to the newspapers.

Every morning, I arrive at the taxi park and wonder why it is not called the harassment park. At least for young, white women it should be. I've started writing down the amusing things people yell at me - marriage proposals, invitations to various places, "I like you. You're white!" and my favorite: "Hey mzungu good-looking!" I make my way - sometimes on the verge of laughter, sometimes tears, depending on my mood - to the taxis heading to campus, ignoring the drivers competing for the privilege of driving a mzungu to school.

Class in Uganda is class anywhere. I spend the mornings attempting to decipher the 47-letter words of the Luganda language and the afternoons trying to stay awake through often-dry development lectures. But classroom class hardly exists, and I couldn't be more thrilled. For our entire semester, we spend only five weeks at Makerere University; the rest is spent traveling and at the sites of our independent study projects (which, if all goes as planned, I'll be doing from a tent at a refugee camp). After a normal class day, I walk into the city to yet more screams of "Mzungu!" - from shoeless schoolgirls on their way home to midlife businessmen to malnourished, limbless people lying on the sidewalks. Coming from a culture where our secretaries are "administrative assistants" and custodians wouldn't show their faces as "janitors," it's quite an experience to live in a place where the term "politically correct" is never uttered and the concept is nonexistent. My problem is that I have, in my own eyes, become colorless. I no longer think about my race as I walk down the street as I did when I first arrived. But I find that now that the color has drained from my mind, it is even more upsetting to have it pointed out. Even if I forget I'm a few shades lighter, they don't. And that's often all they can see. Even those Ugandans who know me as more than a person on the street - my homestay family, for example - will always see me as a mzungu first, and Kate second. You in the United States: realize that I'm bearing the weight of the stereotypes of all you, taking one (or a lot) for the team.

As I tuck my mosquito net around my bed before flipping off my flashlight each night, I think of the barriers I'm breaking just by being here. Africa is not as bad or as good as it appears from afar. Neither is the United States after seeing it from the other side of the world. Living in a combination of both cultures, I feel I'm constantly annihilating assumptions: I can bathe in a bucket. Development is not always a step in the right direction. I am accomplishing something by being here. Everyday as the white towel I use to wipe my face turns black with dirt, I think of the naked table on which I took notes for my first class. The director was right. He is training soldiers.

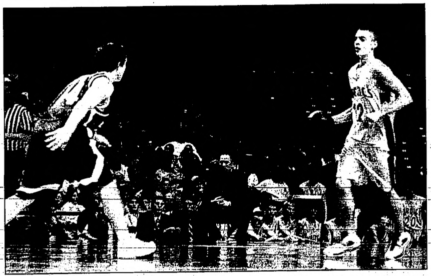
The TIMES



Head coach Jake Rantanen of Marshall County Central was perched on the elevated Williams Arena court as he watched the Nordics' Dustin Monsebroten bring the ball up the floor against Matt Gangelhoff of Sleepy Eye St. Mary's during Wednesday quarterfinal play at the 2005 Minnesota Class A boys state high school basketball tournament in Minneapolis. Monsebroten and Gangelhoff are the career scoring leaders at the two schools. The Nordics outlasted the Knights 64-62 in two overtimes.

Nordics' bid for third falls short

■ Cass Lake-Bena wins Class A trophy

Marshall County Central had an opportunity to put Cass Lake-Bena in a big hole early, but the Panthers clawed their way out of trouble and went on to beat the Nordics 69-60 in the third place game at the 2005 Minnesota Class A boys high school basketball tournament.

The Saturday morning game at Concordia University in St. Paul drew a large Marshall County Central fan following, and they had plenty to cheer about when the Nordics had a 7-0 lead out of the gate.

Cass Lake-Bena managed to trim the difference to 16-13 by the end of the first quarter, but the Section 6A champions found themselves down nine, 22-13, two minutes into the second quarter.

That's when two Tyler Blazejewski fouls on the same play changed the complexion of the game. The 6-2 Marshall County Central senior was whistled for his second infraction, and out of frustration slammed the ball to the floor, producing a technical.

"Tyler was just mad at himself and he showed his frustration," explained Marshall County Central coach Jake Rantanen. "He knows he made a mistake, and he feels bad. But those things happen."

Blazejewski and Andrew Johnson formed a strong inside duo for the Nordics, but with half of that combination on the bench, Marshall County took a hit both on offense and defense. "We started getting beat on the boards, especially on the offensive end," pointed out Rantanen.

Cass Lake-Bena finished the half with a 22-4 run that turned the nine-point deficit into a nine-point lead, 35-26.

Just like they did in quarterfinal win over Sleepy Eye St. Mary's and a semifinal loss to Russell-Tyler-Ruthton, the Nordics staged a second half comeback, pulling within 41-39 on a third quarter Dustin Monsebroten basket.

However, the Panthers met the challenge and carried a 53-48 lead into the final period.

"Cass Lake-Bena has a great basketball team," said Rantanen. "After falling behind, we came back, but we could never get over the hump. We stayed right with them, but we couldn't get the lead back."

Jay Maurstad had an eye-opening 37-point morning for the Nordics. Monsebroten had another double-figure game in assists with 10 and Johnson pulled down 13 rebounds.

"Jay had an excellent game," confirmed Rantanen. "Dustin maybe didn't score as much as he would like, but he did a great job setting up his teammate with his passing."

Cass Lake-Bena performances included a 17-point, 10-rebound double-double for 6-5 senior Byron Ninham and 17 points by 6-1 senior Bill Brown. The Panthers also got double digit scoring from Brady Fairbanks with 15 points and Anthony Robinson with 11.

Marshall County Central had a 43 percent 25-for-58 shooting performance from the field and a 3-for-6 free throw game. Cass Lake-Bena turned in a 37 percent 24-for-65 shooting figure from the floor and went 16-for-25 at the line. The Nordics eventually wound up with a 42-41 rebound edge, but they also had twice as many turnovers as the Panthers, 18-9. The Panthers scored 22 points off those turnovers and had 22 second-chance points - numbers that added up to a nine-point scoreboard difference at the end.

Cass Lake-Bena ended the year 25-7.

The Nordics finished 22-10 and had the satisfaction of not only reaching the state tournament for the first time, but the knowledge that they fit in nicely with the rest of the Class A field. A first round win meant a full three-game tournament run, enabling the team and the fans to fully enjoy the benefits of winning a Section 8A title.

"It was a great experience for our kids," said Rantanen. "They'll have memories for the rest of their lives. "We got to play in some of the best facilities in the state: the Ralph Engelstad Arena (in Thief River Falls), University of Minnesota-Crookston, Williams Arena and Target Center. That was special right there."

The large turnout of purple-and-gold clad Newfolden fans added to the excitement for the players and coaches, according to Rantanen. "Our fans were unbelievable," he said. "They were part of the reason we were able to comeback in the games like we did. Our kids fed off their enthusiasm and support."

Even though they lost two of their three state tournament starts, Rantanen liked how the Nordics stacked up against a strong tournament field. "We showed we belonged," he said. "We gave a good account of ourselves and Section 8A. I think it says a lot for our section. Any of six teams could have made in from 8A, and I think they all would have done well at state."

R-T-R holds off MCC comeback

Guard Dustin Monsebroten of Marshall County Central was airborne when he passed the ball off between Sleepy Eye St. Mary's defenders Andrew Woitas (left) and Alan Woitas during the Minnesota Class A boys state high school basketball tournament quarterfinal game at Williams Arena in Minneapolis. The Nordics won 64-62 in two overtimes.

Five final-minute free throws secured a 52-44 Russell-Tyler-Ruthton win over Marshall County Central in the Friday afternoon semifinals of the 2005 Minnesota Class A boys state high school basketball tournament at the Target Center in Minneapolis.

The Knights' stretch run foul shooting put an end to a furious rally by the Nordics, who chopped a 16-point, 40-24 deficit at the end of the third quarter to a one-basket difference with 59 seconds remaining.

A drive by Dustin Monsebroten pulled Marshall County Central within 47-44 heading into the last minute of play. Moments later his reverse lay-up amid base line traffic that could have made it a one-point game rolled off the rim.

Backed into a must-foul situation at that point, the Nordics watched as the Knights wrapped up the win on free throws by Brett Newton (2) with 43.7 seconds left; Travis Schultz (1) with 16.2 seconds on the clock; and Newton (2), again, with 11.0 seconds showing.

Russell-Tyler-Ruthon, featuring three starters back from a 2004 state championship team, took a 27-3 record into the Saturday finals against Rusford-Peterson, a 58-40 winner over Cass Lake-Bena in the first half of the semifinal doubleheader. Marshall County Central, making its first state tournament appearance, fell to 22-9 and drew a Saturday morning third place game match-up with the Panthers.

While the loss was disappointing, the never-say-die effort will be remembered as one of the Nordics' tournament highlights, according to Marshall County Central coach Jake Rantanen. "I'm so proud of the kids," he said. "To be down 16 to the defending state champions and not give up is really something. We proved we can play with anybody in the state."

Russell-Tyler-Ruthton scored four points at the free throw line in the final seven seconds of the opening quarter – the last two by Newton with no time remaining following a Marshall County Central turnover – to give the Knights an 11-7 edge at the first horn.

"We missed some shots around the basket early in the game that we would normally make," noted Rantanen.

The lead changed hands six times in the second quarter after three straight Dustin Monsebroten assists set up a basket underneath by Tyler Blazejewski, a fast break lay-up for Jay Maurstad and a three-point play by Maurstad to put the Nordics in front for the first time, 14-13, with 4:44 remaining.

The last Marshall County Central lead came on a 3-pointer from the wing by Maurstad that made it 19-17 with 3:20 left in the half.

Another Russell-Tyler-Ruthton mini-run put the Knights up 24-19 at intermission as Matt Hook hit a 3-pointer, Schultz scored from underneath and Alex Skjong converted a Marshall County Central turnover into a basket from the paint with 22.2 seconds to play.

"Even though we gave up those points right at the end of the half, we were playing well," offered Rantanen.

When Maurstad opened the third quarter with a 3-pointer, the Nordics were within 24-22 and poised to challenge the Knights for a full 32 minutes.

Instead, Marshall County Central went the next seven minutes without a point. The Nordics were down 37-22 before Maurstad scored on a fast break lay-up with 55 seconds left in the third quarter.

"They (Knights) increased their defensive pressure, and it looked like we started to wear down," explained Rantanen after seeing his team out-scored 16-5 in the third quarter.

However, the Nordics were not done. They opened the final period with an 11-0 surge and were within 40-35 after a long jumper by Monsebroten with 3:36 still on the clock.

Russell-Tyler-Ruthton checked the Marshall County Central rally with a drive by Kyle Minett and a fast break dunk by Schultz to rebuild a 44-35 edge with 2:53 remaining.

It was 47-41 before the Nordics' Andrew Johnson made a free throw with 68 seconds left and Monsebroten came up with his basket that made it a three-point game leading up to the Knights' free throws at the end.

Maurstad scored 23 points and Monsebroten had a 12-point, 10-assist double-double.

Johnson's normally aggressive play around the basket was stymied after the 6-5 senior picked up his third foul with 2 1/2 minutes left in the first half. He played the entire second half, but wasn't a shot-blocking and rebounding force like he had been in sectional play and in a first round state tournament win over Sleepy Eye St. Mary's. "He couldn't challenge anything," acknowledged Rantanen.

Russell-Tyler-Ruthton got a combined 25 points from Minett (14) and Newton (11), a pair of junior guards, and a 9-point, 10-rebound game from the 6-3 Schultz.

Marshall County Central was 17

Northland baseball team has a 1-4 trip

A March 14-18 spring training trip to Cocoa Beach, Fla., for the 2005 Northland Community and Technical College baseball team resulted in a win, four losses and three rain-outs for the Steve Gust-coached Pioneers.

It started with a first-game rain-out Monday that stopped play in the fourth inning with Massasoit (Mass.) leading Northland 3-2.

A second game that day was played, with the Pioneers losing to North Iowa 18-2.

The lone Northland win came Tuesday when a game-winning RBI single by Stacy Wiseth (TRF) capped a three-run sixth inning that carried the Pioneers past Alfred State (N.Y.) 5-4. Justin Moran (Winger) was the winning pitcher in relief after four solid innings by starter Adam Violette (Red Lake Falls). The Pioneers scored two runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth for the victory.

Toronto Academy (Canada) was a 5-4 Wednesday winner over Northland.

A pair of Thursday games were rained out.

Northland's trip ended with Friday losses to College of Morris (S.C.) 10-6 and North Iowa 11-0.

"The trip went well," [illegible] Gust. "We learned a lot about our team. We faced some strong teams. We didn't win as many games as we maybe would have liked, but it was a great learning experience."

Soccer program growth to include 3-4-year-olds

Thief River Falls Soccer Association has announced plans to sponsor a Mini-Kicks program for 3 and 4-year-olds during the month of June.

Players will practice and play Wednesday evenings.

Practices will focus on foot-eye coordination, dribbling, balance and fun.

The program will also introduce the concepts of teamwork and cooperation. Participants will play short games in a 3-on-3 format at the end of each practice.

Each session will be approximately one hour in length. A short break will precede the games.

Cost of the program is $25. Players will need a size 3 soccer ball and shin guards. It's recommended that, if possible, the ball be brightly colored to help add to the fun and learning experience.'

Each players will receive a soccer shirt or jersey.

Registration forms can be picked up at Ace Rental, and must be submitted, with payment, by April 1.

For additional information, contact Ruthie Forst at 964-5693.

Prowler Tennis Academy open to boys and girls, grades K-5

Designed for boys and girls in grades K-5, the Prowler Tennis Academy will be in operation June 13-July 27.

Lessons will be offered each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Cost of the six-week program is $70. Scholarships are available to players in financial need. All participants will receive a Prowler Tennis Academy shirt.

Registration will take place Monday, April 4, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Challenger Elementary School cafeteria.

Program director is Troy Hanestad, the Thief River Falls boys and girls head high school tennis coach.

Hanestad explained the summer youth program in a news release:

The Prowler Tennis Academy is looking for elementary students who possess a strong work ethic and positive attitude who would like to excel in tennis.

Students participating in the program will benefit from a) three lessons per week; b) a low player-to-coach ratio of 8:1 or better; c) experienced coaches with teaching backgrounds; d) an emphasis on fundamental skill development in a fun environment; e) development and reinforcement of positive character qualities.

For additional information contact Hanestad by calling 681-0464, or e-mail: prowlers@wiktel.com.

Bobcat Football Reunion is planned for July 23 at Oklee Community Center

Oklee High School Bobcat Football Reunion is scheduled Saturday, July 23, at the Oklee Community Center.

Alumni of the Bobcat football era that included many North Tri-County Conference championship and state playoff teams have been putting the event together to allow former athletes to gather and reminisce about the school's football history.

The event is being sponsored by former coaches, players, cheerleaders, managers and community leaders from Oklee. No formal invitations have been sent, according to organizers, but everyone is encouraged to spread the word and are invited to attend.

Registration will start at 3 p.m. A short program is planned for 5 o'clock, followed by a supper at 5:30 and a street dance at 8:30 p.m.

Memorabilia and other items will be on display.

Organizers hope to attract players and others associated with teams from the 1950s, '60s, '70s, '80s and '90s.

Area softball officials meetings set

Crookston and Fosston will be sites for area ASA USA Softball and Minnesota Sports Federation-sponsored umpire certification clinics for 2005.

The Crookston clinic will be held today (March 23) at Irishman Shanty's. The Fosston clinic will be held Tuesday, May 31, at the Fosston Civic Center. Both clinics will start at 7:30 p.m.

The clinics are designed to benefit both the new and veteran umpires through interpretational of rules and regulations by an ASA USA softball staff member. Charlie Johnson will be the instructor at both Crookston and Fosston.

Clinics are designed to last approximately 1-hour, 15-minutes.

There is no cost to attend the clinic. Umpires may register with ASA USA Softball when they attend the clinic sessions.

The ASA USA-MSF umpire program contracts approximately 1,500 officials each year. It is the world's largest officiating fraternity and provides a great source of extra income during the summer months, according to the organization's newsletter.

Applications opened for DNR youth job program

Applications are being accepted for the Minnesota Conservation Corps summer youth program. Seventy-five corps member positions are open for youth ages 15 to 18. Youth will be based for eight weeks at a residential program site in St. Croix State Park. They will travel in crews, led by staff members, to various state and federal parklands to camp out and work on conservation projects.

The outdoor residential nature of MCC provides a unique opportunity for youth to develop and strengthen leadership skills, work ethic, camping skills, and gain an understanding and appreciation for Minnesota's natural environment. Participants can expect to work hard on projects such as trail construction, erosion control, bridge and boardwalk building, and exotic species removal.

Corps members will also take part in an experience-based curriculum that addresses career development, environmental topics, education planning, and leadership and life skills development. On weekends, participants engage in outdoor activities such as canoe trips, wilderness hikes and high adventure challenges.

Corps members work 35 hours per week and earn $5.15 per hour. Applicants should enjoy working and living in a rustic outdoor environment. The summer conservation work program will run June 19 to Aug.13.

The MCC, which hires an equal number of males and females, encourages minority youth to apply. Up to 15 deaf and hard-of-hearing youth, who will work with deaf staff and trained sign language interpreters, will also be hired.

Applications are available from the Minnesota Conservation Corps, 1200 Warner Road, St. Paul, MN 55106, by calling 651-772-2985 or e-mailing Pete.Bonk@conservationcorps.org.

Applications and information are also available at www.conservationcorps.org.

Applications are due in the St. Paul office by April 22.

DNR QUESTIONS

Q: After a long winter, Minnesota's lakes, rivers, ditches, ravines and wetlands are in need of a good cleaning to remove accumulated garbage. Does the DNR have a program where people can volunteer to help clean public waters, and if so, what does it involve?

A: The DNR's Adopt-A-River Program helps volunteers organize their own cleanup by providing a free "how-to" kit, bags and gloves, recognition for their effort, and other assistance as needed. An annual cleanup is required, and many people decide to do cleanups several times per year. Although adopting does not give property rights to those who adopt stretches of a river, it does help develop a sense of responsibility and participation in the welfare of their community and public waters. Since 1989, there have been nearly 2,000 clean ups involving about 62,000 volunteers, who have removed 4.6 million pounds of rubbish from 7,000 miles of shoreline. For more information visit the DNR's Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us/adoptriver/index.html.

Sturgeon study cooperation

Rainy River and Lake of the Woods are home to one of the few remaining lake sturgeon populations in northwestern Minnesota. After decades of low abundance, a recent tagging study by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources provides further evidence that sturgeon abundance is on the rise in this system.

The 2004 study was a cooperative effort among sturgeon anglers, Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, Rainy River First Nations and the Minnesota DNR. Sampling was done on both sides of the international border.

A total of 1,739 sturgeon were tagged from April 1 to May 31, 2004, to learn more about the current status of the fishery.

This study would not have been possible without the help of sturgeon anglers, who provided more than half of the fish that were tagged. Gov. Tim Pawlenty even got in on the fun, tagging a fish during the 2004 governor's fishing opener on Lake of the Woods.

Mark-recapture studies such as this are used to estimate the number of individuals in a population by comparing the number of fish recaptured with the number of fish marked initially.

A total of 659 fish were captured and examined for tags from June 22 to Sept. 2, 2004. Eight of those examined were tagged. This provides a population estimate of 59,050 lake sturgeon. A study done by the OMNR in 1990 estimated the population at 6,500 fish. This confirms what anglers have been seeing and DNR test nets have shown; sturgeon abundance is increasing in the Rainy River and Lake of the Woods.

The tagging study provided additional information that can be used to gauge the health of the fishery and measure progress towards recovery. Fin rays were collected from more than 500 fish to determine ages. The age structure of the sample suggests that natural reproduction began improving in about 1970 and has been very consistent since then.

However, healthy populations should have fish up to age 70 in the population. The oldest fish sampled in 2004 was 38. Similarly, there are few big fish (mature females) in the population. Only 5 percent of those sampled were greater than 55 inches, which is about the size female sturgeon start reproducing. This shows that while abundance is improving, the population still has a way to go to reach its full potential.

"The results of this study provide reasons for cautious optimism for the future of sturgeon and sturgeon fishing in Rainy River and Lake of the Woods," said Kevin Peterson, International Falls area fisheries manager. "If the we keep harvests at sustainable levels and protect their habitat, sturgeon should continue their recovery. Sturgeon fishing will continue improving and anglers will encounter more large fish as the population of fish over 55 inches expands."

Sturgeon harvest in 2004 was estimated at 5,112 pounds, which was below the target level of 7,600 pounds. However, sturgeon harvest the previous year (before regulations were changed) was approximately 20,000 pounds, which is not sustainable.

Additional monitoring is planned for 2005. Creel surveys will provide information on angling effort and fish harvest. Some additional tagging may be done on the lower river. Follow-up studies will evaluate tag loss and handling mortality. These studies will become part of the long-term monitoring program to assess the health of sturgeon stocks in Rainy River and Lake of the Woods. Sturgeon management has come a long way since the fish were dried and used to stoke the boilers of steamships in the 1800s. Much work remains to be done.

"It's not a coincidence that as the water quality of the Rainy River improved, sturgeon began to increase," Peterson said.

"Cleaner water and revitalized spawning habitat improved conditions for sturgeon as well as for those who live and recreate on the Rainy River," Peterson said. "The progress shows that good things happen when people work together to protect and improve natural resources."

Keep Your Cats Indoors is poster contest theme

With spring just around the corner, the first killdeer of the season was reported on Feb. 24, according to the Minnesota Ornithologists' Union birding hotline. Other arriving migrants reported recently include greater white-fronted goose, great blue heron, northern harrier, sandhill crane, ring-billed gull and both rusty and red-winged blackbirds.

Resident birds and those returning to Minnesota from their southern wintering grounds will soon be ready to nest. In spring and early summer, birds, their eggs and hatchlings are vulnerable to becoming a meal for predators.

One of America's most efficient predators is the domestic cat, which if allowed outdoors might kill birds and small mammals, even if the cat is well fed by humans.

Every year the lives of free-roaming cats are cut short when they are run over by cars, attacked by other animals, contract diseases, pick up parasites, or are poisoned or harmed by humans, according to Andrea Lee Lambrecht, of the Cats Indoors Minnesota Project. Her organization is encouraging people to keep their cat indoors, for the cat's safety as well as for the sake of birds and wildlife on which cats prey.

To promote the idea, a "Keep Your Cat Indoors" poster contest, open to children ages 6-12, is underway. Entries must arrive at a regional Department of Natural Resources Nongame Wildlife offices by April 8. State winners will be announced on April 22, Earth Day.

Prizes will include bird/wildlife books, plush birds that sing and Minnesota Ornithologists' Union bird checklists. The three top state winners will also receive Nikon binoculars. The Ornithologists' Union and the DNR Nongame Wildlife Program are among the organizations that endorse and fund the Cats Indoors campaign.

Contest guidelines are posted on the Minnesota DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

DNR hunter education: a success

Hunting fatalities and injuries continue to decrease in Minnesota thanks to a successful hunter safety education program celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

"Minnesota's hunting accident rates have dropped significantly since the safety education program became law in 1955," said Capt. Mike Hammer, safety program coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Today anyone born after December 31, 1979, must complete a hunter safety education program before being allowed to buy a hunting license.

Since 1994, Minnesota has averaged about 35 non fatal hunting accidents and less than two fatalities per year. Those numbers are dramatically lower than the 1960s when Minnesota averaged 110 non fatal injuries and about 14 fatalities per year.

"This program has been successful in making hunting a safer sport in Minnesota," said DNR Chief Conservation Officer Col Mike Hamm. "Better education has led to a sharp decrease in accidents. One fatality is too many. Our goal is to have many consecutive years like 1998 and 2004 when there were no fatalities during small game, big game, waterfowl, wild turkey and prairie chicken hunting seasons."

About 6,000 volunteer instructors administer hunter safety education programs around the state. The instructors are trained at workshops led by DNR recreational safety officers where they learn teaching and training methods and general administrative procedures.

Instructors receive a DNR volunteer procedure manual and must teach of course every two years to maintain their certification.

"The volunteer instructors are the backbone of the program," Hammer said. "They deserve all the credit. The volunteers teach more than 23,000 students each year."

Hammer said an interesting trend is the number of women who are becoming instructors. Currently, about 400 of the 6,000 instructors are women.

"More and more women are becoming involved in hunting and that trend is reflected in the increasing number of women instructors," Hammer said.

Classes, available to youths at least 11-years-old as well as adults, generally have more than one instructor who can discuss his or her area of expertise. This "team training" approach is designed to make teaching and attending the four hour course more interesting. Most classes have seven to eight instructors.

The firearms safety course covers safe gun handling, wildlife management, wildlife identification, ethics, survival, first aid and game care. Since 1955, nearly 1 million students have been certified.

The DNR is always looking for experienced hunters to pass on the tradition of hunting safety and responsibility to the next generation. People interested in becoming an instructor should call 1-800-366-8917 or visit the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota doesn't get above zero in the mornings until the sun gets in gear and helps warm things up a bit. We were talking that it was like this in 1941 when March had so much cold and then the big storm. It would be nice if we could have the cold weather in March and no frost in May. The days go by so quickly or I go so slowly that it's impossible for me to catch up on all the work I have relegated to myself to finish before it will warm up outdoors enough to paint the foundations. At this time, they are covered with snow.

In spite of the many changes we had this past week, Judy made her trips as usual. Sunday after church, accompanied by her friend June Soverson, she drove to Strandquist and enjoyed the smorgasbord at Irene's Cafe. Again, on Tuesday, they went for "The Dumplings", as they are now known. But the weather kept Judy Kleinvachter's guests at her house to only June and Kari Kasprowicz. Most of us stayed in contact with each other by telephone and waited for someone else to bring the mail and paper to the house.

Most churches in the valley are getting ready for Easter. Some are practicing for a program that will be held next week in a union service. We'll see you there.

I read about the death of some birds, many which have been visiting my bird feed before the snow became so deep that I couldn't fill it again. The article read that they could become sick from eating on the ground under the feeder. Most of those birds have it all planned how to feed themselves, they seem to take turns to stand in the troughs on each side of the feeder and kick and scratch the sunflower seeds out of the troughs to the ground. Not knowing very much about cleanliness and not like dogs that know what a neighbor's lawn is for, not only sunflower seeds hit the ground. I really can't feel responsible for their illness and the only dead ones around here are those who met their untimely demise when they hit the windows or that yellow cat that tried to catch them in the hedge.

Was that water tower leak really a story?

He called only because the ice hanging from the water tower had created some interesting shapes. Naturally, the call generated some more questions, such as "Why was there ice hanging from the water tower?"

I'm often asked how we develop stories…where we get our ideas for stories.

Sometimes, stories are generated by other stories. For example, a caller might chose to take the offensive, or be offensive, depending on your point of view, and mention that a similar story appeared in the newspaper, and demand to know why we couldn't print their news story. I usually respond that I don't have a problem with printing their story. There are times, however, when stories do run their course, and re-printing the same information over and over is a waste of ink. In any event, we receive tips about stories from many different sources. Sometimes, we come up with our own story ideas. Sometimes, story ideas are suggested by the topics we come in contact with at public meetings and hearings. And, of course, those meetings are stories, too. Many times, story ideas come from you - our readers.

This may be a bit off the topic, but it never hurts to ask if we would run a certain story. I'm generally a soft touch.

The March 9 inquiry about ice hanging from the water tower in Middle River (and the caller was very polite) is a good example of how stories develop. I remember an instructor who encouraged us to think of stories as balls of yarn - keep pulling on the string to get at the story. In the story about ice hanging from the water tower, the ice was caused when a leak developed in the water tower. Why did a leak develop? We're all aware of the cause and effect relationship between freezing and thawing - specifically what it does to our streets and highways. Well, the welcome thaw and then unwelcome freeze caused ice to shift, and this shifting damaged a valve.

Still more questions dogged our thoughts. Well, if the water leaked out or had to be drained out of the tower to repair the leak, were residents left without water? Several calls were made, and many people generously took time in their day to answer our many questions. To make a long story short, residents of Middle River were never left without water or fire protection. The only ill effect was low water pressure.

So, in view of the fact that very few people were inconvenienced, you might wonder, is this a "news" story? Well, the ice did make for some interesting shapes; and, of course, if you show the ice, then you have to explain how it happened. And quite simply, that's how an ice sculpture became a news story. We welcome story suggestions from you, our readers, as well. You never know, it might make a very interesting story.

Addresses to use and file away

Quite frequently, we are asked for the addresses of our legislators. Many important issues come up during a year that can have an impact on local residents. We hope that by providing this information, citizens will be able to provide our legislative leaders with the kind of input that helps them do the job they were elected to perform.

Some advice: Be courteous. Tell who you are and what you're writing about and why. Be specific.

Let's bring an annual festival to Thief River Falls

Sometime ago, Dave Hill editorialized on how important it is to promote our fair city. In the last few years, due for the most part to a changing economy, we seem to be in the doldrums.

Our retail market seems to be going downhill, which results in the loss of many owners and managers who at one time kept our downtown alive. Gone are the likes of Bill LaFave, L.B. Hartz, Bill Dahlquist, Gust Frahm, Ward Nichols, Roy Oen, Cliff Bjorkman, Don "Coast to Coast" Olson, Don "KTRF" Olson, Jim Parkins, Sid Lieberman and many others. They were "movers and shakers," who worked tirelessly to keep our community alive. We had an active Chamber of Commerce with a separate retail committee that dreamed up promotions, like Uff Da Days and Moonlight Madness, to keep people coming to town. And don't forget "the drawings"!

Today, we have the Great American Block Party, which is a one-night celebration geared toward the young crowd. Our Pennington County Fair is successful and draws large crowds. Other than that, we don't have an annual event that identifies with our town. Neighboring communities have Ox Cart Days, Paul Bunyan Days, Catfish Days, Detroit Lakes Water Carnival, Middle River Goose Festival, Grygla Fall Festival and so on.

At one time, perhaps five decades ago, we had a very active Jaycee chapter in Thief River Falls. We had a fairly large membership of energetic young fellows. I recall some of our projects back then. We built garbage can racks and sold them to homeowners to hold their galvanized garbage cans that were used in those days. We built sandboxes for kids. We would build the sandboxes, deliver them to those who bought them and fill them with sand for the kids. We built a boat dock, which was located near the Third Street bridge. It was large enough to accommodate several boats and was used for some time. The Jaycees also built a dunking stand, which got lot of use for several years. Eng Norbeck, a sort of mechanical genius from the Northern Chevrolet garage, came up with the design. It got a lot of use at the county fair and other events and might still be in use today.

Those Jaycees sponsored some activities on the Fourth of July for a couple of years. Then they got into a bigger celebration called the Jaycee Aquacade, a weekend event named by yours truly. The Aquacade did not have a long run but was enjoyed by many during its short life.

President Glenn Peterson led the 1958-59 Jaycees, which put on a real extravaganza in August of that year. There was a whole afternoon of activities at Tindolph Park. Among the events were boat races, a horseshoe contest, a band concert, a boat parade, a water ski show, swimming and diving events, aqua clown acts and ski jumping. The Jaycees built their own ski jump, which was used in the jumping competition. It was made out of jack-pine lumber and was adjustable from 3 to 11 feet. I don't recall who came up with the design. It was used for a year or two until someone advised against its further use lest someone got injured and a lawsuit ensued.

The Jaycee Aquacade provided some good wholesome summer entertainment on the river. I can't think of any organized summer festival that our town has sponsored since the days of the Jaycee Aquacade. But to say we have no "movers and shakers" left in our community would be an injustice to a good number of people. One has only to look back over the last year or so to see the results of some very dedicated volunteers.

We have had the attractive refurbishing of the Lincoln High School auditorium. That required many hours of planning by several people who must have spent hours choosing materials and color schemes for redecoration, negotiating with contractors who performed the work, and raising funds from throughout the community to cover the cost of that beautiful project – a formidable undertaking.

Then we had the well-attended All-School Reunion in 2004. That committee numbered only around 20 people at the most. When you think about all the functions it had during that celebration, you know those volunteers put in a lot of hours to make that celebration a huge success.

Last but not least was the highly successful World Junior Hockey Championship that showcased our town and our beautiful new hockey facility. To pull off that affair required dozens of dedicated volunteers working long hours.

Now, if we could get some of those talented people to direct some of their energy into coming up with an annual festival to bring people to our town.

What's the measure of society's morality?

What a heart-wrenching weekend.

First I learned that Jessica Lunsford's body had been found barely 150 yards away from her home in Florida. I saw pictures of the ugly, little man who is accused of molesting and killing her, looking like a troll in his orange jumpsuit, wearing his "innocent face" into the courtroom and dragging his chains behind him. Looking at him, it was nearly impossible to keep from feeling hatred.

Then came the Northern Watch, with news of another person charged with being a child molester, this one right here at home. Is this another killer, a killer of children's innocence, trust and faith? What is the matter? Why are the monsters crawling from the muck and molesting our children?

Lunsford's accused murderer, John Couey, is a 46-year-old man who looks 30 years older than his age and is a known drug user. The sheriff who is in charge of the case called Couey a "crack head," a "druggie" and a "piece of trash."

At the time of his arrest, Couey was on probation. His criminal record included 24 arrests for burglary, as well as carrying a concealed weapon and indecent exposure. During a burglary in 1978, he grabbed a girl in her bedroom and kissed her. At that time, he was sentenced to 10 years in prison, but was paroled after two years. In 1991, he was arrested on a charge of fondling a child under the age of 16. It isn't known what happened to that charge. WHY WASN'T HE IN PRISON? Sentenced to 10 years and serves two, what is going on?

The local man accused of first-degree criminal sexual conduct (with more charges pending) is Anthony Perfecto. He is accused of sexual contact with a boy under the age of five while he was babysitting the boy. He may also have had contact with other children, so other charges are pending.

According to the story in the Northern Watch, Perfecto had a 2004 felony conviction for second-degree criminal sexual conduct on Christmas Day, 2003, when he inappropriately touched a female under the age of 10. He was sentenced for that charge in May 2004 (which was after the current alleged incidents), given a 25-year stay of imposition and was ordered to serve 25 years of supervised probation. He served 93 days (93 days for 25 years?) in jail for that offense and was to register as a sexual offender.

How many times do we have to hear this stuff? Over and over, we hear of sexual molestations and murders of children and in nearly all of them, the perpetrator is a known offender, has probably been in prison for similar offenses and is supposed to be under supervision.

It looks to me like our loved ones aren't being protected at all. What can we do? Would it help to write to our legislators? What about law enforcement and the legal system, can more be done there? Too much plea bargaining? Is it who we are electing? Is it that we need more employees in these areas? Not enough jail space? Do we need to stand up and raise a fuss and yell for more funding?

The media can play a big role in this, too. Why aren't we showing pictures of these offenders in our newspapers and on television and having the names of offenders published and broadcast? Wouldn't that help? One offense, one single offense, and we want to see their faces and know who they are, and not just one time, but often. To heck with whether or not we are violating their privacy rights. They gave those up when they committed the crime.

Maybe we should take stock of our environment and take a look at television shows and music videos, the words in the songs, those video games and what kind of clothes people are wearing anyway? Wasn't it in the '60s that we were told to "do our own thing" and "let it all hang out"? Did anybody remember to say that wasn't such a good idea? I guess I wonder what happened to morals and values and things like church, God, right and wrong, good and bad and decency.

It seems to me that the abuse of loved ones, especially those who are so innocent and dependent on us, is an indication of a lack in our society and we all need to do something about it. If our society is in such a state that it allows persons to act out like this against our little innocents, we are truly in trouble. Our own Hubert Humphrey said it well when he said, "It was once said that the moral test of government is how that government treats those who are in the dawn of life, the children; those who are in the twilight of life, the elderly; and those who are in the shadows of life, the sick, the needy and the handicapped." And how are we doing on that test?

LETTERS

Return military mom's magnets

To the Editor:

This letter is for the person who made the decision to steal the two magnets from my van while it was parked in the Hugo's parking lot on the afternoon of Monday, March 14.

One of the magnets was yellow with the inscription "KEEP MY SON SAFE" and the other had "LAND OF THE FREE BECAUSE OF THE BRAVE" set in desert camouflage. As a proud parent of a MARINE who has previously served one tour of duty in Iraq and is tentatively scheduled to return for another in August, these magnets have a significance for me that the thief could not begin to understand. Only another parent could display the "KEEP MY SON SAFE," and I know that no one who has experienced the mixture of pride and fear that accompanies having a child in combat duty would stoop so low.

If your conscience is bothering you and you would like to sleep better at night, please return them to me. You can drop the magnets off at the Law Enforcement Center or The Times office with no questions asked.

Sincerely,
Maria Srnsky
Thief River Falls

Support veteran health care

To the Editor and good citizens of this area:

Most of the veterans of World War II are now in their 80s, the Korean War veterans are in their 70s, and wounded people are coming home from Afghanistan and Iraq. All of these people need a strong and well-funded Veterans Administration. In the face of all of this, we are seeing veterans' benefits being cut to save money.

You can help. The squeaking wheel does get the grease and political power does come from numbers. If you are a [illegible] individual, make your voice heard. Write your congressmen and ask them to assure adequate health care for the men and women who [illegible] put in harm's way. [illegible]

Out in Society

From The Thief River Falls Times
March 20, 1930

St. Patrick Party

"The club rooms of the Sons of Norway hall were attractively decorated in a St. Patrick motif at the party given Monday evening by the Misses Clenora Urdahl, Ruth Samuelson, Lillian and Rose Erickson, Hilda Nakken, and Esther Ness. The evening was spent playing games, whist and dancing. A midnight supper was served by the hostesses. Among those present were Mesdames Ralph Aasland, Richard Joringdahl, Nobel Urdahl, and Harry Sullivan; and the Misses Olive Olson, Mable Stokke, Edna Alexander, Merretta Dudley, Lily Roberts, Inger Norbeck, Adeline Solmonson, Delma Dols, Belle Sagmoen, Jessie Joyce, Esther Crown, Marjorie Nicholson and Lucille Rayson."

B Sharp Music Club Gives St. Patrick Party Monday

"At the studio of Mrs. Thelma Holm Erickson Monday evening, a St. Patrick party was given by the members of the B Sharp Music club. Following a short business meeting and a piano solo by Sanford Lee, the evening was spent playing games. Refreshments were served at 10 o'clock. Those present were Lois Oden, Virginia Quale, Lorraine Rayson, Violet Rhodegaard, Sheila Angell, Laura Nelson, Ruth Bessler, Karen Langseth, Norma Batchelder, Palma Langseth, Luverne Rolland and Sanford Lee."

St. Hilaire
Birthday Party

"A party was given Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Carl Pearson in honor of the eighth birthday anniversary of her son, Erdmann. The hours were spent playing games and the honor guest received many lovely presents from his friends. At the close of the afternoon lunch was served. The guests were Rachael Skatrude, Roger Roy, Stanley Johnson, Robert Rosendahl and Billy Winters."

Organize Boy Scouts Here

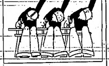
"A meeting was held in the school house Saturday evening and a Boy Scout troop organized. Dr. Froehlich and son Clifford, W. E. Dahlquist and son Meis, and W. H. Mann of Thief River Falls were present and assisted with the work. Rev. O. O. Bjorgan was elected Scoutmaster and Edgar Berhow, assistant Scoutmaster. As soon as the boys have all signed up, we will give a complete list of those enrolled.

"Several mothers of the boys, who are interested, served lunch after the meeting in the cooking room, to all those present. A troop committee consisting of H. Frodahl, Carl Christenson, and A. Josephson was also formed."



Getting Elbow Room To Write A Test

High School Progress
Getting Elbow Room to Write a Test

"A little practice as a contortionist would be very handy for writing tests in class rooms. The students used to complain because they were stiff after physical training. Now they moan after each examination. The school is so crowded and classes so large that the system of movable chairs is very inconvenient. But what can be done about it? With the present lack of room, a system of fixed desks with proper aisle space would be impossible. However, sooner or later the question of new quarters for the growing enrollment in the school must be faced. As it would be very difficult to arrange the classes so that a new system of chairs could be installed in the classrooms, it would seem that a new building would be the logical solution.

"While this is being discussed and planned, the students suffer (but not in silence). It is very convenient for the unfortunate pupil who is unprepared to have his neighbor's paper in front of his eyes but such a practice encourages cheating and deceit. Very few pupils would deliberately look at another person's paper for the purpose of cheating. But when such a thing happens unintentionally can the teacher be blamed for suspecting dishonesty? The present method of teaching involves frequent objective tests which are very easy to copy from another paper. The things that are urgently needed are bigger classrooms and more modern equipment."

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER — MARCH 23, 1905
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

Serious Charges Made Against Sam Haislet
Red Lake Falls Editor Has Secured a Little Graft, It Would Appear

"To the Editor of the NEWS: It is with patience that the people of the northern part of the county have waited for the RED LAKE FALLS GAZETTE to offer some good reason why the county seat should not be changed from Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls. One of the many reasons advanced by the people of Thief River Falls for the change, and it is an important one, is that there is a band of organized grafters at the county seat who have, in a systematic manner, been milking the county for some time. This is not denied. In fact, it is boasted of. The writer has heard the editor of the GAZETTE, Mr. Haislet, tell in the presence of others how a certain county official liked him so well that he showed him the bid of a certain party for doing some county work. This was but a few hours before the time set for the opening of the bids. Mr. Haislet told another party who put in a bid just a little lower and secured the work. For rendering this service, Mr. Haislet secured a portion of the profits.

"The above is a sample of the work that has been done in the county in the past, and Mr. Haislet, when he told the story gloated with pride over his accomplishment. It may be said that he talks too much, that he is a young man in age with no other cares than that of spending a rich father-in-law's surplus wealth, but that cannot be offered as an excuse. As a matter of fact, Mr. Haislet is one of the main supporters of Red Lake Falls, and is one of the managers of the campaign for Red Lake Falls. He is using all of his surplus wind in nonessential rantings and has turned his mud batteries upon every citizen of Thief River Falls who has the courage to say anything in favor of this city. That is the kind of a campaign he has mapped out for his town to follow, and his own glass house may fall before he gets through.
-- ONE WHO KNOWS"

Arrests are Made
Men Accused of Stealing Logs from Lumber Company are Arrested

"Upon the complaint of the East Grand Forks Lumber company, the Crookston Lumber company and the Thief River Falls Lumber company, as stated in the NEWS last week, warrants were issued for the arrest of John Loftus and John Peterson, two settlers on the eleven towns south of the Red Lake river. They are charged with stealing logs belonging to the lumber companies above named from the Red Lake river. They were brought to this city by Deputy Sheriff George Jarman and Judge Bishop set the trial for Friday, March 31. They were released upon their own recognizance. Warrants for the arrest of quite a number of other settlers will also be issued, the lumber companies having men employed to look over all settlers' building and where they find logs used are having the parties arrested.

"The lumber companies state that they do not desire to be hard upon any of the settlers, but they desire to put a stop to the taking of their logs out of the river and think that by commencing proceedings now that in the future their property will not be molested. The value of the logs that have been taken is estimated to be about $1,000. The settlers all claim that they did not think they were doing any harm, and each one says that he took the logs because everyone else was doing likewise. In many instances the logs were upon their land, having been floated up there during high water and what was on their land, they considered they owned."

An Orchestra to be Formed

"A number of people of this city are interested in the forming of an orchestra for this city and action upon the matter will be taken in a few days. Among those who will be members are Arnold Bjerkhoel, Bert Walker, Will and Carl Korstad, Bertil Backe, A. Hanson, and Mrs. Ham. An orchestra is badly needed here and it is to be hoped that one will be organized."

Nearly 100 Per Cent Now on Our Petition
County Seat Removal Petitions All Called In for Inspection and Examination.

"All of the county seat petitions were called in during the past week for examination and inspection. This does not mean that Thief River Falls has stopped circulating the petition by any means, for there are a large number of settlers living on the eleven towns who have not yet had an opportunity to sign it, and it is quite likely that most of the time allowed by law will be used before our petitions are presented. It is confidently expected that the petition will contain considerably over 100 per cent of the voters of Red Lake county, as shown by the last election. This large percentage can be accounted for by the fact that a light vote was cast at the recent election and also that a very large number of new settlers have come into the county, about eight hundred of them being in the eleven towns. The petitions have been examined and found to be in good shape and all have complied with the law.

"The petition now has over 2,100 names and, as only about 2,300 votes were cast in the county at the last election, it will thus be seen that we are near to the 100 per cent mark already. Attorney A. A. Miller of Crookston was up yesterday and looked the petitions over and gave legal advice to the committee."

Six Saloons and No Church

"GREENBUSH JOURNAL: Rev. Wilcox of the Methodist Episcopal church at Badger will hold divine services in Kukowski's hall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, the 21st and 22nd inst. It is Mr. Wilcox's intention to get a church started at that place and would like to see all those interested in the matter to turn out and hear him on the subject. He will spend a few days in town next week to call on you. Give him all the encouragement you can, as this is something we need bad. We have six saloons and not a church."

Teachers are Hired
School Board Engages a Number of Teachers for Next Year's Work

"The school board during the past week has engaged a number of the teachers for the coming year. Prof. McGinnis has been elected at a salary of $1,200 per year. Other teachers elected are as follows: Jennie C. Phillips at $70, Helen McGrath at $65, and Lida McDougal, Anna McGregor, Katharyn Coley, Eva St. John, Nellie Curran, Golda Hill, Marion Annand, May Toner and Florence J. Lansing at $50.

"Three of the old teachers, Misses Hannay, Kischlie and Taylor, have not made application for re-election, and it is understood that they have secured more acceptable positions elsewhere. Other applications have not as yet been acted upon."

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

School Board Votes Faculty Pay Increase

"The Thief River Falls board of education, at an adjourned session Monday evening, approved a salary increase for all faculty members averaging approximately nearly $200 a year for the coming school term.

"The cost to the school district of the increases was estimated by Superintendent W. G. Claffy at from $20,000 to $25,000, depending how many of the present faculty are replaced by new teachers. The staff was given until April 1 to indicate whether or not they plan to return next fall.

"The new scale ranges from $2,800 for a teacher with two years of college training and no experience, up to a maximum of $5,100 for a teacher with five years of college training and ten years or more experience."

Smiley Girl Badly Frozen on Sunday

"June Helgeland, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Helgeland of Smiley township, is in serious condition in Northwestern hospital, after having frozen her legs and hands late Saturday night.

"Earlier in the evening, June had been to a dance with friends, and on returning, she got out of the car on the highway, a half-mile or more from her home, the side road being blocked with snow.

"The temperature was 20 below zero at the time, and when she reached home her limbs were badly frozen. Her parents summoned a bobsled to take her to the highway, and she was rushed to the hospital. It was indicated that several weeks may elapse before it will be known how complete her recovery will be."

Cheese Output of Local Creamery Shows Large Gain

"The volume of milk received during February by the cheese-manufacturing department of the Thief River Falls co-operative creamery was almost double the quantity received in February 1954," G. S. Bergland, manager of the local plant, announced this week.

"In addition, he stated, the substantial total of 6,420 pounds of butter was churned, about the same as a year ago.

"Bergland reported that 1,079,295 pounds of milk were received last month, from which 97,598 pounds of cheese were manufactured, while in February 1954 the plant received 567,075 pounds of milk, from which 46,724 pounds of cheese were made.

"With higher price supports in effect in early 1954, the price paid for milk in February last year was 84 cents, compared to 77 cents last month."

Burglars Invade Vogle's Tavern at Highlanding

"Intruders late Monday night removed a padlock from the front door of Vogle's Tavern at Highlanding, and entered the place, taking coins out of a jukebox and four or five cartons of cigarets. They also stole some gasoline before leaving the premises. Sheriff Arthur Rambeck conducted an investigation Wednesday."

—Bishop Blunt of England lived up to his name when he advised Princess Margaret to give up her romance with a divorced man.

—It was an astute spectator of the passing scene who said that we all want to live longer, but none of us wish to grow older.

—Reporting on a girl being injured in an automobile accident, a California paper stated, "The area in which Miss Ford was injured is particularly scenic."

—Revised version: They now say that the modern girl is looking for a man who is tall, dark and has some.

—Bemidji and International Falls are in a hassle over which is the coldest spot in the nation in wintertime. There was no argument in the old days when Thief River Falls had a government weather reporting station.

—Our Badger Enterprise colleague tells about the fellow who named his three puppies, Poodle, Rover and Liberace. The last one was so named because he is the [illegible].

—You don't need to take our word for it, but Monday was supposed to be the first day of spring.

That the much maligned state legislature is taking care of the more [illegible] matters was demonstrated last week when it enacted a law [illegible] the sale of vodka.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

ST. HILAIRE, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA — MARCH 25, 1905

News Items

"The small boys succeeded in winning in a match bowling game last Tuesday evening.

"The village of Argyle, in Marshall county, is reported to have 74 cases of smallpox.

"The city council of Thief River Falls reduced the liquor license fee from $1,000 to $500 for the coming year.

"A carload of farm machinery, consisting of wagons, buggies, plows, drills, and harrows arrived last Tuesday at Leonard Holmes' machinery warehouse.

"Bregier & Lawrence of Red Lake Falls have rented the Hall building just south of the Hotel Markham and are putting in billiard and pool tables. It is understood that they will run a temperance billiard room.

"A. F. Lang has bought out the interest of Gust Nelson and has opened a restaurant in the rear of J. J. Soll's place. Mr. Lang has an enviable reputation as a cook and will do well.

"The Great Northern has a crew of men at Ives Station loading gravel and a train is hauling it to Red Lake Falls, where it is being used to prevent a land slide. It is thought that the new track will be finished and trains running that way inside of two weeks.

"The most important question in town at present is 'When will the river open?' The repairs at the big mill are all about done and everything will be in readiness to start in a few days or as soon as the ice clears from the river. This generally occurs about the 12th of April, but as this season appears early many hope for an early start. The mill will at once start a night and day crew, the men having all been hired and they will be here in a few days."

Trouble at Plummer

DISTRICT COURT
NINTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT

TO ALL PERSONS WITH A LEGAL INTEREST IN THE PARCELS OF REAL PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN THE FOLLOWING DELINQUENT TAX LIST

A list of real property in Pennington County on which delinquent property taxes and penalties are due has been filed with the County Administrator of Pennington County. This list is published to inform all persons that the listed property is subject to forfeiture because of delinquent taxes.

The property owner, taxpayer, or other interested persons must either pay the tax and penalty, plus interest and costs, or file a written objection with the Court Administrator. The objection must be filed by April 15th, 2005, stating the reasons why the tax or penalty is not due on the property. If no objections are filed, a court judgment will be entered against the property for the unpaid tax, penalty, interest and costs.

For property under court judgment, the period of redemption begins on May 9, 2005, and ends three to five years later, depending on the type of property and where it is located. The period of redemption means the time within which taxes must be paid to avoid losing the property through forfeiture.

To avoid forfeiture, taxes on property located within a township must be paid by May 10, 2010. Taxes must also be paid by May 10, 2010, if the property is one of the following types in a city: (1) residential homestead, (2) farm homestead, (3) private cabins, (4) resorts occupied by the owner, and (5) resorts in operation for not more than 250 days a year. Payment of tax by May 12, 2008 is necessary to avoid forfeiture of any property in a city which is not described in the preceding sentence.

To determine how much interest and costs must be added to pay the tax in full, contact the Pennington County Auditor's Office, PO Box 616, Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701. The telephone number is 218-683-7000.

Spellers compete in Region 1 & 2 Spelling Bee

Four spellers have advanced to the Fargo Communications Multi-Regional State Spelling Bee after winning the Region 1 & 2 Spelling Bee held March 4 in Thief River Falls.

Winning spellers included Brandon Shaffer, East Grand Forks School District; Stephanie Gagelin, East Grand Forks School District, Carrie Wojciechowski, Tri-County School District in Karlstad, and Heather Zinda, Roseau School District School. Fifth place alternate speller was Nikki Miller, Bemidji School District.

Northwest Service Cooperative (NWSC) hosted the spelling bee at Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) in Thief River Falls. Forty-four students from 36 schools advanced from local or district competitions to the regional spelling bee. The competition began with a written round for all students in the morning with the top 20 spellers of the written round continuing with an oral round competition in the afternoon.

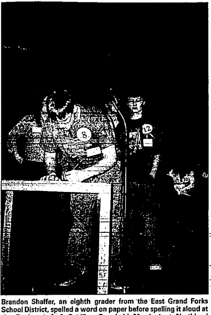
The bee lasted for 11 rounds with the top four spellers advancing to the Fargo Communications Multi-Regional State Spelling Bee scheduled March 29 at the Holiday Inn in St. Cloud. The winner of that spelling bee will compete May 31 through June 2 at the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

Students who advanced to the oral round of competition at the regional spelling bee included Elizabeth Randall, Badger; Jackson Lindsey, Bemidji; Nikki Miller, Bemidji; Kristina Delaney, Blackduck; Chelsea Tiokasin, Cass Lake/Bena; Nolan Ellingson, Crookston; Stephanie Gagelin, East Grand Forks; Brandon Shaffer, East Grand Forks; Allison West, Fertile/Beltrami; Rachel Nelson, Goodridge; Joe Fish, Lake of the Woods, Baudette; Dylan Ostgaard, Norman County West – Hendrum/Halstad; Sophie Shogren, Nevis; Robin Nelson, Roseau; Heather Zinda, Roseau; Derek Buckanaga, St. Philip's Catholic School, Bemidji; Tyler Peterson, Franklin Middle School (FMS), Thief River Falls; Owen Stenvik, FMS, Thief River Falls; Carrie Wojciechowski, Tri-County, Karlstad; and Christian Erickson, Warren/Alvarado/Oslo.

Other district spelling bee winners and their schools included Peter Wagner, Ada/Borup; Moriah Gamache, Bagley; Andrew Blackwell, Bemidji; Katie Verchota, Bemidji; Chelsea Ducheneaux, Clearbrook/Gonvick; Rachel Sanders, Crookston; Nick Anderson, Fisher; Matt Enerson, Fosston; Chantal Wilson, Greenbush/Middle River; Rachael Kiesow, Grygla; Brittany Hand, Kelliher; Arthur Kukowski, Lancaster; Beth Hazelton, Laporte; Tyler Knutson, Marshall County Central, Newfolden; Darwin Donnell, Red Lake; Sonny Whitefeather, Red Lake; Kayla Pelletier, Red Lake County Central, Plummer/Oklee; Leland Johnson, Red Lake Falls; Brett MacLeod, Sacred Heart Catholic School, East Grand Forks; Shelby Roosdett, South Koochiching/Rainy River, Northome; Mason Sundby, Stephen/Argyle Central; Tristan Fanfulik, St. Bernard's Catholic School, Thief River Falls; Kassandra Ryden, Waubun/Ogema/White Earth; and Kandra Lee, Win-E-Mac, Erskine.

The spelling bee is a series of competitions for students in grades five through eight beginning at the classroom level and progressing on to district, region, state and national levels. Benefits for students include improved spelling, increased vocabulary, learning concepts, developing correct English usage, developing poise in public performance and community recognition for participation.

The regional spelling bee was coordinated by Mary Morken, NWSC student program coordinator. Avis Dyrud, NCTC instructor, was the reader. Lloyd Hietala, Badger; Judy Kaml, Thief River Falls; and Diane Johnson, Thief River Falls, assisted as judges of the regional bee.

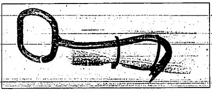


Brandon Shaffer, an eighth grader from the East Grand Forks School District, spelled a word on paper before spelling it aloud at the Region 1 & 2 Spelling Bee held March 4 at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. Shaffer is one of four students advancing to the state spelling bee scheduled March 29 in St. Cloud.

Winners in the Region 1 & 2 Spelling Bee included (from left) Nikki Miller, who is an alternate and an eighth grader from the Bemidji School District; Heather Zinda, an eighth grader from the Roseau School District; Brandon Shaffer, an eighth grader from the East Grand Forks School District; Stephanie Gagelin, a seventh grader from the East Grand Forks School District; and Carrie Wojciechowski, an eighth grader from the Tri-County School District in Karlstad. The winners now advance to the Fargo Communications Multi-Regional State Spelling Bee scheduled March 29 in St. Cloud. The winner of that spelling bee will compete at the National Spelling Bee scheduled May 31 through June 2 in Washington, D.C.

After spelling a word at the Region 1 & 2 Spelling Bee, Joe Fish looked to Avis Dyrud (far right) to see if he spelled the word correctly. Meanwhile, spelling bee judge Diane Johnson (foreground) signaled with a piece of green paper that Fish had correctly spelled the word. Fish, a sixth grader from the Lake of the Woods School District in Baudette, was one of 20 students who advanced to the oral round of the spelling bee competition March 4 at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Christian Erickson, a Warren/Alvarado/Oslo sixth grader, cautiously spelled a word after he wrote it on paper at the Region 1 & 2 Spelling Bee held March 4 at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.



There are many unique and different tools used on farms. This one will be on display at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village this summer when the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibit "Barn Again! Celebrating an American Icon" will be at the Village. Guess what this tool was used for.

Answer: This is a bale hook. Faye Auchenpaugh provided the following description that she found: Since each bale weighs from 85 (alfalfa) to 110 (timothy) pounds, you can't just toss it around. It's a matter of hooking the bale by one end and lifting that end onto the thigh. Then, one sinks the hook into the other end and leans back, using the weight of the body as a counterbalance to lift the bale to the back of the flatbed wagon and dropping it there. Once the bale is on the wagon, another hand hooks it and stacks it as neatly and tightly as a person can. The person is not an esthete (one who professes great sensitivity to the beauty of art and nature). It's just that a loosely packed wagon can dump a good bit of its load if it lurches through a ditch at an angle. A bale of hay is no lighter the second time you load it. As the ranks of bales near the end of the wagon bed, the standing room narrows and it becomes a challenge to catch the bale, hook it, tip it up and get it neatly in the stack at about head height in one smooth move while standing on a strip about a food wide. When the ranks of bales are all the way to the front of the flatbed wagon, it is time to head for the stack. The person who has been working the field runs after the wagon, leaps up, turns in the air, and lands sitting on the small strip left uncovered. It is done with a casual faith if it is done right. That is the art of bucking bales.

Sarah Zak (center), owner of Beautiful Beginnings, recently received her First Dollar of Clear Profit from Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors Denise Laymon (left) and Lenae Iverson. Zak purchased the business March 1. Located along LaBree Avenue North, the business sells bridal gowns, prom dresses, casual women's clothing, bridesmaid dresses, bridal gifts and accessories and jewelry. Tuxedo rentals and tanning services are also offered. Business hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays; 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursdays; and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Beltone recently received its First Dollar of Clear Profit from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. Dan Vandeventer, Beltone instrument specialist, accepted the dollar from Chamber Ambassadors Denise Laymon (left) and Lenae Iverson. Beltone opened its Thief River Falls location two months ago along Pennington Avenue South (across from Hugo's). Business hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Thursdays, however, Vandeventer makes home visits as well. Beltone conducts hearing tests. If hearing loss is suspected, it refers individuals to ear, nose and throat specialists. If the person suffers from hearing loss, Beltone sells hearing aids and special listening devices. For more information, call Vandeventer at 1-866-738-8028.

Prosecution sets out case in Heden trial

Jurors hear opening satements in trial over infant's death, and prosecution begins introducing witnesses

Heden has been charged with felony charges of:

- first degree murder (criminal sexual conduct),
- first degree murder (child abuse), and
- second degree murder in the death of his 3-month old daughter, Rose.

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Jurors heard opening statements and began hearing testimony Friday in the case of an Oklee man accused of murdering his infant daughter in 2004.

Kristin Hanson, one of two public defenders representing John Russell Heden, asked the jury to keep their minds open and listen to the evidence that will be presented.

Bill Klumpp Jr., assistant Minnesota attorney general, is among two lawyers prosecuting the Heden case.

"We are not claiming that the defendant intended to kill Rose Heden on March 1," said Klumpp in his opening statement. He added that she suffered brain trauma, which killed her after she was shaken violently and pushed onto a floor.

There were fresh vaginal and brain injuries on the infant that day, he noted. Klumpp added that the infant suffered other injuries.

Heden, 33, has been charged in Pennington County District Court with felony offenses of first degree murder (criminal sexual conduct), first degree murder (child abuse), and second degree murder in the death of his 3-month old daughter, Rose. The two charges of first degree murder carry maximum penalties of life imprisonment. The second degree murder charge has a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison.

As of press time, the prosecution is presenting its case. All of the witnesses who have testified so far are prosecution witnesses.

Fourteen jurors are hearing the Heden case. Two jurors are alternates. It is anticipated that the trial will continue for two weeks.

After the final jurors were selected Thursday, opening statements began the next day.

"This case is very tragic," said Hanson in her opening statement. "Tragic because a 3-month-old baby is dead. Tragic because a family was torn apart."

At the time of the alleged crime, Heden's wife, Shawna, was working in Goodridge. Heden was with the infant and his 5-year-old stepdaughter, who witnesses testified, was asleep until after law enforcement and others arrived.

"Did [the prosecution] get the science right?" asked Hanson in her opening statement. She noted the defense's expert will say the infant did not die from any injuries on that day. Hanson said there were no fresh injuries to the infant's brain and genitalia that day.

Hanson also asked jurors to remember that not everyone reacts

Red Lake Shootings

Tragedy of Red Lake shootings is far from over for many

March 21 will now be a day residents of Red Lake Reservation associate for its violence rather than the start of the season of spring.

On Monday, March 21, 2005, Jeff Weise, 15, killed his grandfather, Daryl Lussier, 58, a tribal police officer, and his companion, Michelle Sigana, 32. He then took his grandfather's service revolver, shotgun, flak jacket and squad car, and drove to Red Lake Senior High where he shot and killed the security guard, Derrick Brun, 28, a teacher, Neva Rogers, 62, five students, and wounded several more. In all, 10, including Weise, who shot himself ending the ordeal, were dead and several more were wounded. FBI officials said the entire elapsed time that it took for the event to unfold at the school was less than 10 minutes. To make matters worse, it isn't over. Officials arrested another juvenile this week in what appears to be a widening investigation.

It isn't over for a lot of people. The impact of this story has implications for families and schools throughout the region. Professionals are urging families and schools to address the issues this event has brought to the surface.

Use shootings as a reason to talk to children about violence

Children react strongly to news accounts of school violence such as what occurred in Red Lake this week. Horrible as that event was, it may trigger worthwhile discussions between parents and children, according to Madge Alberts, children, youth and families program leader with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Alberts cites information put out by the Family Resource Center at Minneapolis Children's Hospital and Clinics for Family Information Services. Experts there recommend that parents be honest with children when they ask about violent events in the news. But, it's also important to put violent events in context, Alberts says. Parents need to stress that schools are safe places. The likelihood of being harmed there is extremely low.

Here are some guidelines for parents dealing with their children's fears:

- Give children information that's appropriate for their age, always stressing that most children go through their days at school without any harm befalling them.
- Monitor children's exposure to television news reports and explain events as they occur. Ask children what they're hearing at school and

County approves $25,000 for Barzen Avenue project

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

After receiving a 739-signature petition, that included the names of 509 Pennington County residents, the Pennington County Board unanimously approved an additional $10,000 contribution to the Barzen Ave. improvement project.

Barzen Ave. is a north-south gravel road, adjacent to CD 70 and the Arctic Cat and Digi-Key properties. For Digi-Key employees, the road is the only access to a 1,000-car parking lot.

Barzen Ave. is maintained by the city of Thief River Falls and CD 70 is maintained by Pennington County. Improvements, slated to begin this summer, include rebuilding of the road with an aggregate base, flattening the slopes of CD 70 and paving it to a nine-ton designation, costing an estimated $150,000 to complete.

The board initially agreed to contribute $15,000 toward the project at its Feb. 8 meeting, with the stipulation that a portion of it will go toward CD 70 improvements.

The board remained committed to its contribution of $15,000 until last week's meeting, which was attended by Digi-Key President Mark Larson, Thief River Falls Public Works Director Ron Lindberg, Pennington County Engineer Mike Flaagen and assistant engineer George Broadwell.

Larson brought with him a

LHS Spring Musical April 1-3 features scenes from seven musicals

Don't miss Lincoln High School's spring musical revue entitled "Blast It".

This seven-show revue, under the direction of Darcey Reese, follows the dream of the character Barry, a returning alumni. Barry wishes that he had one more chance to revisit his glory days on the old stage of Lincoln High School (LHS). His wish is granted and he is taken back in time and into the future to shows that he once starred in and to shows that he always dreamed of starring in.

The character Barry, played by Tate Sorvig, keeps the show going with his energy and excitement. Barry is taken back to years gone by and gets to relive his memories of the musicals "Grease," "Guys and Dolls," and "Fiddler on the Roof." Somehow he remembers all the songs and all the choreography and has the time of his life while doing it. He is also taken on a journey into the future to shows that everyone wanted to perform but just didn't have the time. These shows include "Les Miserables," "The Lion King," "Rent," and "Hairspray." The blast from the past voice, played by Jessica Willett, keeps Barry on target with his musical lineup.

Barry is accompanied on each piece by the 50 voice chorus and the 20 member dance group. These singers and dancers have been working on parts and routines since January and are ready to give a show that will not soon be forgotten. The 25 extras have the fun job of making the various characters from each show come to life.

Michelle and Maureen Duffy have been working very hard to get the 20 dancers in shape for this big

TRF man faces felony theft charge after 204 DVDs found

Felony theft over $500 and possession of stolen property: On March 21, police received a report that a man had returned items that had allegedly been stolen from Elite Video and Sound. The man was allegedly holding the 204 pornographic DVDs and videotapes for Nicholas Donald Aune, 27, Thief River Falls. The report indicated the man did not know the items had been stolen. Upon hearing that Aune had been charged in connection with a theft of similar items recently, the man returned the items. Aune has been charged with felony theft over $500 and possession of stolen property. The DVDs and videotapes are worth $1,020. Aune pled guilty Feb. 3 to another felony possession of stolen property charge. That charge stemmed from his alleged possession of 256 DVDs, 19 Playstation games, two Xbox games and nine pornographic movies, which were stolen from Take 2 Video. For that offense, sentencing is scheduled April 7.

Terroristic threats: On March 26 at 10 p.m., police received a report of terroristic threats in the 300 block of Kendall Ave. S. An individual allegedly brandished a gun at two people who were walking, asked them if they were scared and said an obscenity. At the time, the person was allegedly inside a vehicle, and the driver left. The vehicle was later found. Matthew George Lalonde, 18, Thief River Falls, was allegedly a passenger in the vehicle and had brandished the carbon dioxide powered BB pistol. The pistol was seized. Lalonde has been charged with terroristic threats.

Disorderly conduct: On March 5 at 2 p.m., police received a report of disorderly conduct. Tracey Lee Larson, 35, Thief River Falls, allegedly threatened to physically harm a man. He allegedly made the threat via a phone in Thief River Falls. Larson was cited for disorderly conduct.

Fifth degree domestic assault: On March 16 at 4:30 p.m., police received a report that a man would allegedly not leave an apartment at Northland Village. Upon arriving, police determined a domestic assault allegedly occurred. Rebecca Marie Kezar, 20, Thief River Falls, allegedly struck a man in the head and eye area with a phone. Kezar was cited for fifth degree domestic assault.

Accident: On March 20 at 11:12 a.m., the sheriff's department received a report of an accident in the 13000 block of Highway 1 W. According to the report, Daniel DeWayne Smsky of Thief River Falls fell asleep while driving westbound on Highway 1. His 2000 Chevy pickup entered a south ditch and struck a mailbox. Smsky overcorrected; and the vehicle went into the north ditch. His vehicle then struck a phone plyon. Smsky's vehicle sustained $5,000 in damage. The mailbox sustained $75 in damage, and the phone plyon sustained $90 in damage.

Third degree driving while intoxicated: On March 22 at 3:41 p.m., police allegedly observed people arguing in an alleyway near the Law Enforcement Center. Joshua Peter Huth, 27, Thief River Falls, was cited for third degree driving while intoxicated.

Disorderly conduct: On March 22, police received a report of disorderly conduct at Franklin Middle School. A 13-year-old Thief River Falls male allegedly placed a note that had a sexual comment and drawing of a naked female into a female student's locker. The juvenile has charges pending for disorderly conduct.

Disorderly conduct: On March 22 at 8:58 p.m., several residents reported that they thought they heard gunshots at Countryside Trailer Court. Upon responding to the scene, police learned that three juveniles had allegedly lit fireworks. The three 14-year-old Thief River Falls males have charges pending for disorderly conduct.

Disorderly conduct and fourth degree criminal damage to property: On March 23 at 8:05 p.m., police were dispatched to Pathfinders to assist with an individual. A 13-year-old Warren male allegedly became agitated and kicked a wooden door. He allegedly kicked the door so hard that it fell off its hinges and struck an employee. The juvenile has charges pending for disorderly conduct and fourth degree criminal damage to property. Damage was estimated at $100.

Forgery: On March 24 at 3 p.m., police received a report of forgery. A 14-year-old Thief River Falls male allegedly stole three checks belonging to someone and forged them at Pennington Square. The juvenile has charges pending for forgery.

Furnishing alcohol to minors and underage consumption: On March 26 at 12:56 a.m., police received a loud noise complaint regarding a residence in the 900 block of Pleasant Ave. Cassandra Mae Horgeshimer, 24, Thief River Falls, was cited for furnishing alcohol to minors. Among those cited for underage consumption were Brian Cole Horgeshimer, 19, Thief River Falls; Andrea Jan Mosher, 19, Fertile; Clinton Bartholomew Keefe, 19, Eden Prairie; Benjamin Henry Knott, 20, Red Lake Falls; Jenna Kim Aanden, 18, Moorhead; Derek Amund Larson, 19, Fertile; Frank Nicholas Caputo, 19, Crookston; Josiah Steven Hansen, 19, Elk River; Ben Joseph Ystenes, 19, Winger; Jasen Dean Klimek, 20, Fertile; Christopher Robert Hanson, 19, Red Lake Falls; Jessica Marie Cote, 20, Mentor; Benjamin Lee Swendra, 19, Red Lake Falls; and Elizabeth Rae Jagol and Annie Jo Erickson, both 19 and from Moorhead. Underage consumption charges are pending against a 17-year-old Crookston male and a 17-year-old Thief River Falls female.

Property damage: On March 27 at 4:29 p.m., police received a report of property damage in the Campus Court Apartments parking lot. A tire had been slashed on a Jeep Cherokee. Damage was estimated at $120. The incident remains under investigation.

Theft: On March 27 at 9:57 p.m., police received a report of a theft from the 500 block of Tonder St. A boxer puppy valued at $500 was stolen. He answers to "Oscar," and he has white feet. The incident remains under investigation.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Court report features traffic offenses

Numerous traffic offenses and other misdemeanors are included in the latest edition of the Pennington County Citation Disposition Bulletin.

Andy Hart, an intern with the Thief River Falls Police Department, received a certificate of appreciation Thursday for his assistance following the March 5 report of suspicious activity at SuperOne Foods. He assisted officers at the scene, where they allegedly found one person. They later found two other people who were allegedly involved in the burglary. Nothing was stolen. Three people have been charged in connection with the incident.

Three Thief River Falls police officers received letters of commendation Thursday for their actions following the March 5 report of suspicious activity at SuperOne Foods. They included (from left) Dustin Coauette, Chris Hoglin and Ryan Bassett. They allegedly found one person in the building in the early morning hours and later found two others who were allegedly involved in the burglary. Nothing was stolen. Three people have been charged in connection with the incident.

Pennington/Red Lake DHIA holds annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Pennington/Red Lake County Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) was held Feb. 22 at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls.

Attendees discussed how association tester Randy Rasmussen is now becoming an employee of Minnesota DHIA rather than an employee of the county association. The decision was to try it for a year and see how things work out. Rasmussen now tests cows from Fertile to Roseau, so distance is becoming an issue.

Elections were held, and Darrin Lehmann will succeed Vernon Neuschwander on the board.

Lucille Weiss was recognized for her many years of service to the association as bookkeeper, first for her years with the Red Lake Association and her continued service to the new association when Red Lake and Pennington associations merged.

Awards were presented at the association dinner. Gary and Polly Bakken of Angus received an award for the Most Improved Herd for 2004 with a milk increase per cow of 3,349 pounds per year.

The award for High Producing Herd went to the Northwest Research and Outreach Center at Crookston with a rolling herd average of 26,923 pounds of milk per cow per year.

The High Producing Individual Cow Award went to Dale and Sherri Rupprecht of Thief River Falls. Their cow Cory produced 34,670 pounds of milk in one year's lactation, milking three times a day.

The award for Most Improved Herd Over the Last Three Years went to Vernon, Lois and Elden Neuschwander of Grygla.

Walter Brothers Dairy of Plummer received the award for High 2-Year-Old Cow for 2004. Number 1066 produced 31,480 pounds of milk in her first year of lactation.

The High Lifetime Production Award went to Freida, owned by Todd and Kathy Johnston of Angus. Frieda has a lifetime production of 228,788 pounds of milk. The Johnstons also received the 2004 High Quality Award for their entire herd by maintaining a somatic cell count average of 119,000 for the year.

Speaker appoints Penas to various commissions

Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger) has been reappointed to serve on two key legislative commissions.

The first is the Legislative Commission on Minnesota-Ontario issues of mutual interest involving natural resources, transportation, economic development, and social matters. The commission consists of 12 members who should have an interest and knowledge of Minnesota-Ontario issues.

Penas' second appointment is to the Iron Range Resources Board, which works to diversify the economy of northeastern Minnesota and to improve the quality of life for area residents. Established in 1941, it is the oldest Minnesota state agency created to address a specific issue.

"These commissions deal with matters that are passions of mine, and I'm honored the speaker has once again selected me to serve on them," Penas said.

Currently, Penas serves on the House agriculture and rural development committee; agriculture, environment and natural resources finance committee; and environment and natural resources committees.

WIC clinics to be offered in April

The Women, Infants and Children's Supplemental Nutrition Education Program (WIC) is being held the month of April.

Infants, children up to the age of 5, and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be eligible for the program. WIC Quin County is very interested in enrolling pregnant women in the program. It feels that the prenatal nutrition is a vital part of producing a healthy baby. It is important to apply for WIC early during pregnancy. No proof of pregnancy is required.

All potential clients must write or call the WIC Program and complete an application. The following is the schedule of WIC Clinics for the month of April.

- Tuesday, April 5 and Wednesday, April 6 at the Warroad Community Center.
- Tuesday, April 5, at the Newfolden Community Center.
- Wednesday, April 6 at the Kittson County Courthouse in Hallock.
- Thursday, April 7, at the Red Lake Falls Community Center.
- Monday, April 11 through Thursday, April 14, at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.
- Tuesday, April 12 and Wednesday, April 13, at the Roseau Area Hospital.
- Monday, April 18, at the Evangelical Covenant Church in Warren.
- Tuesday, April 19, at the Karlstad Community Center.

North Valley Home Health will hold immunization clinics at the Newfolden and Warren clinics from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. An immunization record is needed before immunes will be given. For more information, contact North Valley Home Health at 218-745-5154.

LIBRARY LINES

Heidi Hoks, Librarian, Thief River Falls Public Library

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

This month is Month of the Young Child, a month established to promote awareness of the importance of young children and their specific needs in today's society. Check out our library's collection of books on care of young children and books for young children while you're in the library or go to our online catalog at http://ils.larl.org - Northwest Regional Library (of which the TRF library is a branch) and the Lake Agassiz Regional Library online catalog – Check out what's available in all the libraries in both regional systems or limit your search to one library. Requests for items can also be placed online. If you see a book or other item you like in the catalog and it belongs to the TRF Library and is checked out or belongs to another library within our catalog holdings, you may either place the request online yourself or ask a staffer at the circulation desk to place a request on it for you. If you are visiting us from your own PC, you may place your request online for those items you see there, or e-mail us the titles of the items you wish. Remember that when we get your item in, we will contact you by phone or – if we cannot reach you the first three times that way – we will mail you a card. Then we'll hold your item for 5 days only before sending it on to fulfill other requests. Please pick up your requested material as soon as possible. For more information, contact the Thief River Falls Public Library at 681-4325 or trfcirc@nwrlib.org.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Everyone is encouraged to come to the library the month of April and enjoy the annual Quilt Show. Sponsored by the Thief River Falls Quilter's Guild, this showing features display quilts, wall hangings and quilted clothing. Most are hung from the rafters of the library in order to display them fully. April 11-16 is National Library Week with drawings and refreshments held during the week. Anime Club holds its organizational meeting on Thursday, April 14 at 6 p.m. at the library. April 18 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m., the TRACES Bus-eum will be parked on Main Avenue in front of the library. Tour this historic exhibit in the bus that features the story of Minnesota's POWs in World War II. Then come inside the library for refreshments. April 29 at 10 a.m. enjoy a special Froggy Storytime featuring Jonathan London's Froggy character. Every Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. is Preschool Storytime. Every Wednesday from 1-5 p.m. is Senior Surf Days. Every Wednesday from 6-8 p.m. is Mom/Dad and Me Computer Night.

BOOK REVIEWS

The following are a few of the young children's 2005 award winning books owned by the TRF Public Library:

"Home" by Jeannie Baker. A wordless book, the story shows Tracy growing up through the window of her home and learning to care for her environment.

"Baby Dance the Polka" by Karen Beaumont. While Papa and Mamma prepare for a party, Baby gets ready to dance with stuffed animal friends.

"Guji Guji" by Chih-Yuan Chen. When Guji Guji, a crocodile raised as a duck, learns his true identity, he must decide if he will help the bad crocodiles or remain loyal to his feathered family.

WEB SITE OF THE MONTH

http://www.thinkmhc.org/Literacy/library.htm - Minnesota Storytime – April is the Month of the Young Child so what better time to feature the books designed for young children?! This web site is a collection of reading guides of Minnesota children's picture books (fiction, nonfiction, poetry, etc.) This program is a collaboration of the Minnesota Humanities Commission and the Minnesota Library Association (Children & Young People's Section).

The reading guides have been developed for use by librarians, teachers, child care providers, parents, and anyone else interested in reading and related literacy activities for children and families. The guides contain many suggestions for sharing stories in a consistent easy-to-read format.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH

Why can't we have a longer time on the computer? Currently, the TRF Public Library has a one hour limit on computer usage per day. Many libraries our size have a 15 minute to 1/2 hour limit. Some have a 1/2 hour limit, but you can extend it by paying for additional time. Other libraries allow you an allotted amount of time and then you need to get off and get back in line for a chance at the computer. The usage on the current PCs has been ranging from 75 to 98 percent usage daily. Usage is figured by the number of people on the computer during the day divided by the hours in a day that the computers are available divided further by the number of public workstations. This means these computers are in high demand. Decreasing the time allotment per day has been discussed, but that would be difficult for those people doing research on the computers or taking tests. Since they are so popular, it is oftentimes difficult to get people to give up their PC to the person who has been waiting for it. That means the next person is sometimes shorted of their time when the library closes. Spacewise, the library is at its capacity for PC units and cannot fit any more within the current building to alleviate this problem.

LHS volunteer appreciation night April 5

Volunteer appreciation night will be held Tuesday, April 5 at the Lincoln High School Cafeteria, beginning at 7 p.m. The Sunrise Singers will perform, and the "Spring is Here" fashion show, modeled by LHS students, will be held.

Border State Bank announces promotions

Border State Bank has announced the promotions of Tamara "Tami" Bredeson and Robyn Pream.

Tamara "Tami" Bredeson

Bredeson, who resides in Baudette, has been promoted to marketing and sales director. She started her employment with Border State Bank in 2000 as the director of the bank's Senior Loyalty Club, Northern Neighbors. In 2002, she was promoted to director of Marketing and Club Programs.

Robert Hager, Border State Bank chief executive officer, said, "Tami Bredeson has directed the bank's Northern Neighbors program for the past five years during which the club has experienced great growth in both membership and program offerings."

Bredeson received her undergraduate education at the College of St. Catherine, graduated from the American Bankers Association School of Bank Marketing and Management, and was awarded the Certified Financial Marketing Professional (CFMP) designation from the Institute of Certified Bankers in 2004.

Bredeson grew up in southern Minnesota and moved to Baudette with her husband, Kim, and their two sons in 1999. She coaches the Lake of the Woods High School Dance and Spirit Teams and is active in the Baudette Community Theater. She serves on the board of directors for Region Two Arts Council, and enjoys gardening, kayaking and singing in the First Lutheran Church Choir.

Robyn Pream

Pream, who resides in Thief River Falls, has served as the Thief River Falls area Northern Neighbor Coordinator since September 2003. A native of Thief River Falls, she holds a degree in business administration from Northland Community and Technical College.

An active volunteer for both the local school system and Redeemer Lutheran Church, Pream's hobbies include scrapbooking, reading, walking and traveling.

Hager said, "Robyn Pream is the ideal candidate to assume club leadership. Her enthusiasm and experience will provide a seamless transition of duties as her own unique interests bring yet another facet of opportunities for our club members."

Rep. Brita Sailer says now is the time to invest in Minnesota

The Tourism Division of the House Commerce Committee passed legislation (HF1002) last week that will appropriate $29 million over the next two years to encourage growth within the Minnesota travel and tourism economy.

Rep. Brita Sailer (DFL-Park Rapids) voted in support of the bill's passage. She is also the co-author of the initiative to provide money to Explore Minnesota Tourism for the purpose of marketing Minnesota travel and tourism.

"For every dollar the state invests in tourism marketing, we gain over four dollars in new state and local taxes," said Rep. Sailer. "In our area, this also means new job opportunities for our residents and greater prosperity for our local business. It is a win-win situation."

"In spite of budget deficits, we must invest moving our state forward," continued Sailer. "Our state has waned in its promotion of our tourist economy. We know that this is a wise investment. We need to renew our commitment before we lose to surrounding states such as Wisconsin, which currently outpaces us in state supported investment for the purpose of attracting tourism."

The state's yearly investment in tourism currently ranks 26th in the nation and below the national average.

The bill would encourage additional private investment by making $12 million of the funds contingent on a matching investment from the private sector in partnership with Explore Minnesota Tourism. The private sector investments may include in-kind contributions for the purpose of marketing tourism.

The funds to Explore Minnesota Tourism will allow increased marketing nationally with focus on the 12 North Central states.

Goodridge Post Prom Committee seeks donations

The parents of the students of the Goodridge School District, who will be attending the junior-senior prom and banquet on May 7, are in the process of planning a post prom party to encourage students to stay drug and alcohol free on this special evening.

The post prom party will begin immediately following the prom dance and will continue until 4 a.m. on Sunday, May 8. This event will be chaperoned and the organizers are planning a number of activities, games and treats. Plans are to distribute the prizes to those participants who stay until the very end of this event.

The Goodridge Post Prom Committee is seeking donations of prizes, food, certificates or cash from businesses and organizations with which residents do business. Donations are preferred before April 22. Questions should be directed toward Deb Swanson, treasurer, 32342 150th St. N.E., Goodridge, MN 56725 at 378-4570 or Carol Lovly at 378-4585.

PARENTING TIPS
More on Children and Routines

Routines, doing something the same way each time we do it, can help parents to manage the behavior of their young children. One of the reasons why is that children then know what to expect. If, as parents, we are inconsistent, we may be creating some of the behavior problems we have with our children. If your schedule varies drastically from day to day, children never know what to expect and may offer more resistance. For example, if you always eat all food (snacks and meals) at the table, sitting in a chair, then when it is time to eat, your child will just naturally sit in a chair at the table. But if sometimes you eat in the living room or if your child is allowed to walk around the house with his crackers or other food, he may throw a tantrum when you try to make him sit in a chair at Grandma's house. Another example is with car seats and seat belts. If everyone in the car always uses a seat belt every time the car is started, your young child will accept it and automatically get into his or her car seat and expect to be buckled in. Yes, your young child may occasionally resist the idea of a car seat but it will happen far less often if it is an established routine.

The examples can go on and on. But the important thing is consistency. Remember that your young child cannot tell time. So he or she does not have to eat at exactly 11:30, have a story at 12 and nap at 12:15 each day. It may help if you do things at approximately the same time each day, but you can vary the time a little. The important thing to remember is not to vary the order. If your routine is to have lunch, read a story in the rocking chair, and then put the child down for a nap, then do it in that order each day and don't forget to tell your sitters to follow the same order.

Establish routines with young children and life should be much smoother.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

To help make routines go smoother with your very young child, warn him/her about what will happen next. Say, "First we will eat lunch, then we will read a story, and then it will be nap time."

Budget must restore funds to first responders

In a hearing recently with Department of Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff, U.S. Senator Mark Dayton criticized the department's 2006 budget cuts to first responders.

The proposed budget would cut by $400 million the state and local grants formula, which provides funding to police and fire departments, as well as to local communities for equipment and training. The budget also proposes a 30 percent cut to the FIRE Act grant program, which sends funds directly to local fire departments to help pay for equipment and training. Dayton said he would fight to restore full funding for both of these first-responder programs.

"The message from Congress to local governments has been: 'Take these initiatives, put hundreds and thousands of hours into preparedness.' And now, someone's going to turn around and say to those same governments, 'Well, you know, we've done a risk assessment, and you get no money,'" said Dayton at the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee Hearing. "First responders are not expecting the federal government to fund all of their activities, but they are expecting the federal government to be consistent in providing resources for those additional efforts."

Many Minnesota fire departments rely on funds from FIRE Act grants to hire additional personnel, buy new fire trucks, radios, and other equipment, and establish general fire-prevention programs. Last year, Minnesota received $17 million from this program.

"The FIRE Act grant program has been invaluable to fire departments in Minnesota. Many departments across the state would be unable to obtain proper safety equipment for their firefighters without FIRE grant funding," said Tom Preston, president of the Minnesota State Fire Department Association. "To the extent that these funds go directly to the fire departments, they have that much greater impact and return on investment than funds which are filtered through other channels."

...Keep them safe

The past few weeks have been filled with bad news about children. Some have been attacked and some killed by sexual predators. Other children have been killed by children. We can't seem to escape the awful news, but we can do something about it.

First of all, children need to be nurtured from the time they are mere babies all the way up to their teen years. They need to be loved and listened to and taught. Parents are the main caregivers and nurturers of children, and they must be aware of these responsibilities.

Parents must be involved in their children's lives. They need to know their children, as well as their friends, their daily activities, and their interests. They cannot simply be oblivious to a child and expect him or her to grow up properly. Parenting is a full-time job and it never ends. That sweet baby turns into a busy youngster and then into a sometimes difficult teen. Then, they have children of their own and the whole thing begins again.

First of all, teach your child that he or she is worthwhile. Build your child's ego, tell him he or she is worthy of love, and show them love. This will give your child a good base for his or her life. Learn about his or her interests, listen to their fears, and teach your child that he or she has the right to choose right from wrong. Be a positive role model for your children and practice what you preach.

Always be aware of who your child has for friends and, even though it seems excessive, monitor adults who interact with your child. Establish guidelines and rules and see that they are held responsible for sticking to them. Our family had a password that someone would have to use in order to take one of my children anywhere. I just recently cleaned out my wallet and threw the paper I had it written on away. We practiced it and talked about it often so that the kids didn't forget it. Watch for any unusual behavior in your child and then make sure you sit down with him and find out what is going on. Any changes in behavior are danger signals.

A sexual predator is hardly the "dirty old man" down the street or the scary-looking boogie man lurking in the shadows. A predator can be a friend, a neighbor, a relative, a teacher or even a parent. There are women predators as well as men, and child predators as well as adults. He or she can be the person next door, the preacher in the pulpit, the teacher in the classroom, the "friend" met on the Internet, the person who comes to fix the kitchen sink, or a babysitter.

Predators practice their "craft" for years before actually acting upon their impulses. Children must be aware of the vast array of tricks that predators use, such as bribery, telling the child there is a family emergency, asking for help with directions or finding a pet, saying that they are friends of the parents, accusing the child of doing something wrong, asking to take pictures of the child, making inappropriate behavior a "secret" with the child and threatening anger and punishment if the secret is told.

As soon as children can articulate a sentence, they are old enough to learn about those who might prey on them. Children need to know their own full name, birthday, address, phone number and parents' names. They need to know how to dial 911, what to do if they are lost and can't find their parents, to never enter a car or go anywhere with anyone else, how to run and shout if they are the least bit in doubt about a stranger, to never go close to someone asking for information. Children should be taught to never keep secrets from their parents and that parts of their body and the bodies of others are private and should not be touched. They must be taught that they are special and loved and they can speak to someone in authority about problems.

All of these instructions might appear to be overwhelming, but time and practice will help in teaching them. When the entire family is involved in the process, it becomes a natural part of the family rules, rather than something that frightens the child. Small skits can help to teach young children, and older children can take part, too. Just as we practice how to vacate a house for fire safety, play acting is a good way to teach children about predators. A little skit could save their life some day.

Much of the above information was obtained from the Web site of the Minnesota Department of Corrections (www.doc.state.mn.us/level3/safetytips.htm). It also has an interesting list of characteristics of adults who molest that I read with Michael Jackson in mind. You may also want to check the Web site for Parents for Megan's Law and the Jacob Wetterling Web site.

Tribute from a younger sister

Throughout my life, I have felt as if I have had two mothers: My legitimate mother, whom I think is the best in many ways, and my older sister, whom I think is overprotective, overbearing, over particular, but great. My sister (or second mother) has always watched out for my safety, been there when I needed to talk, and been there to remind me that I am wrong in most cases (in the best sense).

When we were a lot younger, my sister and I found our differences and made them known by using physical force and verbal annoyances. She would use fear as an ally, making me afraid of doing anything that got in her way. As most older sisters do, she dominated.

One time, when my sister and I were visiting my grandma, the two of us sat in the house and watched T.V. as my parents and grandparents chatted on the porch. I sat comfortably in the living room in a brown, triangle shaped chair, and ate my favorite snack: Cream Cheese Scrambled Eggs. My sister was sitting in my grandpa's chair, writing in a notebook, most likely scheming. As I finished up my eggs, I deeply concentrated on the episode of Mya the Bee and my first crush ever: Billy the Bee. My sister hated that show, and she decided to let me know how much by telling me that my head was in the way and that she wanted the remote. I ignored her completely and focused on my animated obsession. Soon, I felt an immense jab in my right arm, breaking skin, and heard a snapping sound. My sister had just stabbed me in the arm with a number two, Rose-Art, wooden pencil. It wasn't long before my grandparents and parents heard my scream of absolute terror. My sister, in the mean time, sprinted up the stairs in a sob of her own. She always ran away from pain and injury. . .which worries me. I was quickly taken to the kitchen where my grandmother used a sewing pin to dig the lodged piece of graphite out of my flesh. It was more than I could take, and, of course, I didn't cooperate. To this day, the graphite is still visible under the skin on my right arm. It serves as a reminder of my sister's pent up rage which can be released at any given moment.

Another time, when I was 10, and my sister was 13, she was given the duty of looking after me and my best friend for a full day. My friend and I got along famously, doing our favorite things like dressing up, practicing make-up, and other ridiculous girly things. As the day went on, we became bored with just using my room for our fun and games. We found my dog's little kennel, and it became the focus of our attention. In our imaginations, it was a superb place to hide. As we played around with the kennel, experimenting to see how many things we could fit inside, my sister came out of her room to witness our fun, and to find a way to sabotage it. She explained what a good idea it would be for both of us to climb inside and see if we could both fit. It wasn't until she had locked us in that we knew of her true intentions. My friend and I sat, crumpled up in a very uncomfortable situation for quite a while. My sister turned up her stereo full blast to avoid our screams. It wasn't until my sister's friend, Kayla, came over that we got out.

Don't get me wrong, I love my sister, and I think that now that we have grown up, things are definitely better between us. I have done my honest share of rotten things to her, as well. I think it is the only sisterly way, although I wouldn't trust her to stick around if someone was seriously injured or in a bind.

We are all responsible

When 10 people die at once in one place, the media voyeurs descend to record the tears and beam them to the world. The villain's background is studied, probed and investigated, and the talk shows buzz over who should have done something but didn't.

If those same 10 people were to have died over the course of a year, say in drug-related crimes, or in a series of alcohol-related car accidents, almost nobody would have noticed, even though the loss would be the same, the pain for the families would be the same, and the villain would still be on the loose.

In 2001, three thousand people died in one morning in Lower Manhattan. In response, we went to war abroad and set up a massive internal security bureaucracy at home. Not one American has lost their life to a domestic terror attack since 2001, yet we're still frisking old ladies at the airport just to make sure.

Since that day in 2001, about 50,000 Americans have died in alcohol-related car accidents. They died one, two or three at time, so there's no Ground Zero, no walls filled with pictures, no groundswell of media attention to push the politicians into action.

The tragedy of last week's Red Lake shootings has brought the media spotlight to one of the most geographically remote and culturally removed places in our country. Yet, people have been dying in Red Lake, tragically, sometimes violently, one at a time, but in larger total numbers, for decades.

The life history of the killer, Jeff Weise, shows the larger problem. His father killed himself when Weise was 8 years old. His mother was turned into a vegetable by an alcohol-related car crash. Other relatives and friends of Weise's died untimely deaths.

Suicide. Chemical dependency. Gangs. Poverty. These are the large problems in play in this tragedy, and they aren't easily solved. In fact, so many attempts to solve these problems have failed, both on and off the reservation, that people seem to be giving up.

Instead, thanks to the media's tendency to focus on a single sensational story, we concentrate upon the details of tragic but relatively small events, and we come up with petty solutions.

The security guard should have been armed! Let's pass a law putting a cop with a gun in every school! Crack down on these Web sites that give crazy kids ideas! Sue the makers of Prozac!

These small solutions comfort us because they give us somebody else to blame. It's Hollywood! It's those makers of violent games! It's those rap lyrics!

No, it is none of the above.

Bottom line: If Jeff Weise had a loving, sober Mom and a living, loving Dad, he probably would have confined his teenage angst to the usual avenues of loud music, video games and bad movies.

Part of Weise's problem was he was sensitive and bright. His writings, however troubled, were often eloquent. His description of the problems which surrounded him was compelling.

Sadly, nobody who mattered read young Weise's writings. Like all kids, no matter how bright, Weise needed love and attention, and he didn't get it.

Nobody was there to pull him away from his computer and its toxic bilge. Nobody was there to notice the not-so-subtle hints that Weise might act on his violent fantasies.

Weise's parents were taken from him by suicide and booze. Other parents aren't there because they work too much, don't care, or have lost the will to listen.

We are all responsible, first, to love the children in our own orbit, and second, to keep our eyes open for hurting children wherever they might be.

It doesn't have to be much. Even one well-timed act of attention or kindness from a loving adult, a neighbor, a distant relative, a boss, can change a child's path.

The tragedy at Red Lake reminds us that, for all of our busyness, paying attention to hurting kids is the most important business of all.

Orin Green, 74

Thief River Falls - Orin Green, 74, died on Tuesday, March 22, 2005 as a result of an automobile accident, near Wadena.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, March 29 at the United Methodist Church in Thief River Falls, with Rev. Phil Schmidt officiating. Casket bearers included Cal Lindberg, Verne Spengler, Earl Gibson, Jeff Gustafson, Bob Christiansen and Lowell Naeseth. Honorary casket bearers included Gene Beito, Harold Storhaug, Phil Hess, Maynard Wedul, John Bornholdt, Tony Noel, Paul Adams and Vern Pfeifer. Military honors were provided by the Thief River Falls American Legion and VFW Post.

Interment will be held at Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls.

Orin J. Green was born July 1, 1930 in Newfolden, the son of Olger and Agnes (Westman) Green. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Faith. He attended school and graduated from Newfolden High School in 1948. He went on to attend Moorhead State College and the University of Minnesota where he graduated from the Mortuary Science Program.

He then served his internship in International Falls, Minnesota at the Green Funeral Home. This is also where he met the love of his life Marjorie Blevens. They were united in marriage on December 21, 1951 in International Falls. He then served in the US Army from 1952 to 1954 spending 18 months of that time in Korea.

Orin and Marjorie made their home in Thief River Falls in 1954 when they established the Green Funeral Home with his father Olger. They operated the funeral home at 321 North Main until 1964 when they moved into a newly constructed funeral home at its current location at 420 North LaBree Avenue. Orin served countless grieving families with genuine care, compassion, and dignity throughout his years as a funeral director. Orin retired in 1991.

Orin served as Mayor of Thief River Falls from 1960-1968. He was instrumental in getting senior housing built in the city. He served on several boards, including the Board of Directors of Northern State Bank, L.B. Hartz Foundation, and Valley Home. He served as director of the Northland College Advisory Board and the Northland College Foundation. He has also served on the Police Civil Service Commission, Northwest District of the Mission Society of United Methodist Church, and was an active member of United Methodist Church, Thief River Falls. He was also a member of the Lions Club, the Thief River Falls American Legion, and the VFW. He served as the President of the Minnesota Funeral Directors Association from 1970-1971. He was also the general chairman of the two Billy Graham Crusades in Thief River Falls. Orin loved to travel with his wife Marge, play golf, and spend time with his family and many close friends.

Orin is survived by wife, Marge, Thief River Falls; three children, Carter (Beth) of Stony Point, N.Y., Lori Green of West St. Paul, Sarah (Terry) Lockwood of Isanti; three grandchildren; one sister, Elayne Sandahl of Thief River Falls; and nieces and nephews, Bruce (Diane) Sandahl, Neal (Lana) Sandahl, Steven (Cindy) Sandahl, Jerry (Shawn) Sandahl, Nancy Sandahl, and several cousins.

He was preceded in death by parents Olger and Agnes, and brother-in-law Allan Sandahl.

Edna Moen, 71

Holt - Edna Moen, 71, died Friday, March 25, 2005 at Northwest Medical Center, Thief River Falls.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 2 at Johnson Funeral Service in Thief River Falls, with Reverend Curtis Matz officiating. Casket bearers include Elmer Rasmussen, Laurel Rasmussen, Art Moen, Jake Moen, Lyle Moen and Alfred Knutson. Interment will be held at Spruce Valley Cemetery, in Spruce Valley Township, Marshall County.

Visitation will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, prior to services at Johnson Funeral Service.

Edna was born April 21, 1933 in Illinois. She was united in marriage on September 7, 1963 to Leland Moen in Fort Benton, Mont. She was a waitress in Montana for a short time.

Edna enjoyed working in her flower gardens and embroidering.

Edna is survived by her husband, Leland of Holt; seven children, Alfred Moen of Holt, David Panchot of Butte, Mont., Barbara Quintanilla of Sidney, Mont., Fay Marie Hayes of Sidney, Mont., Kathy Bachmeter of Great Falls, Mont., Sandy McCrow of Pocatello, Idaho, and John Panchot; eight grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; one brother, Robbert Garason of Mount Vernon, Ill; and one sister, Edith Buneison of Centralia, Ill.

She was preceded in death by her parents; and one sister.

Leo Hoy, 60

Roseau - Leo Hoy, 60, died on Monday, March 21 at the Roseau Area Hospital.

Funeral Services for Leo Hoy were held on Saturday, March 26, at 11a.m. at the Roseau Free Lutheran Church.

Leo Olaf Hoy, the son of L. Opal (Abrahamson) and Clarence Hoy was born in Willmar, on January 1, 1945.

His family moved north when he was young and settled in the Gatzke area. Leo attended grade school at Wannaska and graduated from Roseau High School. He enlisted in the United States Army and served from 1965 to 1967. He was proud of being a member of the 101st Airborne and was recently acknowledged for his military service at the Grygla Fall Festival this past year.

Leo and Jane Stratton met in 1968 and dated for three years before they were united in marriage on July 10, 1971 in Grygla. They lived on Leo's parents' homestead where they raised three wonderful children, Stephanie, Shelli, and Chad, and their nephew, David Sunsdahl who moved in with them when he was 13. David lived with Leo's family until graduating from high School. He says he owes his life to Leo and Jane, and wished to thank them for giving him a wonderful place to grow up, and making him one of their family.

Leo loved hunting, fishing, and prairie dog hunting with his family in the Dakota's, and lawn care on his tractor which the grandkids called "Grandpa's Tractor." Jane said he was a better cook than her, so Leo did a lot of the cooking at home. Very often Leo had everything ready when Jane came home from work. He also loved driving around and visiting with friends. His favorite stops were the Skime Store and Dan's Repair.

Leo was also an excellent gunsmith. He had many interests in life and thoroughly enjoyed having his grown family living close to home. His grandchildren were especially precious to him.

Leo worked at Arctic Cat, Polaris, Marvin Windows, and Woodland Container before he was disabled. He enjoyed life, loved being outside in the summers with his wife, nine cats and two dogs. He liked sitting in the kitchen and reading, and looking out the window for deer with a Dr. Pepper in his hand.

Leo is survived by his wife Jane of Gatzke; children, Stephanie (Mike) Johnson of Gatzke, Shelli (Chad) Nelson of Roseau, and Chad and his special friend Jen Kjonaas of Fargo; four grandchildren; one nephew, David (Janie) Sundsdahl of Roseau; aunts, Sylvia Aronson of Roseau and Beverly (Marlow) Hanson of Willmar, and many nieces, nephews, great-nieces and great nephews, and friends. He is preceded in death by his parents.

Adrian C. Olson, 87

Warroad - Adrian C. Olson, 87, of Warroad and formerly of Badger, died on March 18 at Kittson Memorial Nursing Home in Hallock.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, March 26, at the Gieseke Funeral Chapel in Greenbush. Pastor Daniel Ostercamp officiated. Military Honors were provided by the Badger V.F.W. Post 3832. Burial was held at Fort Snelling National Cemetery.

Adrian C. "Eddy" Olson was born Jan. 16, 1918 to parents Anton and Clara Olson. He grew up in Badger, on a farm near the east end of Tamarack St. He attended school in Badger. He and his brothers Syriel and Norman and his sister Elaine would deliver milk and recharge batteries for those who had radios. Later, Adrian and Syriel owned and operated a gas station at the corner across from the Land O'Lakes Creamery and Obert's Shoe Shop.

Adrian was drafted into the Army Air Force on June 3, 1941. He was trained as a flight engineer on a B-17 to assist all members of the plane as to mechanics of machine guns, structure stability and to help watch gauges and advise pilots in combat situations that may warrant other than normal activity of the plane.

He qualified as an AAF Air Crew member and was awarded his wings. He was attached to the 388th Bomber Group and bound for the European Theater of Operation. He participated in battles at Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland and Air Offensive Europe. His main station of operations was in London, England.

During his sixteenth bombing mission while on a B-17 at 32,200 feet, he was shot down over Berlin and was one of two people that escaped the plane before it exploded. He was captured by the Germans and was in various prison camps before being liberated by the Russians on May 2, 1945. After recovering in the hospital and completing his service, he was discharged on Oct. 28, 1945 with the rank of Tech. Sergeant. Honors he earned included the American Defense Ribbon, European-African-Middle East Ribbon with four Bronze Stars, Good Conduct Medal, Purple Heart and the Air Medal with one Bronze Cluster.

After discharge he returned to Badger and married Laverne Thompson, the daughter of Oliver and Bertha Thompson of rural Benwood in 1947. They moved to a farm seven miles east of Badger where they began farming. Adrian worked on various construction jobs while Laverne and their sons Gary and Terry took care of the farm. Laverne died in 1966. Gary and Terry were both drafted into the US Army in 1970. Terry was stationed in Vietnam in the Infantry and Gary was stationed in Germany in the Military Police.

Adrian married Adeline Hulst in 1971 and moved to Warroad where he worked for the City of Warroad until he retired.

Adrian is survived by wife Adeline of Warroad; sons, Terry (Elaine) of Pauline, S.C., and Gary (Jeanette) of Warroad; two grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, first wife Laverne, brothers Norman and Seriel and sister Elaine Kilde.

Antionette Perreault, 95

Red Lake Falls - Antionette "Nettie" Perreault, 95, died on March 27, 2005 at Riverview Hospital in Crookston.

Mass of Christian Burial will held be at 2 p.m. on Friday, April 1, 2005 at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Red Lake Falls, with Father Tim Bushy presiding. Interment will be held at St. Anthony Catholic Cemetery in Terrebonne.

Visitation will be from 5 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 31, at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Red Lake Falls, with a 7 p.m. prayer service on Thursday evening and also at the church for one hour prior to services on Friday.

Antoinette Marie "Nettie" Remick was born in Donnybrook, N.D. on December 13, 1909, the daughter of George and Antoinette (Heiker) Remick. Nettie was united in marriage in 1929 to George Perreault at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Red Lake Falls. The couple lived near Terrebonne. They then moved to a farm east of Brooks, in 1933.

The couple returned to Terrebonne in 1937. In 1941, they moved to John Helm's farm, spent five years there and then later moved to the Perreault Homestead. In 1974, the couple moved to Brooks, at the Senior Circle. In 1979, Nettie and George celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary. George died in 1980. Shortly after, Nettie moved to the Sunview Center in Red Lake Falls, where she lived until she died.

Nettie loved to crochet, belonged to the Red Hat Society, was an avid gardener, especially flowers and was known as the "Teddy Bear Lady." Nettie also loved to play cards, bingo and scrabble.

Nettie is survived by one daughter, Sister Clariet of Crookston; four sons, Francis (Ann) of Red Lake Falls, Steve of Fargo, N.D., Mike (Mary) of Kirkland, Wash. and Ralph (Deb) of Red Lake Falls; 13 grandchildren; 15 great grandchildren; one sister, Helen Brule of Apple Valley; three brothers, Bernard (Jeanette) Remick of Red Lake Falls, Edward "Bill" (Marion) Remick of Lansing, Mich., and Kevin Remick of Arizona; and numerous nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband, George; one son, James; her parents; one sister, Marion Aho; and four brothers: George, Dan, Joe and Ken Remick.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I started SSA retirement at age 62. Now, at age 63, I have become ill and could no longer work even if I wanted to. Can I file for SSA disability benefits without jeopardizing my retirement?

A: Yes, based on your current age you can file for SSA disability even though receiving SSA retirement. This answer could be very different if you were several years older. For instance, if you were already at or very near your full retirement age, formerly age 65 but gradually increasing to age 67, there would be no advantage to your filing for disability. If you apply for disability your SSA retirement will continue all through the disability application process and, if not found eligible, your existing retirement benefits continue unchanged. There are potentially two main advantages to you in terms of Social Security if approved for disability. First, differences in the way disability and retirement are computed would increase your monthly benefit amount. Second, people receiving disability can receive Medicare coverage after two years while those on retirement must be age 65. Depending on when your disability began you might be [illegible] for Medicare [illegible] than age 65.

As a [illegible] you first have to meet the work requirements before any medical decision is made. Disability insured status fades away over time but, assuming you worked steadily up to age 62, this should not be a problem for you.

General information about the disability program is on the agency Web site at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyfordisability. As part of the continuing Social Security move towards online application options, the Adult Disability Report (SSA-3368) medical background form is available online through the above link. Completing this form in advance, whether electronically or on paper, is definitely requested.

While not the actual application, the disability report is a major part of the overall process. It is where you fully explain how your illness or injury prevents you from being able to work, lists your medical sources and treatments, and details your education and work experience. All of these are factors in reaching the decision. Completion in advance at home where you have all your records available, greatly speeds up your application interview. # Area pianists to perform at state honors concert

Nine piano students of Marcia M. Knuttila of Thief River Falls are winners in the Minnesota Music Teachers Association (MMTA) State Piano Contest, and will perform in Minnesota's biggest multi-piano program. This 70th Annual State Student Honors Concert will be at Northrop Auditorium, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, on Saturday, June 4, at 7 p.m. The 650 winners are from all over the state and will perform 31 duet and piano duo pieces on 20 grand pianos conducted by Angela and Jay Broeker.

A total of 4,400 students from throughout Minnesota competed in the contest preliminaries held in February. From these, 1,800 competed in the finals held at Northwestern College, Roseville, on March 12 and 13. There are nine categories set up according to age level ranging from the young beginner to the college "Young Artist." In some of the categories a designated theory test level was a requirement. This is part of the MMTA curriculum, which integrates theory and performance.

Local winners in the Junior B category (ages 11-12):

Sam Brule, fifth grade son of Janeen and Tim Brule of Crookston. He received a winning score of 96. This is the first time Sam has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Brianna Drevlow, fifth grade daughter of Jodi and Joe Drevlow of Thief River Falls. Brianna received a winning score of 96. This is the second time Brianna has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Alternate winner in Junior B category (ages 11-12):

Karter Trontvet, sixth grade son of Karmon and Rick Trontvet of Thief River Falls. Karter received a winning score of 95. This is the second time Karter has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Winner in the Intermediate A division (ages 13-14):

Chantal Wilson, eighth grade daughter of Dawn and Ward Wilson of Greenbush. Chantal received a winning score of 97. This is the second time Chantal has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Winner in the Intermediate B category (ages 15-16):

Kasey Trontvet, ninth grade son* of Karmon and Rick Trontvet of Thief River Falls. Kasey received a winning score of 96. This is the third time Kasey has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Winner in the Senior A division (ages 17-18):

Sarah Packard, college student, daughter of Lynda and Danie Packard of Thief River Falls. Sarah received a winning score of 96. This is the second time Sarah has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Alternate Winner in the Senior A division (ages 17-18):

Kyle Trontvet, 11th-grade son of Karmon and Rick Trontvet of Thief River Falls. Kyle received a winning score of 95. This is the third time Kyle has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Winner in the Senior B category (ages 19-20):

Kathryn Knuttila, 12th-grade daughter of JoAnne and Steve Knuttila of Detroit Lakes. Kathryn received a winning score of 96. This is the eighth time Kathryn has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Alternate winner in the Senior B category (ages 19-20):

Jillian Larson, 12th-grade daughter of Jean and Mark Larson of Thief River Falls. Jillian received a winning score of 95. This is the eighth time Jillian has won at the MMTA State Contest.

Each time a student wins at the state contest he or she must advance to the next higher category regardless of their age.

In the event that a state winner is unable to perform in the Student Honors Concert, the alternate is called upon to perform.

TRF native survives first two cuts on The Bachelor

Thief River Falls residents who tuned into Monday's season premiere of The Bachelor may have noticed a familiar face.

Carrie Rud, 27, the daughter of Duane and Diane Rud of Thief River Falls, will be competing with 24 other women for the heart of bachelor Charlie O'Connell during the "The Bachelor 7."

Rud already survived two elimination ceremonies. The first of which, required O'Connell to send five women home based on his impressions of a two-minute speed date he had with each of the 25 contestants. Rud was one of a dozen women to be granted a rose during the two-hour premiere episode. The Bachelor season seven can be seen Monday's at 8 p.m. on ABC (WDAZ channel eight). Look for more information in this weekend's edition of The Northern Watch.

Tax saving begins at home

by Lenae Iverson
Community Banking President
Wells Fargo, Thief River Falls

April 15 is nearing – an annual reminder for many taxpayers that they need to put their financial houses in order this year so they can reduce next year's tax bill.

One of the best tax-cutting strategies for many consumers is right at a person's doorstep – a home and the equity he or she has in it. Using a home's equity is a smart way to manage finances, and it can provide potential tax savings come next April 15.

Like the interest on home mortgages, interest on home equity loans and lines of credit may be tax-deductible. To find out, consult a tax adviser.

According to the U.S. Department of Commerce's Census Bureau, 74.4 million householders owned their homes in the fourth quarter of 2004. Property values continue to grow throughout the country despite changing interest rates, and as a result, millions of Americans have built up substantial equity in their homes.

Value of real estate in the country reached $16.6 trillion in the third quarter of 2004, according to the Federal Reserve. Of that, $9.3 trillion of equity remained untapped. Only one in three of U.S. homeowners have a home equity loan or line of credit. That means millions of homeowners may be missing out on potential tax advantages.

Another reason to [illegible] a home's equity [illegible] home equity loans and lines of credit typically are lower than rates charged for other types of financing. That's especially true today when mortgage and home equity rates are at historic lows.

As these loans and lines of credit become more popular, financial services companies are streamlining the process of obtaining the lending. They also are developing flexible programs that allow homeowners to make smart and sound financial decisions based on their individual situations.

In addition to mortgage and home equity loan interest, a home may provide other tax-saving opportunities. Talk with a tax adviser to take full advantage of potential deductions such as prepaid interest and points that are generally deductible in the year paid if the points are paid to acquire property. If the points are paid to refinance a mortgage, the points must be deducted over the life of the loan.

For more general information about what's deductible in terms of home loan interest, read the IRS Publication 530, "Tax Information for First-Time Homeowners" and Publication 936, "Home Mortgage Interest Deduction."

A tax adviser should be able to help put a home's equity to work, keeping more of a person's income in his or her pocket. Home equity financing is a credible option for making important purchases and paying for major expenses at tax time and any time. It's smart to make the most of a home asset.

Prowler Speech Team earns second place at RLCC

What they lacked in numbers they made up for in determination. Every member of the Thief River Falls Prowler Speech Team placed in an effort that earned second place at the Red Lake County Central Speech Invitational March 18.

The Prowlers were led by Co-Captain Ana Olson and seventh grader Anne Hook, who took gold in Poetry and Prose Novice, respectively. Both pushed team standings even higher with additional fourth place finishes, Olson and Co-Captain Stephanie Liden in Duo Interpretation and Hook in Great Speeches.

Eighth grader Grant Spears earned two silver medals in Humor Novice and Prose Novice. Other silver medalists included Erica Wayne in Informative and Kari Hanson in Great Speeches. Bronze medals went to Matt Langland in Original Oratory and Matthew Kazmierczak in Prose Novice. Sixth Grader Abby Schmidt placed in Humor Novice and Drama, along with Peter Hoks in Poetry, Devin Spears in Humor Novice, Nicole Johnson in Prose Novice, Mark Campbell in Original Oratory, and Aisha Wood, winning her first ribbon of the season in Humor Novice.

With scheduling conflicts keeping a third of the team away from this meet, Coach Julie Desrocher expects the team to return to full strength in time for the sectional tournament April 9 in Moorhead.

Two area students participating in MSUM Eurospring

Thirty-one students will take part in an eight-week study tour in Europe this spring through Minnesota State University Moorhead's Eurospring program. Five of those weeks will be spent at Oxford, England, followed by a three-week tour of major European cities.

Two students from area communities will be participating in Eurospring. They include Kathryn Johnson of Roseau and Kari Swanson of Goodridge.

Eurospring, now in its 25th year, is offered each spring as part of a focus on international studies.

On the tour, running from March 17 through May 12, students will spend most of their time at Wycliffe Hall in Oxford, where they will enroll in courses and attend lectures on "From Revolution to Enlightenment." They'll also take several field trips to historic sites ranging from Stonehenge and Stratford-upon-Avon, where they'll see the Royal Shakespeare Company play "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to the ancient Roman baths and Warwick Castle.

The European leg of the tour includes stops in Paris, Florence, Rome, Venice, Salzburg, Berlin, Prague and Amsterdam.

The tour will be led by Thom Tammaro, an MSUM English professor and Jill Holsen, director of international programs.

Barrett Holen was recognized for his work in the regional and state science fairs at the Lincoln High School recognition assembly on Wednesday, March 16. Holen will participate in the international science fair in April.

Heden's 911 call was played in the courtroom Friday. During the 911 call, Heden can be heard saying his daughter has blood coming out of her nose and she is not responding. He said he had been performing CPR.

Amanda Kennedy was a Pennington County dispatcher on duty that morning. On the 911 tape, she could be heard giving CPR directions to Heden.

That 911 call occurred at 6:40 a.m. March 1, 2004. Twenty-eight minutes later, paramedics arrived. A short time later, Rose Heden was pronounced dead.

Both Doug and Heidi Horachek, the first people on the scene, testified Heden was like "a deer in headlights" that morning.

Doug Horachek, a Goodridge firefighter, testified Heden was nervously walking and smoked a cigarette despite being told not to in the presence of an oxygen tank. He went on to say it seemed like Heden was staring through walls.

"This wasn't the John you remembered?" asked Loretta Hillier, the other public defender representing Heden.

"Not that I remembered," responded Doug Horachek on cross-examination.

Heidi Horachek, who is married to Doug Horachek, remembered that morning as well. "I had a really bad feeling, and I woke up really early," she said.

Her husband's pager went off. "I said, 'Let's go. I'm ready,'" she recalled.

Some time after the Horacheks arrived, first responders were on the scene. Danette Jensen, a Goodridge first responder, was on what would become her first death call. She performed CPR on the infant as Heidi Horachek held the infant's hand.

Jensen testified Friday that she didn't have success with the oxygen equipment she had with her. She either needed a bag or mask, she remembered. Crying, she testified that she had asked for a plastic cup in which to put the oxygen tube. Jensen said there was no way to get the oxygen into the infant.

Hillier asked whether Jensen was sure she wasn't placing too much pressure on the infant's chest during the CPR chest compressions.

Jensen replied that she was not positive, but that other nearby first responders did not say anything to suggest she was doing something wrong.

Another first responder asked permission to baptize the infant once it was determined their efforts to revive her were futile.

"We were all just crying and trying to hold it together," said Heidi Horachek, who is not a first responder.

Assistant Pennington County Attorney Al Rogalla, the other lawyer prosecuting the Heden case, asked if the baptism affected Heden's demeanor. Heidi Horachek said it did not.

Jeff Olson, an EMT paramedic, notified Heden that emergency personnel were not able to save his daughter. About Heden's reaction, Olson testified Friday, "He shrugged his shoulders, said, 'Shit happens,' paused and said, 'Unfortunately.'"

Klumpp asked Olson what his reaction was to Heden's statement. "I've never seen anyone react this way," said Olson, who noted he has seen people react in various ways upon hearing relatives have died.

On cross-examination, Olson admitted that it was possible that Heden was in shock.

After learning the baby had died, Heidi Horachek wrapped a blanket around her. She gave the baby to Heden, who she and Jensen testified, smoked a cigarette while holding the child. They said the cigarette's ashes fell onto the infant's dead body.

Kyle Miller, a Pennington County deputy sheriff, was the first law enforcement official on the scene. Once he saw the baby was bleeding, he recalled Monday, he was suspicious. He also testified Heden's demeanor did not make sense.

Miller went on to testify that Heden said he woke his sleeping daughter to feed her, which Miller testified "didn't seem right."

Michael McGee, M.D., also testified Monday. McGee, a medical examiner for Ramsey and Washington counties, performed an autopsy on Rose Heden's body. During his testimony, her autopsy photos were shown.

John Heden looked at the autopsy photos several times while McGee explained them to the court. Wearing a plaid shirt, John Heden bowed his head closer and closer to a table after he looked at the autopsy photos. His parents, Russell and AnneMarie Heden, were also in the courtroom while the autopsy photos were shown.

McGee testified Rose Heden died due to cranial cerebral injuries due to or associated with shaken infant syndrome, due to or associated with assault.

McGee noted he also found Rose Heden had suffered injuries to her external genitalia, including a half-inch long and one-fourth of an inch deep tear. His other findings, he said, included surface injuries to her face and chest, bruises on her lungs, and hemorrhages on her heart and diaphragm. McGee also testified Rose Heden had eye and brain injuries consistent with shaken baby syndrome.

"I believe she was shaken," said McGee, who noted Rose Heden's head and eye injuries were both new and old injuries. He later noted he thought the infant had been shaken in the past.

Klumpp asked whether Rose Heden's injuries would be consistent with someone shaking an infant five or six times. McGee said it was possible.

McGee further testified Rose Heden "died fairly quickly after the assault."

Klumpp asked whether she would have survived if she received prompt medical attention.

"I don't think so," McGee said.

McGee also said that injuries on Rose Heden's chin may have been caused by the sleeper she was wearing that morning.

On cross-examination, McGee said he had never been asked about the possibility of the chin injuries being caused by Rose Heden's sleeper. As a result, he said he had never testified about it before the grand jury that indicted John Heden.

Rose Heden also had fingerprint injuries on her chest that may suggest she was held by her shoulders or chest and the person's thumb had pushed on her chest, McGee testified.

He later testified it could have been one time or multiple times that something had been inserted into the infant's genitalia.

Upon cross-examining McGee, Hanson asked him how the county obtains his services. McGee responded that Pennington County pays him to perform autopsies and to testify.

Hanson asked McGee if with 100 percent certainty he could say what killed Rose Heden and who killed her.

McGee replied that he could say with 100 percent certainty what killed Rose Heden. Regarding who killed Rose Heden, he said he would leave that to law enforcement.

Gary Pederson, a special agent with the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, began testifying Monday for the prosecution. As of press time, he had not finished his testimony and had yet to be questioned by the defense team. Hinting at what may be to come, Pederson said apparent blood had been located in several places in John Heden's bedroom.

Shunay Reese joins Lincoln High School's chorus this spring for the choir's production of a seven-show revue their calling "Blast It." In this scene, Shunay is singing a part from "Lion King." Tickets are on sale for the production, which will be performed in the auditorium at Lincoln High School Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2, at 7 p.m., and on Sunday, April 3, at 4 p.m.

Use shootings as a reason to talk to children about violence

present factual information to counter rumors they have heard.

- Limit exposure to violent movies, videos or computer games. The impact of violence for children is cumulative, according to researchers.
- Accept the fact that children of different ages will react differently. Younger children may show separation anxiety when their parents leave them at school or daycare, but older children may act out aggressive behavior or present rough or hardened exteriors instead.
- Review safety precautions and practice routines of going to and from school with children. Teach children that they should go to a trusted adult if they feel threatened.
- Be aware that other things going on in children's lives may make them more vulnerable to fears about violence. Children who have experienced a traumatic incident recently or who are grieving a personal tragedy will be more susceptible to anxiety about current events.
- Reassure your children that parents, schools and daycare centers are doing everything possible to ensure their safety. At the same time, emphasize the steps that children can take to protect themselves in new or frightening settings.

National Mental Health Association offers parental tips for dealing with bullies

Bullying is defined by the National Mental Health Association as the aggressive targeting of a child by one or more youths with repeated negative actions over a period of time. The actions are intentional attempts to cause discomfort or injury and can include name calling, making faces, obscene gesturing, malicious teasing, threats, rumors, physical bitting, kicking, pushing and choking.

According to the NMHA, bullying generally occurs when there is an imbalance of power favoring the bully. And victims generally don't feel they have the strength to defend themselves.

According to NMHA, bullies can be boys or girls. Boys bully more often than girls and tend to be more physical, while girls are more likely to use bullying tactics such as rejection and slander.

Bullies tend to pick targets who are weaker than they, usually because of frustration in their own lives. Bullies often suffer from depression, coming from homes that use harsh, but inconsistent discipline. NMHA estimates that 60 percent of bullies will be arrested by the age of 24.

NMHA offers these tips to help children deal with bullying in a school setting.

- Encourage children to talk about their concerns and to express their feelings. Ask them if they feel safe at school, and remember to talk to them at their level.
- Talk honestly about your own feelings regarding school violence.
- Validate the child's feelings. Let him/her know that serious school violence is not common, which is why incidents like Columbine and Conyers, Ga., attract media attention.
- Empower children to take action regarding school safety. Encourage them to report specific incidents like bullying, threats or talk of suicide and to develop conflict resolution skills. Older children should be encouraged to participate in student-run anti-violence programs.
- Discuss safety procedures that are in place at the child's school. Explain why precautions such as signing in of guests and locked doors exist.
- Create safety plans with the child. Identify an adult that the child can talk to if he/she feels threatened at school.
- Recognize behavior that signifies the child is concerned about returning to school. Children of different ages will react differently to violence at school. Younger children may not want to attend or participate in school-based activities, while older students are more likely to repress their fears.
- Keep the dialogue going. Make school safety a common topic in family discussions.
- Seek help when necessary.

County approves $25,000 for Barzen Avenue project

petition with signatures of Digi-Key employees. A total of 739 employees signed a petition supporting the Barzen Ave. improvement, 509 of which are Pennington County residents.

Larson said an estimated 304 cars per day drive on Barzen Ave. Most are Digi-Key employees, but some are not, he said, adding that traffic from other area businesses use the road. Being the main beneficiary of the improvements, Larson on behalf of Digi-Key offered to pay for half of the project's $150,000 estimated total cost.

"We've offered to put our money where our mouth is," Larson said. "And we'd like you to consider going another 10 (thousand dollars)."

Larson pointed out that a paved road will help stabilized County Ditch 70, preventing a potentially tragic washout of the road into the ditch.

The board approved an additional $10,000 contribution to the project, citing its benefits in the area of economic development.

Engineer's items

- The board agreed to allow Flaagen to advertise for project SP 57-627-10 once all permits are received.
- The board approved the final draft of the co-tenancy agreement for the joint operations facility. The facility will be shared by Mn/DOT, the State Highway Patrol, Minnesota DNR, and the Pennington County Highway Department.

Brian Malone of the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District presented a recommendation that he received from Carlson Prairie Seed Farm on how to restore acreage near CR 3 to natural wetland. Malone noted that BWSR will accept the project for mitigation of impacts for the construction of CR 3.

Once completed, the project will give the county 9.9 acres of wetland used for the project. Malone added that if the county wants to restore the site in order to create a wetland bank other factors need to be addressed. Native vegetation is required and existing reed canary needs to be managed.

The board approved the project at a cost range of $135 to $150 per acre or $6,750 to $7,500.

Pennington County Solid Waste Officer Howard Person and Kent Hudson of Omega of Thief River Falls presented two items to the board. The board approved spending up to $500 to repair exit and emergency lighting at the Pennington County solid waste transfer station.

Person and Hudson also discussed some hazard areas at the transfer station that need to be corrected. A wall in the loading bay has been caving in since the county took control of the facility in 2003 and the transfer station's roof continues to leak during heavy rainfall.

Pennington County Veteran Services Officer Steve Stone presented facts and figures pertaining to his position as a full-time county official. Stone pointed out disparities between his compensation and similar compensation for the same position advertised in Roseau County.

Stone, who said it was an unfamiliar position to talk about his accomplishments in an attempt to gain additional compensation, was asked by the board to prepare a report that compares his current pay rate with officials serving the same capacity in surrounding counties.

Stone will present the comparison report to the county's Comp. Worth Committee.

Other items

The board approved the Human Service Committee's consent agenda, presented by Social Services Director Ken Yutrzenka.

The board approved renewal of of the Thief River Falls Golf Club's 3.2 liquor license and a Sunday liquor license.

The board reappointed Commissioner Skip Swanson to the Northwest Regional Development Commission's board of directors.

show. These students, as well as the 50 singers, have no problem working their hardest at a three-hour rehearsal. The seven-show revue enables the dancers to perform a variety of dance steps including folk, ballet, African, modern, and swing.

"It has been a huge challenge to get the singers and dancers to this particular point but it is very gratifying to see it all come together and to see the students so very proud of themselves," said Michelle Duffy.

The grand finale is the show "Hairspray" and it is all about fun. The cast has its job cut out for them as they transport their audience back to the '60s era with sporty clothes, poofy party dresses and big, big wigs. The singing and dancing is exciting and energized all at the same time.

Tickets are still on sale until noon on April 1 at Kezar Music in Thief River Falls. The price per seat is $10. Tickets are going very fast so don't wait too long before finding your seat. Because the auditorium has been newly remodeled, seats are reserved. All remaining tickets will be sold at the door starting on April 1 at 6:15 p.m. for Friday and Saturday and at 3:15 on Sunday. The shows for Friday and Saturday start promptly at 7 p.m. while the Sunday performance starts promptly at 4 p.m. in the LHS auditorium.

The THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

Prowlers given special awards during the 2004-05 Thief River Falls boys high school basketball banquet included, front left, Paul Sjoberg, co-most valuable, most improved, top rebounder; Jeremy Sich, top free throw shooting percentage; and Matt Stuckey, co-most valuable player, most charges taken. Sjoberg and Stuckey were also named to the All-Northwest Conference team, and Stuckey was a Minnesota High School Basketball Coaches Association Class AAA academic all-state selection.

Thief River Falls boys high school basketball awards...

Sjoberg, Stuckey are co-MVP

Paul Sjoberg and Matt Stuckey shared most valuable player honors when awards were presented during the 2004-05 Thief River Falls boys high school basketball banquet held March 21.

Sjoberg was also named the Prowlers' most improved player.

Awards presented to team statistical leaders went to Stuckey, most charges taken (12); Sjoberg, top rebounder (7 per game); and Jeremy Sich, free throw percentage (78.6 percent - 33/42).

Sjoberg and Stuckey were recognized as All-Northwest Conference selections.

Stuckey was introduced as a Minnesota Boys High School Basketball Coaches Association Class AAA academic all-state pick; Sjoberg was on the academic all-state honorable mention list.

Athletic letters went to seniors Kyle Dobias, Dean Haugen, Stuckey, Sjoberg; juniors Kyle Lunke, Cody Schindler, Kyle Trontvet, Ross Helling, Jon Drees, Tyler Jensen; sophomores Alex Yaggie, Adam Rodahl, Ryan Winkelman, Lee Peterson and Sich.

Thief River Falls went 11-14 this winter. Hit hard by graduation losses, the Prowlers started the year with three straight losses and had a 1-4 record entering their Russ Smith Northwest Holiday Classic. A tournament title-winning performance squared the record at 3-3. It dipped back to 6-11 before the team's season-long improvement led to a 5-2 regular season finish.

"The biggest thing this year is that you saw us improve," said Thief River Falls head coach Chris McLean. "I thought we were probably playing our best basketball at the end of the year."

A year earlier a veteran Thief River Falls squad went 24-2. Stuckey was the lone starter returning from that team and a good part of the 2004-05 squad had not played together as a unit since youth basketball, pointed out McLean. The schedule, bulked up by the addition of Grand Rapids, Hibbing and Moorhead, added more challenges.

"We felt there were some games we lost that we could have won, but I was really pleased with how hard our kids worked throughout the year," offered McLean.

Among the Prowlers' highlights this year was a rare win over Moorhead, a sweep of Section 8A champion Marshall County Central and a strong showing (a 72-66 loss) against a Section 8AA winner Crookston.

While a number of underclassmen did play extensively, graduation will again take a bite out of the Prowlers' line-up since Stuckey and Sjoberg led the team in scoring and rebounding. "It's hard to replace players like Matt and Paul," acknowledged McLean. "All of our seniors meant a lot to our program."

With the inside game provided by Stuckey and Sjoberg missing, the Prowlers will retool, confirmed McLean. "We'll have to play differently," he said. "We'll probably increase the tempo, and I may have to use that dreaded word next year – zone."

Off-season work will be a necessity, stressed McLean. "Our commitment during the summer will be our biggest challenge," he said. "The kids have to work at it. We've got to put in the time to be better shooters, and we've got to use the weight room; the good teams are physically strong."

Northland softball squad is 7-3

■ Pioneers hope weather doesn't slow down solid start

It would not be surprising if, beginning in late-March, the Weather Channel begins to pick up a new group of viewers. The additional audience: coaches, schedule-makers, officials, players and fans involved in spring sports. The forecast is a particularly key element in the north, where snow melt, ground thaw and rising temperatures are needed before teams can do their thing.

Among the weather-watchers is Kathy Huschle, head softball coach at Northland Community and Technical College. Her team enjoyed early-season success during a series of games March 14-18 in Cocoa Beach, Fla., and in a March 25-26 stint inside the Husky Dome at St. Cloud State University. She is hoping to carry that momentum into Minnesota Community College Conference play that is scheduled to start with April 8-9 Northern Division doubleheaders at Mesabi Range and Vermilion, respectively.

The Pioneers will get their first taste of 2005 Minnesota outdoor softball when they play a Wednesday, April 6, doubleheader at Fergus Falls, an MCCC Southern Division foe.

Any weather-related delays that push those games back and extend the Pioneers' restricted indoor practice schedule could negate the edge Northland might have gained during their appearance in Florida and the Husky Dome.

Originally scheduled as scrimmages, the Florida contests have now been designated as official games that will be counted in the Pioneers' overall record that is 7-3 heading into April.

Northland's first-day results in Cocoa Beach included a 4-0 loss to North Iowa and a 4-1 victory over Brantford (Canada).

The Pioneers fell to Ohio Valley 10-0 the next day.

Day 3 was a wash-out due to rain.

A rematch with North Iowa produced another setback, this time 11-4.

The Pioneers wrapped up the Florida trip with a 4-2, 10-1 doubleheader sweep against Winter Softball, a Canadian amateur club.

"Florida didn't show us a whole lot on offense, but I'm really excited about our defense," reported Huschle.

Northland had a 4-0 Husky Dome visit. Friday, the Pioneers beat St. Cloud Technical College 10-2 and edged MCCC Southern Division foe Minnesota West 5-4. Facing the same two teams Saturday, Northland shut out St. Cloud Technical College 3-0 and handled Minnesota West 11-3.

"Our bats came alive in St. Cloud," noted Huschle. "We really stroked the ball, and we bunted really well."

Freshmen Shannon Olson (Bagley) and Rochelle Nelk (Wheaton) will handle the Northland pitching duties this spring. Neither is an overpowering, dominating-type thrower, acknowledged Huschle, but they have exhibited good control. "They throw strikes," she said. "They put the ball across the plate. We'll need to play some defense behind them."

Sophomore third baseman Katie Walseth (Thief River Falls) anchors the Pioneers' infield. Huschle said Northland has two quality catchers in freshmen Tiffany Malwitz (Plummer) and Angie Van Maasdem (Frazee).

A priority in the opening games was to fill the outfield positions. The preseason roster was loaded with infielders, but listed few outfielders. Position changes produced an immediate success story, according to Huschle, when freshman Bobbi Cummings (Frazee), a converted shortstop, quickly locked up the center field job.

"The Florida trip gives us an extra advantage over a lot of teams," explained Huschle. "The girls work really hard in their fund-raising efforts to pay for the trip, and they deserved the opportunity to play those games."

Northland's home opener at the Multi-Events Center is scheduled Wednesday, April 13, vs. Central Lakes. All regularly-scheduled, non-tournament match-ups with MCCC teams are doubleheader outings.

Rantanen is selected 8A Coach of the Year

Jake Rantanen of Marshall County Central has been named 2004-05 Section 8A Coach of the Year by members of the Minnesota Boys High School Basketball Coaches Association.

Under Rantanen, the Nordics finished 22-10 and made their first-ever state tournament appearance this winter. They beat Tri-County 48-34 in the Section 8A West finals and knocked off unbeaten, No. 1-ranked Clearbrook-Gonvick 78-60 in the Section 8A championship game.

In the Class A state tournament, Marshall County Central posted a 64-62 double-overtime quarterfinal win over Sleepy Eye-St. Mary's; fell to eventual champion Russell-Tyler-Ruthton 52-44 in the semifinals; and lost a 69-60 third place game decision to Cass Lake-Bena.

Deer Hunters group will meet on Thursday night

The Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association will hold its monthly meeting Thursday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m. at the Eagles Club.

Everyone is welcome. Door prizes will be awarded at end of the evening.

Mumm will coach 2005 Out-State all-star team

Thief River Falls' Jeff Mumm has been named head coach of the Out-State team for the 2005 Minnesota High School Football Coaches Association all-star football game.

Mumm will lead his team through practice drills June 19-24 at St. Peter leading up to the Saturday, June 25, match-up with the Metro squad at St. Cloud State University. Game time is 7 p.m.

Mumm has been the Prowlers' head football coach since 1985. His overall 20-year Thief River Falls won-loss record is 91-99. The Prowlers have had just two losing seasons over the past 14 years.

Mike Howard tops NCTC stats

It was a banner year for Mike Howard and the Northland Community and Technical College men's basketball team.

Led by Howard, a 6-5 sophomore forward from Grand Forks, N.D., the 2004-05 Pioneers won 18 games, gained a share of the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division title and finished fourth in the MCCC state tournament.

An 18-11 finish marked the most wins for the program since 1985-86 when Northland, coached by Chet Engelman, went 22-3 and reached the state tournament finals before losing to the University of Minnesota-Crookston 84-81.

Howard averaged a double-double for the year by scoring 21.4 points and pulling down 11.4 rebounds per game. He was named to the All-Northern Division, All-MCCC and National Junior College Athletic Association Division III All-Region 13 teams.

Freshmen Juwaun Bowman (15.4), Cyrin Shaffer (12.0) and Jason Koch (11.0) also carried double figure scoring averages this winter. Bowman, a 6-3 forward from Richfield, and Koch, a 5-10 guard from Thief River Falls, joined Howard as All-Northern Division selections.

Northland was 5-4 in the Northern Division this winter, earning the Pioneers their second state tournament berth in the past three years following a six-year absence from post-season play.

The Pioneers opened the tournament with a dramatic 81-76 double-overtime victory against Rochester. But they fell to Ridgewater 90-74 in the semifinals and dropped an 88-84 third place game decision to Fergus Falls.

It was Rick Nikunen's seventh year as Northland men's basketball coach following a six-year stint as coach of the Pioneers' women's basketball team.

Sen. Stumpf, northern colleagues continue regional trails fight

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf (DFL-Plummer) and his northern Minnesota colleagues are pressing forward with their fight to open trails in far-northern state forests to greater off-highway vehicle use.

Legislation is moving through House committees, and Stumpf appears to have majority support in the Senate Environment and Natural Resources Committee for his measure.

"We are making a strong case at the Capitol that the far-northern woods are not the same as other parts of the state, and they should be managed differently," Stumpf said. He is author of a bill that allows for shifting Department of Natural Resources designation from "closed" to "managed" in forests located north of U.S. Highway 2.

Stumpf is joined by fellow northern Minnesota senators Rod Skoe, Tom Saxhaug, David Tomassoni, Tom Bakk and others favoring expanded off-highway vehicle (OHV) use in northern trails and forests. His bill was heard March 14 in committee, but an effort to bring the bill up for a vote later in the week was unsuccessful.

"Despite a minor roadblock we faced in one committee, I feel confident that we will be successful in moving forward on this key issue for northern Minnesota," Stumpf said. "Testimony offered in committee was very persuasive in showing that a 'one size fits all' approach does not work well in our region."

Specifically, Stumpf praised bill supporters George Sentik, chair of the Lake of the Woods county board, and Mike Hanse, chair of the Koochiching county board. Their comments vividly contrasted the differences between the big woods environment of northern Minnesota and other areas. They also spoke of the strong connection to the land exhibited by area residents, and a rich tradition of conservation throughout the generations.

"My colleagues are gaining a better understanding of how deeply many of us feel about this issue," Stumpf said. "We have a reasonable approach with strong bipartisan support."

Off-highway vehicles include all-terrain vehicles (ATVs), off-road motorcycles (dirt bikes), and other off-road capable vehicles such as four-wheel-drive trucks and SUVs. Roads and trails in "managed" forests, as proposed for north of U.S. Hwy 2 in Sen. Stumpf's legislation, would be opened to motorized use unless otherwise posted.

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota escaped the heavy blanket of snow that covered the southern part of the state on Friday and into Saturday. When Jim and Cindy Wetterlund left Phoenix on a flight to the Cities, where they had their car, they were unable to land because the runways were closed with snow. After staying aloft for a long time, the plane took off for Fargo where they refueled and waited a couple of hours for the runways to be opened in the Cities. They returned to Grand Forks on Saturday. On Sunday, they joined us at the Community Center for the benefit dinner and spent the afternoon at my house.

Shirley Anderson and Eva Bernard spent a week visiting family in Chatfield. They stayed overnight at David and Jenny Janssen's home in New Ulm Saturday night, returning home on Sunday. Shirley attended the Southeast Minnesota EMS Conference in Rochester.

Judy Kleinvachter entertained Karl and Marcus Kasprowicz, June Kasprowicz, Joan Gehrls, Marie Steffen, Vance and Kelly Lefrooth, Wayne, Pat and Rebecca Larson, and Matt Hammer at her home this past week. On Tuesday, June Severson accompanied her to Irene's Cafe for those famous potato dumplings and visited with all their friends.

On Sunday afternoon, we gathered at my home to celebrate Hazel Anderson's 85th birthday and her daughter Cindy Wetterlund's 50th on Monday. All the families were here and we had a wonderful time. There was but one sad thought and that was that we would have to meet the next morning for the funeral of our dear friend and neighbor, Alyce Kittleson Anderson.

Art and Alyce Anderson were the finest of neighbors anyone could wish to have and having close relations with them all of their lives, we do miss their physical presence now.

I was ready to type the answer to the question that is often asked, "Why doesn't Easter come on a certain date?" when Danny brought the morning paper to me. When I saw the headlines and read part of it. I feel my good breakfast wanting to get in reverse. So, until next week, the answer will wait.

February's unemployment rate down

Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development Commissioner Matt Kramer recently announced that Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for February was 4.2 percent, down from January's rate of 4.4 percent.

The seasonally adjusted number of jobs also improved in February, gaining 1,500 – a 0.1 percent increase. The largest increases were in Professional and Business Services (+4,000) and Education and Health Services (+1,900). Goods-producing industries added 1,200 as small gains occurred in natural Resources and Mining (+400), Construction (+500), and Manufacturing (+300).

"This increase in the total number of jobs along with an improvement in the unemployment rate is further evidence that Minnesota's economy is on the upswing," Kramer said.

Editorial opinion published under this heading is intended to stimulate thought and discussion among our readers. Unless specified otherwise; the editorials are written by Editor Dave Hill and do not represent opinion of other staff members. Opinions in items from other publications may not coincide with the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

We need more messages of hope

It seems these days that our news reports are filled entirely with life and death issues - the shootings at Red Lake Senior High, the death of a local leader, Orin Green, the trial over the death of an infant, and the life-and-death struggle of young Adam Thompson. And then, there is the national news and its fixation with the shootings at Red Lake Senior High, the fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan, and the deep divisions developing in this country over the trials and procedural wrangling that will determine the fate of a severely brain damaged Terri Schiavo. Have we had enough?

We hope - hope readers and sufficiently provoked and awakened, hope for warmer brighter stories, hope for spring.

Congressman Mark Kennedy noted in his Easter message that the conflict in Iraq has sensitized all of us, not only of religious diversity, but to the sacrifices that our soldiers are making. "As we watched the service and sacrifice of those that have given so many millions (in Iraq) hope, we cannot help but be grateful." He encourages us to "embrace Easter's spirit of service, sacrifice and hope and be thankful to those who have shown us the way."

Other messages. Thankfully, there are messages or signs of hope from our religious and civic leaders.

Local response may be the only response we can offer to violence

In a story headline last week, we asked readers whether our students are safe. The story informed parents, guardians and relatives in School District 564 some of the efforts being made to ensure the safety of students, but it didn't give us an answer.

The entire story was written as a reaction to the shootings that took place in Red Lake last week. Of course, many people are now offering their reactions in an attempt to explain why this shooting took place. I think our culture compels us to look for answers after events like this, and ask what can be learned. I believe this response may even be a very healthy and necessary reaction.

Our culture compels us to look for answers after events like this, and ask what can be learned.

Since the shootings, there has been considerable talk about what can be done to prevent similar events in the future, as well as speculation as to the causes for this tragedy - the life of the shooter, conditions on the reservation, television, Internet, hate, teenage angst. In our story, which reflected on how our school district addresses the subject, readers were left to draw their own conclusions from the information provided, and, of course, their own experiences. The story did not provide an answer to the question posed in our headline - are our children safe? The story told us, however, that school officials, law enforcement and social workers are watching, and, more importantly, listening to students.

What can be done to prevent such incidents? After examining the events that transpired in Red Lake, perhaps only as much as we are doing. I think many people would conclude that other than immediate and direct intervention, once someone is committed to harming others, there's very little anyone can do to stop that person. Consider the fact that in this incident; we know that from the moment the young shooter at Red Lake drove onto school property until his death, less than 10 minutes had elapsed. Additionally, the first person killed on school property was the security guard.

From this information, one might wonder whether there is any effective security against a determined attacker. What we may have all learned is that the best defense to situations like this may be exactly what local officials are doing - planning, establishing crisis response teams, watching, listening, working with law enforcement and social service officials, and together, attempting to address student concerns and needs.

I think local officials are doing the best they can, but, of course, we also know that schools can't be expected to do and be everything. Parents and guardians must bear the responsibility of caring for their children, too.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanks for hosting basketball tournaments

To the Editor:

I would like to offer my congratulations and appreciation to the people and facilities that hosted the subsection basketball tournaments.

Jim Sims, Deb Jacobson and Tom Goddard, along with the event staff, should be commended for providing school participants and fans a first-class tournament. The event workers were dedicated, hardworking and helpful people who provided warm hospitality to us. Our tournament experience was positive right from the start when we were met by Lincoln High School personnel prior to our first game, and concluded with the same treatment for both of our games at the Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls (REA).

The opportunity to play at the REA is an experience that none of us involved with our basketball program will ever forget. The facility is top notch, and provides an outstanding atmosphere.

Even though we didn't play at Northland Community and Technical College, we have played sub-section tournament games there in the past, and have always had a positive experience. Also, we are fortunate to be involved with its annual holiday tournaments, and know from previous experiences, what a good job it does.

I hope that Thief River Falls is willing to host future tournament games. The location of your city, your outstanding facilities, and the hard work of numerous, dedicated individuals, make Thief River Falls the premier place for future tournaments.

Sincerely,
Vern Johnson

It's National Crime Victims' Rights Week

To the Editor:

April 10 to 16 marks the 25th anniversary of National Crime Victims' Rights Week. During this silver anniversary observance, we can all join together to honor crime victims and those who serve them.

Victims of crime are our mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, children, friends, neighbors and co-workers. Crime affects victims in many ways - physically, emotionally, financially and spiritually. When one person is affected by crime, we all feel its impact. Access to supportive services in our community, and the right to be informed of an involved in justice proceedings, is what justice is all about in America.

When President Ronald W. Reagan proclaimed the first National Crime Victims' Rights Week in 1981, only one state had a "victims' bill of rights." Today, there are over 32,000 federal and state statutes and 32 state-level constitutional amendments that define and protect victims' rights, and every state and the District of Columbia have a victims' bill of rights. The handful of victim assistance programs established 25 years ago has grown to include over 10,000 community and justice system-based programs that help victims of sexual assault, domestic violence, stalking, drunk driving, school violence, elder abuse, child abuse, hate violence, terrorism, identity theft, survivors of homicide victims, and other crimes involving victims.

The progress made in the past 25 years is indeed impressive, but there are still crime victims who are not informed of their rights, nor engaged as active participants in our justice system. There are still crime victims who are unaware of a variety of supportive services that can provide help, hope and healing in the aftermath of crime.

Justice isn't served until we realize as a community and as a nation founded on the principles of "equal rights for all, that violence affects us all," and that victims' rights represent the very foundation upon which our nation was created. We can be bystanders to justice, or we can recognize that justice for one person who is hurt by crime is truly justice for us all.

So, during 2005 National Crime Victims' Rights Week, and throughout the year, remember that crime victims have rights, and a wide range of services to help them cope with the aftermath of criminal victimization. If you, or someone you know is a victim of crime, help is available. For more information about victims' rights and services, please call Pennington-Red Lake County Crime Victim Services at 218-681-0883 or 218-253-4668, or visit our Web site at www.prlcvs.org.

The media has influenced our priorities

To the Editor:

In July 2002, my younger brother's 22-year-old wife took the family van and ran off to live with her Dad and teenage sister in Des Moines, Iowa. In August, my brother and I drove to Des Moines to take the van back. While walking past Suncoast in West Acres Mall in October 2002, he and his 3-year-old and 7-month old daughters saw his soon-to-be-ex-wife on television telling CNN audiences that she had been a teen runaway since the age of 15. She said she had been sleeping in abandoned warehouses, old rail cars, did drugs and huddled with other kids to stay warm. I wrote to CNN, sending copies of her children's birth certificates, wedding photos, and they never printed a retraction or even responded. There's where my faith in CNN's validity ended.

When Columbine happened in 1999, I was in a classroom at Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC). The teacher turned on the television and the whole group was shocked by the "horror in Columbine." I was the only one not surprised.

I wasn't surprised because there had been several school shootings in recent years, but this country has an attention span of about four seconds. One or two kids get shot, CNN and the media plaster it all over the nation, and then a week later, no one hears anything else because Britney Spears got married or there's another crisis in the Middle East. Columbine was of such a large scale that the world had to take notice. The message of Columbine, however, fell on deaf ears.

Columbine was blamed on Marilyn Manson, video games, black clothing and the Internet. Every comment in the news was all about those four things being to blame. Six years after Columbine, a story in the Grand Forks Herald blamed the same things for the shooting in Red Lake - Marilyn Manson, black trench coats, video games and the Internet.

Only one expert has publicly speculated on the cause, as I have - Dr. Phil. He speculated that the two teenage boys at Columbine had been ridiculed, harassed, ostracized and abused to the point they had no self esteem. They had no hope. Their hurt and pain was bottled up, and it fed on itself because no one would, and in time, couldn't help them. They, in time, grew to hate themselves as everyone else did, and became suicidal. Rather than just kill themselves, they decided that they would hurt the people who hurt them so they couldn't do it to someone else after they were [illegible].

Any mention in the media of mental and physical abuse by their peers, and apathy from school officials was hardly mentioned.

School officials, parents, neighbors and all the people who hurt those two boys are to blame, not Marilyn Manson, video games, black clothing and the Internet. Rather than accept this fact, they found another outlet to blame.

The media is a powerful tool, and other than the editorial section, needs to remain unbiased. Unfortunately, it is often replaced with fiction, twisted by personal views, influenced by the almighty dollar and ratings, or in certain cases, plagiarized from something they heard or read elsewhere. It has become entertainment rather than journalism. Journalistic integrity has become a thing of the past in today's market of information, and too much media has caused us to become blind to fact. It has shortened our attention spans so much that we all too quickly forget what should be the most important things to us.

Look at it this way. The worst attack on the United States since Pearl Harbor, 9-11, was only three and one half years ago. This past September, it barely made the news, beaten out by J-Lo, Britney and Martha Stewart.

There are clear benefits to being prepared

by Gene Hugoson
Commissioner
MN Dept. of Agriculture

"Be Prepared."

It's the motto of the Boy Scouts, and America's animal agriculture industry might do well to adopt it when it comes to preventing animal disease outbreaks.

For individual farmers, being prepared means having sound biosecurity rules in place and working with a veterinarian to ensure animal health. For state and federal agriculture agencies, it means doing everything possible to keep foreign animal diseases out of the country, and then having tools in place to quickly detect and contain any that arrive.

To do this effectively, we need a reliable system of livestock identification and movement documentation. That was the goal when the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced the formation of the National Animal Identification System (NAIS) last April.

In the event of a disease outbreak, the goal of the NAIS is to trace potentially exposed livestock within 48 hours. To have credibility with consumers and trading partners, the system must ensure the ability to track every animal that enters the human food chain.

With so many farms and animals involved, it will take several years to implement the full system. The first step is to create a sound method for identifying livestock premises. To get this done, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) and the Minnesota Board of Animal Health (BAH) are relying on the support and assistance of the state's livestock producers, sale barns, and other livestock facilities. In January, we mailed packets to 35,000 Minnesota livestock facilities asking them to fill out and return an enclosed premises registration card. So far, 10,000 people have responded. Livestock producers who did not receive this mailing can get one by calling 651-296-2942, or by visiting the BAH Web site at www.bah.state.mn.us.

Once the premises ID process is done, we can start identifying and tracking livestock.

Minnesota farmers prize their independence and privacy, and as they hear about this new animal ID system, many will have questions about how the state will protect their rights and respond to their needs. We understand this is important, and that's why, out of respect for producers' privacy, the system will collect only the information needed for effective disease detection and control. Federal and state legislation may be developed to specifically address producers' data privacy needs. Also, we have assembled a committee of leaders from Minnesota livestock organizations to provide input and direction at every point in the process. This committee will help us ensure that farmers' rights and needs are kept in the mind as the animal ID system is developed.

Beyond the clear benefits of preventing large-scale animal disease outbreaks, NAIS has the potential to create new value-added opportunities for farmers by providing processors and end users with a reliable method for verifying specific production claims. This verification gives processors and end users more confidence to pay premium prices for livestock raised in a desired manner. Of course, while individual farmers can use their NAIS data however they want, the state's interest in the data will be strictly limited to disease prevention and control activities.

For more information about NAIS or to register, please visit the BAH Web site at www.bah.state.mn.us.

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER MARCH 30, 1905
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

This Means You

"If you have not already signed the county seat petition, be sure and do so at once. Only a short time now remains in which to do this. Petitions are at the Citizens Bank and at Langseth's store where they can be signed at any time. If you know of anyone who has not signed, be sure and have him do so at once."

McGinnis Has Resigned

Special Meeting of the School Board Held Tuesday Evening

"A special meeting of the school board was held Tuesday evening. The resignations of J. B. McGinnis, Miss Helen McGrath and Miss May Toner were read and accepted with regrets by the school board.

"A delegation of citizens, W. W. Prichard, D. A. McDonald, Rev. Flesher, and Hans Langseth, appeared before the board and requested that Miss Edith Day be hired for another year. The board conceded to the demands of the gentlemen on the condition that Miss Day secure a complete second grade certificate before the commencement of the next school term."

A Pigger Is Arrested

Alleged That He Sold Whiskey That Caused a Man's Death

"Sheriff Forsberg of Marshall county has arrested Elias Lofstrom, who is charged with having sold the whiskey which John Bjorklund drank the evening he disappeared last December, after having visited at the home of Nels Braadflodt's place near Lund post office, in Marshall county.

"Lofstrom is accused of having, in company with a partner, conducted a blind pig in that neighborhood last fall which had been frequented on the night of Bjorklund's disappearance by Bjorklund and a companion. They left the blind pig late in the evening, after drinking considerably, and took a bottle with them. After proceeding a short distance, Bjorklund's companion fell by the wayside and Bjorklund could not arouse him.

"Bjorklund, to protect his comrade, built a fire beside him and he slept on for about four hours, despite Bjorklund's efforts to rouse him. Finally the fire communicated with his shirt and ate its way through to his breast, and the pain at last aroused him from his stupor and the two men continued to the Braadflodt home, where the two remained for a time and finished the bottle.

"Bjorklund's companion remained there for the night, while he started out for his home. That was on December 14 and was the last seen of him until the remains were found a few days ago by a searching party organized by his neighbors. All previous efforts were futile as a heavy snow fell the morning after his disappearance and covered his tracks effectively, baffling repeated efforts to find him. When found, the remains were badly disfigured by wolves, which had eaten away a portion of him.

"As soon as the remains were found, interest in the case was revived and Sheriff Forsberg armed with a warrant, started a search for the blind piggers who had sold the whiskey, with the result above stated. The remains of Bjorklund were found within a mile of Braadflodt's house.

"County Attorney Brown of Marshall county went to St. Paul Sunday with a sample bottle of the stuff Lofstrom and his companion are accused of having sold for whiskey. It is said to contain wood alcohol and some poisonous coloring matter, and will play an important part in the prosecution of Lofstrom and his companion, if the latter can be found. The settlers in the vicinity of Holt are much wrought up over the case and it will make the life of a blind pigger in that vicinity rather a hazardous one in the future. Bjorklund was single, but was a very popular homesteader."

*[A blind pig was a slang term referring to a place where one could get bootlegged liquor; a blind pigger referred to the bootlegger.]

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 YEARS AGO • MARCH 30, 1955

Polio Vaccine May Be Administered to First and Second Graders Here

"Detailed plans are now being worked out for the possible administration of polio vaccine to Pennington county children who will be eligible to receive it, if it is licensed, according to Dr. Daniel Greene, city health officer. As an announcement recently by state health officials, all first and second grade pupils in public, private and parochial schools in the state are included in the planned program, he explained. It also will be available to others through physicians at the same time.

"The vaccine, which will be furnished by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, is the same vaccine that was given to 440,000 children last spring,' he said. 'We do not know yet whether it really prevents paralytic polio. Until April when we will learn the results of the evaluation study now being conducted at the University of Michigan, we cannot know if the vaccine is effective. But we cannot wait until then for planning for the protection of as many of our children as possible. Vaccinating large numbers of children is a big and important job, entailing many procedural tasks that can't be performed over night. If the license is granted in April, we must be ready to start vaccinating at once.'

"A 50-cents charge per pupil will cover all administrative costs."

Lay Cornerstone of Evangelical Church On Sunday

"The laying of the cornerstone of the new building of the Evangelical Free church will take place at the regular worship service of the congregation, next Sunday morning, April 3, at 11:00 a.m.

"Pastor Joseph Swan, assisted by the Rev. Ole Sande, will conduct the service. The theme of the pastor's message will be 'The Hour is Come.'

"Although the building has been used by the congregation for some time, and is nearing completion with dedication services soon to be held, the official cornerstone laying ceremony has been postponed until now. All are invited to attend the service."

No Evening Hours

"Announcement is made in this issue that Thief River Falls barber shops will close at 5:30 o'clock every day of the week. There will be no evening hours."

Mercury Hits 47

"The long-awaited spring seemed to have arrived Tuesday when the mercury hit a high reading of 47 in the afternoon following 37 on Monday. Last Friday and Saturday, lows of -18 and -11 were recorded."

Two Men Acquire Trailer Court Site

"Leslie Snetting and Daniel Helle of this city stated today that they have acquired a tract of land on Highway 32 just south of the city for a trailer court on which construction will begin as soon as the weather permits. They said that the tract would provide for from 50 to 60 trailers. Their plan calls for the site to be developed along the lines of a residential area providing at least double the area for each trailer that is prescribed by law. This would also include a utility building with automatic washers and dryers, showers and washrooms. It is their desire, they said, to furnish a home-like atmosphere to the court by encouraging lawn area and gardening so that the court would be regarded as a little community rather than as just a spot to park a trailer." [At the time of this announcement, Mr. Snetting and Mr. Helle had an option on the land now used by the Best Western Inn South to Oakland Park Nursing Home. Unfortunately, they were unable to arrange for water and sewer coverage, so they changed the location to the present mobile home court on Eighth street.]

Birthday Party

"A large birthday cake decorated with ten candles centered the table and Easter decorations were used at the party given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. James Caldis at her home in honor of the tenth birthday anniversary of her son, Gordon. Games were played and contests were held. The guests included Gordon Caldis, Robert and Theodore Quale, Jerome Salveson, Wendall Pope, Rush McAllister, Jr., Donald Peterson, William Haug, Glyn Carlson, Clyde Shumway and Harvey Moe."

Bernus McClelland Entertains

"Friday evening Bernus McClelland entertained a group of friends at her home. Games were the diversion of the evening and Robert Holm delightfully entertained the guests with a group of piano selections. At 11:30 a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess' mother, Mrs. J. H. McClelland. Among those present were Lucille Bowers, Lorraine Rayson, Ardith Ahlstrom, Bernadette Waldorf, Jane Protzeller, Ruth Cronkhite, Lucille Larson, Bernus McClelland, Kenneth Pope, Ray Hanson, Elmer Hellquist, Harold Johnson, Harold England, Francis Stitt, Luverne Rolland, and Morris Novak."

Birthday Parties

"Mrs. Harry Winters was hostess Sunday at a dinner party in honor of her son, Billy, who celebrated his eighth birthday on that day. Following the dinner the little guests enjoyed themselves at playing games and contests. The honor guest received many lovely gifts. Those present were: Rachael Skatrud, Lorraine Swanson, Hazel Haggland, Stanley Johnson, Roger Roy, Lyle Rolland, Bobby and Warren Biskey, Erdmann Pearson and Billy Winters, honor guest.

"Mrs. Enoch Sundholm was hostess Sunday at a party in honor of her son, Billy, who celebrated his sixth birthday on that day. The afternoon was spent in playing games after which a delicious lunch was served. Those present were Eleanore and Imogene Johnson, Dellys Marie Gullickson, Rachael Skatrud, Raymond Larson and L. Gullickson."

Pearl Ortloff Entertains

"Pearl Ortloff entertained a number of her friends at her home Wednesday evening. The hours were spent playing games after which a delicious lunch was served. Those present were Myrtle Erickson, Alice Huff, Marie Kolseth, Alice Lindquist, Evelyn and Ivanette Thyren, Donna Brink, Evelyn Benson, Ruth Rux and Stella Peterson."

Augustana Lutheran Church
Aner O. Bloom, Pastor

"Swedish Morning Worship at 11 as this is the last Sunday in the month. Sunday school at 10. The Junior Mission Band is giving a program Sunday evening at 7:45. Let us encourage our Juniors by being present at this meeting.

"The Choir meets at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Notice the change of time.

"The Luther League will be entertained by the Herman Meline family Thursday evening at 8 p.m. A good program will be given. A novelty Japanese luncheon will be served by the Woman's Mission society Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 p.m. Everyone is invited. Come and see some of the quaint customs of far away lands.

"The North Star College Quartet will present a program Wednesday evening at the church under the auspices of the Woman's Mission society. A collection will be lifted for the North Star college. This will be a treat. Come and bring your friends."

St. Hilaire Charge
M. Dahle, Pastor

"Lenten services at 8 p.m."

High School Progress

Annual Slackers

"There are about ninety students in Lincoln high school who have no school spirit or sense of class cooperation as far as purchasing Prowlers goes. And, furthermore, we are sorry to say, this is even evident among a few Seniors who do not seem to realize the significance of this book. There seems no reason why the makers of the book should not go out for buying it 100 per cent strong since they expect the support of the rest of the classes. Their advertising campaign was fine but we believe they should say 'come and buy' instead of 'go and buy'. A good example means much especially in a case like this.

"The lower classes should also support the annual 100 percent as they, too, will have the same burden in the future. Of course, there are a few rare incidents, but these are very rare, when a student cannot buy one. I, as a Junior, am looking forward to 1931 when the Senior class will go out 100 percent and make the Prowler campaign even a bigger success than this year."

ST. HILAIRE, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA APRIL 1, 1905

News Items

"The village schools closed last evening for one week's vacation.

"The Soo will soon put on a day train, according to the THIEF RIVER FALLS PRESS.

"Miss Emma Hoff closed a five-months term of school last Friday in district number 24 west of town.

"About a dozen of the young folks of Red Lake Falls came up on the gravel train last Sunday and spent a couple of hours here.

"Al Edstrom was in from Hazel yesterday after lumber to build an addition to his store. He is keeping bachelor's hall out there but comes in here often for a change.

"The Ladies Sewing society of the Scandinavian Mission church will meet with Mrs. C. Fellman on Wednesday afternoon, April 5, at two o'clock. All the ladies are cordially invited to attend.

"The weather has not been the very best the past week except on last Sunday when it was nearly perfect. On Monday and Tuesday it rained and Wednesday it snowed. March came in like a lamb and tried hard to go out 'like a lion.'

"Thief River Falls has fixed the saloon license at $500 and limited the number of saloons to sixteen for the coming year. It is hinted that the successful applicants for a license will be compelled to pay an additional $500 to the county seat campaign committee before their application will be considered.

"The girls of the J. R. Club entertained the J. R. boys at a five o'clock dinner at the home of Alma Remington last Sunday. The evening was spent in playing 'Sherlock Holmes' and Bunco, Emma Hoff carrying home the head price. Carl Lund carried home the prize in a fruit contest. After a light lunch was served, the J. R.'s departed for home, happy but tired."

Ready for Work

"Everything is in readiness at the big sawmill for the season's work and they are all prepared to start as soon as the ice goes out of the pond. The crew for a night and day run will all be here next week and an effort will be made to break up the ice by raising and lowering the water in the pond. Manager Pettibone hopes to be able to awake the echoes by the big whistle next week or at the farthest, one week from Monday. The boilers will be fixed up the fore part of the week."

Heden guilty of killing daughter

Jury of seven men and five women deliberate three-and-one-half hours

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Monday, a Pennington County jury found an Oklee man guilty of murdering his infant daughter in 2004.

John Russell Heden, 33, was found guilty of three felony offenses of murder – first degree murder (criminal sexual conduct), first degree murder (child abuse), and second degree murder in the death of his 3-month old daughter, Rose.

Sentencing is scheduled Monday, April 18. The two charges of first degree murder carry maximum penalties of life imprisonment. The second degree murder charge has a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison.

The jury of seven men and five women deliberated for about 3-1/2 hours before reaching their verdicts. After 9 p.m. Monday, the jury sent word to the court that it had reached its verdict. With his head bent down, Heden looked down as a court clerk read the verdicts.

Approximately 16 people were in the courtroom, including Heden's sister Shirley Schmit. Crying after she heard the verdicts, she was the only member of Heden's family who was in the courtroom as the verdicts were read.

Several Goodridge first responders also sat in the courtroom as the verdicts were read. They were among the people who were dispatched to the scene after Heden called 911 to report his daughter was not breathing. They also cried as the verdicts were read. One of the first responders put her arm around Schmit as Schmit cried.

A Pennington County sheriff's deputy handcuffed Heden and escorted him out of the courtroom. Heden will remain at the Pennington County Jail until he is sentenced.

After Heden left the courtroom, Judge Dennis Murphy told the jurors this was the most emotional case in which he has been involved as either a judge or an attorney. He thanked them for their service. "This has been a long case, and it hasn't been easy for you," he told the jurors.

Defense presents its case

The jury's deliberations began Monday evening after Heden's lawyers, public defenders Kristin Hanson and Loretta Hillier, presented their case Monday. Heden did not take the stand in his own defense. Janice Ophoven, M.D., was the only defense witness.

The jury's deliberations also began after closing summations by Hanson as well as by prosecutor Bill Klumpp Jr., assistant Minnesota attorney general. Klumpp and Assistant Pennington County Attorney Al Rogalla presented the prosecution's case for about a week. The prosecution rested its case Thursday.

Ophoven, a pediatric forensic pathologist, was the only defense witness. She reviewed Dr. Michael McGee's autopsy report regarding Rose Heden. She testified Rose Heden had an old brain injury. Ophoven further testified that the baby's brain had stopped growing and was shrinking.

Ophoven said Rose Heden may have suffered a "devastating brain injury" and vaginal injury sometime

Hugo's buys pharmacy from Pamida in TRF

Hugo's positions itself for the future

by David Hill
Editor

As of April 11, Hugo's customers in Thief River Falls will be able to fill their prescriptions at the grocery store.

"We're excited about the opportunity," said Doug Driscoll, director of operations for Hugo's.

In the 17 years Hugo's has been in Thief River Falls, it has undergone at least three major changes. Adding a pharmacy will position the store for the future.

Driscoll explained that Hugo's approached ShopKo, the parent company for the Pamida store in Thief River Falls, some time ago about purchasing its pharmacy. The purchase becomes final on April 9. On April 9, Hugo's and the current Pamida pharmacy staff who have agreed to stay on, will begin transferring inventory to the Hugo's store. The pharmacy will open at its new location in Hugo's in Thief River Falls at 9 a.m. on Monday, April 11.

Customers of the Pamida pharmacy have been sent letters informing them of the purchase. Driscoll said the letter indicated that Hugo's

Students to start school before Labor Day next year

by David Hill
Editor

The first day of the 2005-2006 school year will be September 1, 2005. Monday, March 28, School District 564 Board of Education approved the District's calendar for the 2005-2006 school year, which includes important dates for such occasions as the first day of school, and Christmas and spring vacations.

While teachers will start work and inservice days on August 24 and 30, students' first day of school will be September 1.

The calendar approved by the Board of Education, is the culmination of many meetings and is not taken lightly or approved without a great deal discussion. One of the issues that always generates debate is when to start school.

Although there are proposals to prevent schools from opening before Labor Day pending in the Legislature, state law currently allows schools to open on September 1. September 1, 2005, is a Thursday, and this allows schools and students to put in two days of school before the long Labor Day weekend.

Quilters keep it together

Show at library in Thief River Falls through April

by David Hill
Editor

Sewing together pieces of fabric is bringing residents of northwestern Minnesota together. From now through April 26, residents of northwestern Minnesota will be able to see what the Thief River Falls Quilter's Guild members have made of their time and talent. A wide variety of colorful quilts will be on display at the Thief River Falls Public Library through April 26.

During the show, visitors will have an opportunity to vote on their favorite quilt. Several awards will be presented to the quilters who entered quilts in this year's show, including People's Choice, Mayor's Choice, Editor's Choice, Chamber's Choice, and Big Red's Choice.

While it may be fascinating for visitors to see the colorful display of quilts, the display only hints at a much deeper passion.

"It's totally addictive," said Deb Winjum, president of the Quilter's Guild.

Winjum said she's read enough material to state unequivocally that quilting is the fastest growing art form in the United States. Winjum said she learned to sew at an early age. Today, making your own garments really isn't cost effective, but for people who sew, there's still that creative urge that needs to be addressed, and quilting fills that need.

Winjum also dates the resurgence in quilting to the country's bicentennial. But when Winjum joined the Thief River Falls Quilter's Guild about 10 years ago, there were about 10 members in the guild. Now, there are over 70 members in the club.

No matter what the weather is like, she said, they come to the meetings. There could be a blizzard and they'd come to the meeting to fuel their passion for

Law enforcement receives theft reports

Theft: On March 16 at 3:06 p.m., the sheriff's department received a report of a theft from the 18000 block of 137th St. N.E. in Smiley Township. A welding torch set, a cutting torch, a welding tip, cutting torches and an old, green and red welding hose were stolen from a garage. The theft loss is estimated at $200. The incident remains under investigation.

Accident: On March 24 at 7:43 a.m., the sheriff's department received a report of an accident on Center Street West, half a mile west of 180th Avenue Southwest, in Polk Centre Township. At the time of the accident, Ivan Situm of Grand Forks, N.D., lost control of a 1998 Ford Explorer that was traveling eastbound on Center Street West. According to the report, the vehicle skidded on ice, went off the road and rolled north of the roadway. The report indicated Situm suffered cuts to his hand and head. Situm's vehicle sustained $5,000 in damage.

Theft: On March 27 at 11:16 a.m., the sheriff's department received a report of a theft from the 18000 block of 137th St. N.E. in Smiley Township. A bridge plank measuring 12 inches wide by 3 inches thick by 24 feet long was taken from the yard of a residence. That item is valued at $100. Tools valued at $20 were also taken. The incident remains under investigation.

Recovered animal: On March 28 at 8:40 a.m., police received a report that a boxer puppy had been found near the intersection of Nora Street and Tindolph Avenue. The animal had been reported stolen March 27. "Oscar" has since been returned to his family.

Theft: On March 28 at 11:30 a.m., police received a report of a theft at Northland Community and Technical College. A Sears Craftsman Advanced Auto/Diesel tool set, valued at $1,657, was stolen. The incident remains under investigation.

Disorderly conduct: On March 28 at 3:41 p.m., police received a report of disorderly conduct in the 700 block of Knight Ave. N. After an investigation, police determined Keith Michael Iverson, 37, Thief River Falls, allegedly gave a pornographic magazine to a juvenile under the age of 10. The incident allegedly occurred in January. Iverson has been cited for disorderly conduct.

Public nuisance: While on patrol March 28 at 4:31 p.m. near the intersection of Main Avenue and Third Street, police allegedly heard loud music coming from a vehicle two to three blocks away. According to the report, the department has allegedly received many complaints about the vehicle. Dylan Peder Hansen, 19, Thief River Falls, was cited for public nuisance.

Violations of protection orders: On March 29 at 1:41 a.m., police received a report that a woman had not returned from transferring her children to their father at Seven Clans Casino. The woman and man were allegedly located together at Hartwood Motel. Bruce Kevin Wilson, 45, and Nanette Karen Wilson, 39, both of Thief River Falls, were both cited for violating orders for protections. Bruce Wilson has a protection order filed against Nanette Wilson, and she has a protection order filed against him.

Trespassing: On March 30 at 3:08 p.m., police received a report of trespassing in the Lincoln High School (LHS) parking lot. Dylan Peder Hansen, 19, Thief River Falls, allegedly violated a trespassing notice issued by LHS and dated Oct. 4, 2004. The notice allegedly prohibits Hansen from being on school property at any time. Hansen was cited for trespassing.

Violation of harassment order: On March 30 at 3:30 p.m., police received a report of a harassment order violation at Northern Motors. Tracey Lee Larson, 35, Thief River Falls, allegedly made vulgar comments to a man who has a harassment order filed against Larson. Larson was cited for violation of a harassment order.

Third degree driving while intoxicated: On March 31 at 5:56 p.m., police received a report of an alleged drunk driver on Highway 59 South. The vehicle was stopped near the intersection of First Street and Knight Avenue. Darren Lee Ramberg, 26, Williams, has charges pending for third degree driving while intoxicated.

If readers have any information about the aforementioned crimes or offenses, they are urged to contact the Law Enforcement Center at 681-6161.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

19 people died on state roads in March

Friday, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety announced that preliminary Minnesota State Patrol traffic crash reports indicate 19 people died on the state's roads in March and nine were seriously injured. Nearly one-half of those killed and seriously injured were not wearing seat belts.

The State Patrol reported 33 traffic deaths in January and 21 deaths in February. To date in 2005, the State Patrol has investigated 73 traffic deaths; the statewide preliminary death number is 105.

In March, five motorists and one bicyclist died in the metro region, and 12 motorists and one pedestrian died in greater Minnesota. There were three deaths in Douglas County; two fatalities each in Carver, Stearns and Wadena counties, and one each in Anoka, Carlton, Dodge, Hennepin, Itasca, Ramsey, Renville, Sherburne, Wabasha and Washington counties.

"With warmer weather, there is a great increase in pedestrians, bicyclists and motorcycle riders," said Col. Steve Mengelkoch, State Patrol chief. "They need to obey the traffic laws, and motorists need to watch for them and allow them room on the roads."

Among the 17 vehicle occupant deaths, eight were not belted, two of whom were ejected. Five of the nine motorists seriously injured were also not wearing seat belts. Impaired driving accounted for four deaths; four additional fatal crashes are under investigation to determine if alcohol was involved.

Of the fatal crashes, four crashes were rollovers and five involved motorists crossing into lanes of oncoming traffic. Males represented 11 of the fatalities. The ages of the persons killed ranged from 16 to 81 years old.

Middle River man injured in accident Sunday

A Middle River man was injured in a one-vehicle accident Sunday night north of Holt.

Justin Elmer Charles Moen, 23, suffered neck and back injuries in the accident, according to the Minnesota State Patrol report. He was taken to Northwest Medical Center and later transferred to Altru Hospital in Grand Forks, N.D. An Altru nursing administrator noted Moen was listed in serious condition Tuesday morning.

At the time of the accident, Moen was driving a 1999 Chevy Camaro northbound on Highway 32, north of Holt and near mile marker 116. The vehicle entered the east ditch, vaulted over a field approach and came to a rest in the east ditch on its roof. Moen, who was not wearing a seat belt, was pinned inside the vehicle.

Moen's vehicle was totalled. The State Patrol was dispatched to the scene at 10:51 p.m. Sunday.

State's 2005 traffic deaths pass 100

Minnesota's year-to-date traffic fatalities reached 101 over the March 26 weekend - a milestone reflecting a dangerous pace over last year's road deaths.

Passing the century mark reflects a 35 percent increase in the number of traffic deaths compared to this time in 2004. Last year, the number of traffic fatalities passed 100 on April 12, and the year ended with 564 traffic fatalities. If the current rate continues, the Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) projects 761 deaths in 2005, or an average of more than two deaths each day.

The latest traffic-related fatalities included two men, ages 32 and 65, both unbelted who died in separate crashes in the west metro. Two other fatalities, a 40-year-old and 21-year-old woman, died in crashes in Virginia and Rochester, respectively.

"Many of these deaths are preventable," said Kathy Swanson, OTS director. "Each year, half of the state's fatalities are unbelted vehicle occupants, and of those, half might survive if they used seat belts." Of the 69 crash fatalities investigated specifically by the Minnesota State Patrol this year, 21 were unbelted.

Swanson attributes the fatality pace to traditional contributing factors - unbuckled motorists, speeding, distraction and impaired driving.

Historically, about 70 percent of fatal crashes each year occur in greater Minnesota on rural two-lane highways. Typically, the greatest number of fatal and serious injury crashes occur during during the summer months.

Included in the 101 deaths are six pedestrians.

Challenger Elementary holds sixth annual "Tea"

Challenger Elementary School held its sixth annual "Challenger Tea" on Thursday, March 24. The annual event celebrates Women's History Month by providing a different perspective for Challenger fourth grade students to relate to their grandmothers.

Each fourth and fifth grade student in Mr. Schafer and Mrs. Grosz's class interviewed his or her grandmother, asking questions such as: What did you and your family do on long winter nights? What did you do on summer nights growing up? What was your family like? How has the role of a woman changed? If there is one thing you could change, what would it be? What historic events made an impression on you? What new possibilities do you see or hope to see in the future?

Using the completed interviews, Lincoln High School literary arts students wrote a short skit titled "$1000 Blackout Bingo!" The literary arts class, taught by Connie Stock, includes Serena Kopecky, Ana Olson and Stephanie Liden.

"$1000 Blackout Bingo!" was performed during the Challenger Tea on March 24, by LHS Communications in Action students, Ana Hibbert, Harlina Carpenter, Laura Paulson, Alicia Hoff, Amanda Franks, Chance Chambers and Nathan Szkalarsky. That class is taught by Rosalifie Groven.

In "$1000 Blackout Bingo," the Communications in Action students played the role of senior citizens, driving to play bingo. During their trip to the bingo hall, the characters reminisce about the way life was when they were young. They also discussed how life has changed because of the many breakthroughs in technology that took place during their lifetime.

The Women's History Month project was sponsored by the Women's History Month Committee and Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. Women's History Month Committee members include Kelsey Blowers, Aliza Olson, Jan Strandlie, Lynell Wayne, Talicia Lerfald, John Hardy, Mary Dyrud and Cynthia Jorstad.

Mr. Schafer's fourth/fifth grade students who participated in the project include: Reed Bohm, Ryan Daniels, Haley Dickson, Emily Habedank, Aron Hejlik, Logan Johnson, Cole Lian, Jenna Lunsetter, McKayla Schindler, Jordan Solheim and Blake Torkelson.

Mrs. Grosz's fourth/fifth grade students who participated in the project included: Brooklyn Anderson, Kirsten Barth, Sam Cabrales, Alyssa Evanson, Chris Forney, Ryan Hoglo, Shashank Holalkere, Lilly Kainz, Nick Noel, Brandon Ortloff, Ben Robson, Jenna Svoboda, Bailey Swick and Victoria Yoder.

Northern Minnesota vegetable and high tunnel workshop April 13

Growing vegetables and other horticulture crops in northern and central Minnesota can be a real challenge. The cool short growing season and irregular weather pattern can drastically reduce production and cause a short harvest and in some years near or complete crop failure. To help vegetable producers increase their profitability by extending the season and reducing risk, the University of Minnesota Extension Service and the University of Minnesota Central Regional Partnership are sponsoring a full day educational session on Wednesday, April 13 in Staples at the T. J. Maxwell's Restaurant located at the east end of Staples on Highway 10. All growers, including Master Gardeners, are encouraged to attend.

The topics of the day will include: 8:30-9 a.m. - registration, coffee, rolls, socialize; 9-9:45 a.m. - season extension techniques for central and northern Minnesota; 9:45-10:30 a.m. - Fundamentals of High Tunnel Production, including why they work, site selection and construction; 10:30-10:45 a.m. - break; 10:45 a.m.-noon. - production of tomatoes, cucumbers and other crops in high tunnels; noon-1 p.m. - lunch; 1-2 p.m. - drip irrigation in high tunnels and in the field; 2-2:30 p.m. - balancing the nutrients in your soil; 2:30-2:45 p.m. - break; 2:45- 3:15 p.m. - varieties for northern Minnesota; and 3:15 p.m.- open discussion.

There will be no cost for the program. Lunch will be "on your own" at T.J. Maxwell's Restaurant. For further information contact the University of Minnesota-Crookston Regional Center 1-888-241-0781 or the University of Minnesota Central Regional Partnership 1-877-997-7778.

Mn/DOT reports road closures in Marshall County

Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) announced on Monday, April 4, that State Highway 317 and State Highway 220 from the junctions with Marshall County Highways 4 and 5 will be closed until further notice.

Steve Hufnagle, Mn/DOT Northwestern sub-area supervisor, reported his crews have barricaded these portions of highways due to water over the road.

Agassiz Swedish Heritage Society to hold annual meeting

Individuals of Swedish heritage will gather at Black River Lutheran Church on Saturday, April 23 at 5 p.m. for the annual meeting of the Agassiz Swedish Heritage Society (ASHS).

Eric Bergeson, owner of Bergeson Nursery of rural Fertile, will be the speaker. The location, Black River Lutheran Church, is a 118-year-old church and one of the oldest Swedish Lutheran churches in northwest Minnesota.

Registration for the meal is required by April 13 as the meal will be catered. Tickets are $10 per person. The money should be sent to June Mosbeck, 11492 180th Ave. S.W., Red Lake Falls, MN 56750. Her phone number is 964-5628.

The following ASHS members' terms are up this year: Mosbeck, Harriet Pearson of Red Lake Falls and Earl Erickson of Viking.

Bergeson will speak about spring plantings. He purchased the nursery from his parents in 1997. His grandfather, who was famous for developing the Red Splendor apple, started the business in 1937.

Bergeson writes a weekly column, "Down on the Farm," which appears in 18 newspapers in northwest Minnesota. He has also published three books. Bergeson has also recently taught courses in history and American government at the University of Minnesota in Crookston.

Black River Lutheran Church was started Sept. 24, 1881 at the log house of Andrew Sture about 3-1/2 miles from the present site. The church is 10 miles west of St. Hilaire on Center Street to 152nd Avenue Southwest and one mile south. Coming from the west from Highway 75, turn onto Center Street. It's about 10 miles east to 152nd Avenue Southwest and a mile south.

Beverly and Richard Robb announce March 19 marriage

Beverly Anderson and Richard Robb Jr. were joined together in marriage at Our Redeemers Lutheran Church in Badger on March 19, 2005.

Beverly is a 1997 graduate of Northwest Christian College. Richard is a U.S. Army retiree with three combat tours. Both are employed by Polaris Industries. The couple will reside in Badger, Manitoba, Canada.

Exhibit features 36 artifacts unearthed on NCTC property

A collection of 36 artifacts unearthed on Northland Community and Technical College property in 2001 will be part of "Remnants of Antiquity," an exhibit on display in the college's art gallery now to May 27. The exhibit is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is free.

The items, on loan from the Minnesota Historical Society, include ceramic sherds and stone points, a large reconstructed vessel from central Minnesota and eight projectile point replicas from Grand Mound.

Between 400 and 500 artifacts were found on the property, some dating back several thousand years. They were recovered from four separate archaeological sites on the grounds of the college. Most of the objects uncovered were ceramic pieces, but other items included stone tools and bone harpoon fragments.

The discovery came as part of a project by the Duluth Archaeology Center, a private firm hired by the city of Thief River Falls to evaluate how erosion was affecting archaeological sites on the Red Lake and Thief rivers. Out of 18 sites investigated, four had significant archaeological findings, all on NCTC land.

For more information, call 681-0742.

First Care to sponsor "Living with Grief" program

Each year the Hospice Foundation of America (HFA) presents a nationally recognized distance learning program, live via satellite, to more than 125,000 people in 2,000 communities. For more than a decade, this annual educational program has been instrumental in educating health care professionals and families on issues affecting end-of-life care. It also provides an opportunity for a wide variety of professionals – including doctors, nurses, ethicists, educators, social workers and bereavement counselors – to share and exchange ideas and obtain continuing education credits.

This year HFA's 12th Annual National Bereavement Teleconference focuses on "Ethical Dilemmas at the End of Life." The subject of ethics at the end of life generates an array of opinions and responses on methods to improve or enhance the quality of life for the terminally ill. Moderated by Cokie Roberts, ABC News political commentator and NPR senior news analyst, the program will be broadcast Wednesday, April 20, from 12:30 to 3 p.m. within the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls.

"Past HFA teleconferences have been very valuable and I personally encourage community members and professionals to participate in this year's event," commented Kathy Dahl, LSW, Hospice Family Services Coordinator.

Dahl works with hospice patients and families who are oftentimes faced with difficult decisions as they approach treatment options and care at the end of life.

"This type of education can trigger important conversations within families about choices and wishes in the event of a tragic incident," Dahl said.

Ms. Roberts will lead the panel of noted authorities that includes: Kenneth J. Doka, PhD, College of New Rochelle; Bruce Jennings, MA, Senior Research Scholar, The Hastings Center; Charles Corr, PhD, professor emeritus, Southern Illinois University Edwardsville; Bernice Harper, PhD, board chair and president, Foundation for Hospices in Sub-Saharan Africa; Richard Fife, PhD, Vice President, bioethics and pastoral care, VITAS Healthcare Corporation; Jack Gordon, chairman and CEO, Hospice Foundation of America; William Lamers, MD, medical consultant, Hospice Foundation of America; Richard Payne, M.D., director, Duke Institute on Care at the end of life, Joanne Reifsnyder, RN, PhD, University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing.

This distinguished panel of ethicists, educators and hospice experts will define, differentiate and demonstrate the interrelationships between values, ethics and law in health care settings and examine how cultural differences may influence ethical choices.

In addition, the social perspectives of medical ethics and how various health care settings may influence ethical decisions in hospitals, nursing homes and hospices will be explored.

For more information or to register for the educational program, call Kelly Rogalla from First Care Medical Services at 681-6189.

Kiwanis Club to offer annual scholarship

The Thief River Falls Kiwanis Club announced last week that it reached its Educational Foundation donation goals and will begin offering a Kiwanis Scholarship during the next academic year.

"This is very exciting for our club to know that we will be helping to ensure the education of a new leader from our community each year from now on," said Kiwanis Club President Barb Natvik.

The annual Kiwanis Scholarship will start this coming fall with student applications and the first annual scholarship to be awarded to a Lincoln High School Senior in the spring of 2006.

Ronald and Ordella Haugen anniversary celebration April 9

The children of Ronald and Ordella Haugen are inviting friends and family to share in celebrating the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents. An open house will be held for Ronald and Ordella on Saturday, April 9, at Faith Lutheran Church in Goodridge, from 2 to 5 p.m. A program will be held at 3 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Klockman and Nelson announce April 23 wedding

Alexis Leigh Klockman and Nicholas Alan Nelson are pleased to announce their engagement and upcoming marriage.

Alexis is the daughter of Mark and Cynthia Kaushagen of Thief River Falls and Kevin and Dena Klockman of Ogalla, Neb. She is a 2001 graduate of Lincoln High School and a 2004 graduate of East Grand Forks Technical College, with a degree in medical transcription. She is employed by Village Inn in Grand Forks, N.D.

Nicholas is the son of Gary and Barb Nelson of Thief River Falls. He is a 2001 graduate of Lincoln High School and is currently employed by Concrete Inc. of Grand Forks, N.D.

The couple will be married on April 23, 2005 at Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Thief River Falls, beginning at 4 p.m. A reception and dance will follow at the Thief River Falls Golf Club, beginning at 6 p.m.

Johnson and Miller announce wedding plans

Doug and Teri Johnson of Roseau announce the engagement of their daughter, Kylee, to Mark Miller.

Mark is the son of James Miller of Indian Springs, Ohio and Libby Perrine of Ludlow, Kent.

Grandparents of the couple are John and Deloris Miller of Cincinatti, Ohio, Catlett Helm of Cincinatti, Ohio, Ormond Johnson of Thief River Falls and Paul and Doris Fish of Karlstad.

Mark is finishing his masters in education degree at Dakota Wesleyan University in Mitchell, S.D. and is currently working at Mitchell High School. He is also the head track and field coach at MHS.

Kylee is a graduate of Bethel College. She started her masters in sports pedagogy at South Dakota State University, Brookings, S.D. She is currently employed at Dakota Wesleyan University as the head volleyball coach and PE instructor.

A July 2 wedding is planned at Mitchell Wesleyan Church in Mitchell, S.D.

LSS to address immediate needs in Red Lake Community

In response to emerging needs in the greater Red Lake Community, Lutheran Social Service is developing trauma and recovery plans to help children and families affected by the school tragedy on March 21.

"We've met with local pastors and community leaders in the Red Lake area who want to partner with us to offer resources and support to help the community get through this tragedy," explained Melanie Davis, director of LSS Disaster Services. "People who are affected need emotional support, reassurance, a sense of safety and tools to sort through personal trauma. Those who are directly ministering to children and families, teachers, funeral directors and others need support as well. We know from our experience in natural and human-caused disasters that recovery and grief work take a long time."

Davis said programs being developed include the following:

- Special camp for children - Plans are underway to offer a week-long, faith-based camp in the summer called Joseph's Journey which is modeled after the biblical story of Joseph, who suffered violence at the hands of his brothers, was sold into slavery and was unjustly imprisoned. Through the camp, children will process their own experiences, be surrounded by support, find comfort in knowing that their peers have similar fears and gain increased confidence and security. Plans are to offer the camp in Red Lake-area churches, and adapt the curriculum as needed for other Native American children who follow a different faith tradition.
- Trauma counseling and support - Trained trauma professionals in disaster plan to offer immediate counseling and trauma support to children, families, ministers, teachers and care providers, as well as special forums designed for various audiences that create a greater understanding of the effects of trauma and grief on individuals and communities.
- Immediate crisis needs - Financial support will be offered to help families face loss of income or additional expenses that impacted persons have experienced with medical bills, transportation and childcare costs.

Lutheran Social Service is calling on Minnesotans to help in these and other recovery efforts that will be needed over the long term. To make a financial contribution, send donations to LSS of Minnesota Disaster Services, 2485 Como Ave, 55108, memo: Red Lake Area Recovery. For online contributions, visit www.lssmn.org/disaster.

State DAV officer meets with DAV and Auxiliary

The Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 14 and Auxiliary, Unit 14, met on Monday, March 21, for a 9 a.m. breakfast at the Northland Inn. They were honored to have Sandra Butler, Auxiliary State Senior Vice Commander from Bemidji as their guest.

Commander Jim Sheridan presided at the chapter meeting and Auxiliary Commander, Phyllis Sheridan, presided at the Auxiliary meeting.

It was announced that the 59th annual State Convention of the DAV and Auxiliary will be held in Rochester, May 5-8, at the Kahler Grand Hotel. National DAV Commander, Jim Sursely, has appointed Jim Sheridan as his aide at the state convention.

Following the business meeting, the Auxiliary had an election of officers. Elected were Phyllis Sheridan, commander; Doris Heuer, senior vice commander; Bette Laurent, junior vice commander; Eleanor Tommervik, chaplain; Edna Bendickson; legislative chairman; Bernie Howlett, patriotic instructor; Jean Boyle, sergeant-at-arms; and Tillie Gebhardt, adjutant treasurer.

Auxiliary members are reminded to bring items to the next meeting for the silent auction to be held at the State Convention.

The Crookston Chapter of the DAV and Auxiliary will meet again on Monday, April 18, for a breakfast meeting at 9 a.m. at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

TRF Lions Club to host pancake breakfast April 10

The Thief River Falls Lions Club pancake breakfast will be held on Sunday, April 10 at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls, from 8 a.m. to noon. Donations are encouraged. Proceeds will go to the Thief River Falls Lions' Park improvements.

The Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats will perform at 7:30 p.m. *Sunday, April 10, at the Lincoln High School auditorium. The performance is among the events scheduled for the 2004-2005 Thief River Falls Entertainment Series.

Entertainment Series to present acrobats

The Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats will perform at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, April 10. The performance is part of the 2004-2005 Thief River Falls Entertainment Series.

For over 25 years, Danny Chang and his troupe of acrobats have traveled throughout the world with their centuries-old feats of balancing, tumbling, juggling and contortion. On Sunday, April 10, they will be bringing their performance to Thief River Falls.

In China, acrobats are revered in much the same way prima ballerinas and opera singers are in the West. The performers of the Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats represent the best of this honored tradition, mixing award-winning acrobatics, traditional dance, spectacular costumes and ancient and contemporary theatrical techniques to present a show of breathtaking skill and spellbinding beauty.

The Chinese Golden Dragon Acrobats have become the world's leading Chinese acrobatic troupe, performing more than any other company. Chang, director of the troupe and a world-renowned impresario for Chinese acrobatics, and choreographer Angela Chang, combine their expertise, love of their art, and life-long discipline in producing tours for the group. Their dedication has brought their company around the world to over 65 countries on five continents, including performances at such prestigious venues as the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Germany's Elspe Festival, the Brooklyn Academy of Music, Caesar's Palace in Atlantic City, and the Seattle Children's Festival. The group has also won numerous awards.

Tickets for this performance will be available at the door.

"Beauty and the Beast" auditions to be held April 14-16

Actors, singers, musicians and dancers are being sought for the Thief River Falls Community Arts Council's summer production of Disney's "Beauty and the Beast."

The Arts Council is one of only five professional and amateur theater troupes to receive performance rights to produce it in the Minnesota and Manitoba, Canada, area. Heidi Hoks will direct the local production, and Linda Samuelson is the musical director. Performances will be held June 14-19 at the Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) theater.

Auditions will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. April 14 and 15 and again from 1 to 3 p.m. April 16 in the NCTC theater.

Those auditioning will be asked to sing 18 bars of a song of their choice. For those auditioning only for the ensemble, this will be all they need to do. Actors auditioning for a role or for dance sequences will also be asked to read selected pieces of the scripts and perform a short stage movement that will be taught at the audition. The stage movement will be done in a group.

Informational audition sheets, which explain the audition process, can be picked up at either the Thief River Falls Public Library or the NCTC Music Department. A tentative rehearsal schedule will be posted at NCTC and the library as well.

16-hour course for daycare licensing offered during April and May

For those interested in getting licensed for daycare, new to daycare and providers who want training that completely covers the essentials in licensed daycare, Minnesota Licensed Family Child Care Association is bringing the essential elements training to Ralph Engelstad Arena-Thief River Falls.

This 16-hour course covers all the basics, including creating suitable environments for children, nutrition record keeping and behavior guidance. Providers will also receive $75 worth of free books by Tom Copeland and Redleaf Press.

Classes are Thursdays, April 14 and 28 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Saturday, April 30 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (attendees need to bring their own lunch) and Tuesday, May 17 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. This training is free for providers who attend all classes. Ten hours of infant/toddler training will also be included in this program. Certificates will be given to participants upon completion. Class size is limited. Call Heidi at 681-6624 or Terri at 1-800-652-9704 for more information.

SON Northern Lights branch to meet April 9

Visitors are welcome at North Star Apartments in Roseau on Saturday, April 9, at 7 p.m., when the area Northern Lights (Nordlys) branch of the Sons of Norway (SON) will gather for a vicarious visit to Korea. Long-Woo ("Mike") Park, an exchange student currently studying with 10th and 11th graders at Roseau High School, will speak about his homeland and also share his musical talent at the piano. Park arrived here to live with Brad and Deb Tubner in January.

As usual, refreshments will follow the program. SON members enjoy nurturing and sharing their heritage at regular monthly meetings on second Saturdays during the school year. On May 14, the group encourages visitors to come and bring a sample of a favorite food for the annual potluck "smorgasbord" supper at 6:30 p.m. This will be an early-bird celebration of the Norwegian national holiday known as Syttende Mai (May 17), comparable to July 4 in the United States of America.

Although no regular monthly meetings are held during the summer, SON looks forward to celebrating the traditional Mid-summer equinox (a little early) during the local Scandinavian Festival, June 10-12 in Roseau.

Two simple service projects are ongoing. Canceled postage stamps may be brought to any meeting. These are relayed annually to a rehabilitation hospital in Norway. The upper right-hand corner of each envelope should be snipped off, leaving about an inch of the envelope around the used stamps. There is no need to peel the stamps off of the paper.

Campbell product labels (front only) and Box Tops for Education may also be brought to any meeting. These are transferred to Roseau Elementary School to help purchase equipment for student use. Members who live in other school districts are encouraged to deliver labels and box tops to their own schools.

Dick Spyhalski, former chief executive officer at Northwest Medical Center, received a mantel clock from Wally Sparby, vice chairperson of the Medical Center's Board of Directors during a recent meeting. The clock was awarded in appreciation of Spyhalski's 22-and-one-half years of dedicated service to Northwest Medical Center, Thief River Falls

Rep. Brita Sailer supports budgeting for priorities

Debate on the House Budget Resolution March 29 marked the beginning of floor action on crafting the state budget.

The resolution (HR6) passed the House late in the afternoon by a 67-66 margin after much discussion over the condition of public schools and healthcare systems in the state.

Rep. Brita Sailer voted against the resolution citing concern with the lack of flexibility to provide adequate funding for healthcare and the reliance on balancing the budget by raising property taxes.

"The budget numbers proposed by the House looks a great deal like the numbers proposed by the governor," said Sailer. "At this point in the process, I simply can not support his $441 million increase in the property tax burden for Minnesota families."

Sailer voted in favor of an amendment that would increase the maximum limit on general fund expenditures by $358 million, an amount that would be targeted to students and classrooms on a per pupil basis across the state. The amendment offered by Rep. Dan Dorman (R-Albert Lea) and Rep. Mindy Greiling (DFL-Roseville) failed on a 61-72 vote.

"I supported the amendment because I made a commitment to constituents that I would work to provide adequate and equitable funding for public education," said Sailer. "Our rural schools deserve the same quality of education as students in property-wealthy districts like those in the suburbs. If we rely on property taxes to pay for public education, our rural schools will suffer on the same path we are now with teacher layoffs and less opportunity for students."

Pennington SWCD to hold annual banquet

The Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) will hold its annual banquet at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 12 at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

At the banquet, awards will be presented to Joppru Farms, Outstanding Conservationist winner, and Wayne and Sheila Johnson, Rural Beautification winners.

The Trinity Trio will provide musical entertainment. Tickets are $10 and must be purchased in advance. Contact the SWCD Office at 683-7075 to make reservations.

Evening Job Fair April 13 at NCTC

Minnesota WorkForce Center Evening Job Fair will be from 5 to 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 13, at the WorkForce Center, which is on the east end of Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

The Evening Job Fair will feature 12 Minnesota employers with openings. Those employers come from East Grand Forks, Greenbush, Grygla, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Warroad, Warren, Thief River Falls and Grand Forks, N.D. Find out about these jobs and about federal jobs protecting the borders of the United States.

Applicants should be prepared to interview for jobs in sales, manufacturing, machine operation, clerical, law enforcement, technical fields, drafting, HVAC, welding, management and engineering.

Women's Fund announces request for proposals

The Northwest Minnesota Women's Fund is calling for funding proposals for programs and services that benefit women and girls within the 12-county Northwest Minnesota Foundation (NMF) service area. Organizations with 501(c)(3) status as determined by the Internal Revenue Service are eligible to apply.

The Women's Fund will consider grant requests of up to $1,000 addressing one or more of the following areas meeting the needs of females: cultural interactions, economic development, education, healthcare or housing. Manner of presentation can include forums, speakers, workshops, individual career counseling, or scholarships for state and national conferences.

Selection criteria will focus on how the project/program meets the Women's Fund mission, the scope of the project/program focusing beyond traditional opportunities, how the project/program is inclusive to all types of diversity, the geographic area served; and, the number of participants served, number of communities served and number of organizations served.

The mission of the Women's Fund is that women are an essential resource in communities; they are vital partners in the social and economic stability of the region. Formed in 1997 as a tax-exempt charitable component of the NMF, the Women's Fund serves as a catalyst for improving the quality of life for women and girls – promoting ideas and supporting programs for the strengthening and empowerment of all women.

Counties served by NMF are Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

The deadline for submission of proposals is May 3. The grants will be awarded by June 30. To obtain an application, contact Lisa Peterson, Women's Fund coordinator, at 1-800-659-7859, or e-mail her at lisap@nwmf.org. The grant application and guidelines are also available on the NMF Web site (www.nwmf.org).

...I Wish I'd a' Known

What do you say when a pope dies? John Paul, I wish I'd a known ya better? Although he was the Holy Father for 27 years, I didn't know what an interesting person he was until I started to hear stories about him after his death. Now, seeing pictures of the energetic, vibrant person he was and learning more about him, I can understand what a magical man he was, and how it made him a pope who will always be remembered.

It is moving to see the love he had for everyone, not just for the lovable, but for those who were suffering and afflicted. Watch his face as he bestows a kiss upon or strokes the tender face of a child, as he pats the cheek of an old person, as he embraces the infirm. Over and over, time and time again, we see his love shining through in his eyes, his smile and his tears.

He loved music and appeared to revel in the crowds of people he attracted. When he laughed, he did so with his entire body; when he listened, he listened with his heart and not just his ears; when he spoke, he spoke with a tongue touched by the Holy Spirit.

He was a passionate man. He was so passionate about his convictions that he was often outspoken in his beliefs. He was not afraid to speak his stand on human rights to those who needed to change. He wanted to awaken the world to the dignity of mankind and to make governments take responsibility for uplifting the living conditions of their people.

Because he knew heart-felt suffering from the time he was very young, he could understand those who suffered. Because he knew pain most of his life, he understood those who lived with pain. He had empathy for others that radiated from him in waves.

No matter where he went, he attracted the young people. They appeared to love him, loved to be around him, loved to interact with him, loved to perform for him. And he reveled in it.

He had a particular affinity for the Blessed Virgin, perhaps because he lost his own blessed mother at the age of eight. You could hear his devotion to the mother of Jesus as he spoke about her with such veneration.

He was a mystical man. We could see it when he prayed using his entire body, leaning on his cross, eyes closed, lips moving, concentrating his entire being on his supplications. We could hear it in his words, as he allowed us to share in his mysticism. He truly believed in heaven and shared that assurance with the millions of people he met in his life, his certainty of the life to come leaping through crowds like electricity.

He was a moral man. He believed in the goodness of man because he was good and he saw that goodness in everyone else. In a world of selfishness, immorality, crimes against humanity, wars and terror, he stood firm on morality and the dignity of man. There was never any doubt but that he was a person of integrity and honor and worthy of our respect.

No matter whether we agreed with him all of the time, we must admit that he was been a major influence for good throughout these years. He has been responsible for changes in the world that will reverberate for a long, long time. I think we had a People's Pope and we will be made more aware of it as time passes.

CSP application packages are now available

With the sign up for the USDA Conservation Security Program (CSP) underway, interested agricultural producers are encouraged to complete application packages that are available at their local Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) offices.

These packages needed to be completed and returned to NRCS before application appointments can be made. Although the sign up continues through May 27, producers are encouraged to complete and return their application packages as soon as possible so that it can be reviewed and an appointment can be scheduled before spring field work begins.

Producers who have questions are encouraged to view the CSP site on the NRCS Web site (www.mn.nrcs.usda.gov/programs) or contact their local NRCS offices. In Thief River Falls, that phone number is 681-1612, extension 3.

ACTIVITIES

Egg Folks

Set out plastic egg halves, marker, glue and scraps of yarn and fabric, and have your child turn plastic eggs into little people. To make an egg person, turn an egg half upside down and glue yarn "hair" to the rounded end. Draw facial features with a marker and glue on fabric scraps for clothing.

Ring-Ring

Make a long distance telephone by connecting two halves of a plastic egg with a six to eight-foot piece of string. Poke a hole in the rounded end of each egg half and thread the phone string through it. Knot the string tightly on the inside of the egg cup. Then show the children how to use the "telephone" by speaking into or listening from the open end of the egg.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's activities feature, you will need a basket with Easter grass and different colored plastic eggs.

JOKE OF THE WEEK

Q: What did Tennessee?

A: The same thing that Arkansas!

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls Public Library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Numberoff, Laura. "What Grandpas Do Best/What Grandmas Do Best." One side of this upside-down book celebrates all of the things grandmothers do for their grandchildren. Turning the book over and around produces a similar celebration of grandfathers.

Numeroff, Laura. "What Uncles Do Best/ What Aunts Do Best." Another upside down book that celebrates all of the wonderful things aunts and uncles do.

Parr, Todd. "The Daddy Book." This book looks at a variety of fathers, with lots of hair and little hair, making cookies and buying doughnuts, camping out and taking naps, and hugging and kissing their children.

VIDEO VARIETY

New on DVD for your little ones! "Home on the Range." A trio of cows (Maggie, Mrs. Calloway and Grace) hit the high prairie to track down a cattle rustler named Alameda Slim in hopes that the reward money will save their farm. With the aid of Buck, a horse with heroic ambitions, the bovine avengers track the villain to his lair and save the day.

MAGAZINE MENTION

How do you like your eggs? In the April issue of "Ranger Rick," look at the different kinds of animal eggs and find out how other animals eat them!

PARENTING TIPS

Spring Gardening

As you do your gardening, don't forget to include your young child in the process. There are many ways to involve children, from letting them help you with "your" garden to letting them have "their own" garden. Having their own garden can mean something as small as a milk carton filled with dirt. No matter how you choose to involve them, remember that this is another activity that can be a real together-project and a real "educational" project.

Through gardening, children get a chance to see the miracle of nature happen as the tiny seed grows into a plant and then possibly into a flower or something to eat. They learn that this is something living and it needs certain conditions and care to grow. It needs the right amount of water and the right amount of sun to grow and be healthy. If it is neglected, it could die.

Most plants will require some patience as they grow very slowly by a child's standard. Parents will need to help their children understand that even though we can't see the seed under the ground it is growing and will come through the ground when it is ready. Once the plant is above the ground, you may want to measure it weekly and keep a growth chart to help your child see the changes that take place.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the seeds: their size, shape and color. Talk about how the plant gets its food from the dirt and water. As the plant grows, name the different parts of it: stem, leaf, etc.

My Favorite Thing

When I think of my dog biting the mailman and getting sent out of town, my finger getting stung by a bee, or when I'm just experiencing general feelings of discontent, I simply remember my favorite snack... and then I go make it. While I'm biting into a piece of toasted homemade bread with a thin layer of Jif peanut butter melting celestially onto it to form a desirable combination that makes everything else surrounding me superfluous... I no longer feel so bad.

Since choosy moms choose Jif, I've been blessed with a steady supply of it all my life, and in 1996 it was established as "My Favorite Breakfast Food." One would think this entitles Jif to a permanent spot on the grocery list, but peanut butter shopping hasn't always spread out smooth and creamy for my family. There was the time my super-healthy sister tried to get it replaced with "Nature's Own," (a.k.a. healthy peanut butter). Or the time my mom let my frugal dad grocery shop, and he came home with something generic that must have been three-cents cheaper and I had to settle for a less than adequate substitute until that jar was scraped clean. There was also a crunchy phase, but that didn't even last half a jar before my mom realized what she'd done. Now, at any given time, there is a big, red, family-size jar in our cupboard that needs to be replaced every week-and-a-half because we all know peanut butter isn't just a breakfast food, especially when someone (I won't give any names here) hates to cook. On the odd chance the supply runs dry, my mom is always willing to make an emergency run to Hugo's, sometimes even late at night.

My appreciation for Jif became evident to my extended family when my grandmother stayed with us, resulting in a phone call to the Jif Company. She mentioned that I've grown accustomed to the taste; it almost makes my day begin. I've grown accustomed to the tune; it makes me whistle night and noon. I was serenely independent and content before we met, yet, I've grown accustomed to the taste. She boasted, as all proud grandmothers do, that I could taste the difference if she dared to change the label on the jar. After impressing the Jif employee on the other end of the phone, she asked for coupons. It's of no surprise that an employee of the world's best peanut butter would be extremely friendly, explaining kindly that they don't give out coupons over the phone.

With or without coupons, Jif will surely have a steady spot in my cupboard for as long as we both shall live, whether my cupboard is in a college dorm, a hotel room, a foreign country, or anywhere else life will take me. As long as Jif is there, it will be home; it's one of those things, my favorite things, which I can depend on to never change.

The changes continue

by Duane Jaenicke
FBM instructor, Roseau

I have been involved with agricultural education for 34 years and have witnessed incredible changes in this industry since I began teaching in 1971. We all know of the changes I am referring to, so I don't have to review them for you. All of us involved in this industry have heard the experts tell us of the mega-trends that will impact agriculture and the way we do business in the future. As I approach retirement, I would like to address issues that I think will affect farmers and rural economies in particular.

Transportation is an issue for all farmers who are a long ways from the consumer. It will cost you and me more and more to get our product to market and more to buy large volume inputs (fertilizer). This will erode bottom lines for all livestock and crop producers. Related to transportation costs are energy costs. Although part of the transportation equation, energy costs will also affect railroads, road building, and other infrastructure issues as we battle for scarce dollars that will tend to move to population dense areas of the state and nation.

Production risk has always been a part of farming, but many producers have suffered from several years of poor crops. Many producers will be forced to reevaluate their cropping programs as we experience higher and higher fuel, fertilizer and chemical costs as insurance coverage will not be able to cover potential losses.

Land use issues will continue to grow. We will experience fierce competition from individuals and groups that feel that your land has a better use than agricultural production. Hunting, recreation and preservation will be the forces with which we will be forced to deal.

Our infrastructure will also be at risk as rural population declines and farms get larger and larger, it will be more difficult to maintain grain elevators, processors and agricultural suppliers. A lot of talented people leave rural America for the greener pastures of urban life. We must work to retain this talent pool. Retaining these people will go a long way in solving the emerging problems I have listed above. The issues will be addressed and solved by intelligent, well-educated individuals who are willing to work together. People working together have always come up with solutions to problems. People-power will do it again.

It's Springtime in Minnesota

I think we can say, "It is springtime in Minnesota". People are still ice fishing on the river in town, but my thermometer says it is 60 degrees, people are playing catch outside, more people are walking and jogging outside, and we have an extra hour of daylight in the afternoon/evening hours.

There has been a shift in school activities. The winter season is history. The musical is over and it was wonderful. I hope you had a chance to see it. I have had many enthusiastic responses already from people around town who were thrilled with the musical - and the auditorium. Yes, people are still commenting on how wonderful the auditorium looks and on the added comfort that has been provided. That is just another example of how people working together in this community make marvelous things happen.

All those students involved in the musical just completed some valuable lessons. Not only did they learn what Mrs. Reese and all her helpers taught regarding music and choreography, but life lessons of what can be accomplished when dedicated people work together. That is what community is about. That is what public service is about. These were valuable lessons these young people learned along the way while they were studying, working, practicing, and having fun.

Seniors are preparing not only to wrap up their high school career, but also making plans for their next educational experience. For many it is college, and a move away from home. For others it is college while remaining in Thief River Falls. Still others choose to work for a time before making their career choices. Some enter the military, possibly to help them decide on that career choice, or simply to serve. Most will experience some sort of employment in combination with further education. I certainly encourage all our graduates to seek further education. Study after study will show that a person with two years or more of higher education will earn significantly more money annually than their peers who do not attend college. Those with four-year degrees earn still more. Don't get me wrong. I'm not saying that making more money makes one happy or successful, but demands are great on a person or a family today, and lack of income to support the type of lifestyle a person or family wants does spell disaster.

Our seniors will be graduating at the end of next month. Graduation will be on Friday, May 27, at the Ralph Engelstad Arena. We first used that facility for graduation last year and it was an outstanding experience. It provides such wonderful, comfortable seating for the whole crowd, regardless of where one is sitting.

Baccalaureate will be in the LHS auditorium, but has been changed to a Wednesday evening for this year. Actually it has been scheduled for a Wednesday evening for a two year trial. The Thief River Falls Ministerium Association voted last fall to make the change to Wednesday evening. It was done for two years so that it could be evaluated after this year. Our school calendar for 2005-2006 will be set before the end of May this spring, so the Ministerium decided to make it Wednesday again for the Class of 2006. You don't see Baccalaureate on our school calendars because Baccalaureate is not a school event. The school simply provides a space, and the Ministerium Association plans and provides the service of Baccalaureate. I have attended a couple of the past services and they have been excellent. Pastors provide a wonderful service with a meaningful message for all, and several of the graduates take part in the service as well.

There are so many situations that are enriched for our young people by volunteers and community people and I would again like to say thanks for all you do. Your efforts on behalf of our children and young people make a huge difference in their lives. You will likely never know the far reaching effects of your time and efforts. Thanks and God Bless.

Waiting for swans to return

Last summer, a pair of swans successfully raised five little cygnets on the swamp near the building site of my new house. I put a big window on the front of the house, hoping to watch the swans on an annual basis.

As we cleared the land and built a road to the building site last summer, we watched Ma and Pa swan sit motionless on or near their nest for weeks on end. Later on, we caught our first glimpses of the young as the swan family flotilla took its first tentative trips around the swamp.

One day in late September, the concrete men reported that the seven swans had flown from one end of the swamp to the other. It was the first time any of the swans, old or young, had been seen in the air for months.

The next morning, they were gone.

I have been nervously awaiting their return this month. The house is in its last stages, but if the swans didn't come back, a little of the fun would have gone out of the whole project.

Enough other bird types have returned to entertain me. A pileated woodpecker has been hanging around for the past weeks, bobbing up and down in its flight path like the green dot on a heart monitor.

The chattering blackbirds, both red- and yellow-winged, have returned. A few ducks flew in on Friday. And, there's always the disruptive geese.

Then, this Sunday evening, as I was getting in my pickup to drive from the new house back to the old house, where I still keep my toothbrush, I heard the familiar trombone blasts of the trumpeter swans. They burst into sight, circled the swamp twice, and disappeared over the woods.

A few seconds later, as if to mimic a familiar trick by the Blue Angels, they suddenly reappeared only a few feet over the house, their loud honks echoing around the yard.

After a couple of fancy final maneuvers done in perfect tandem as they settled gently on the swamp, the lumbering yet graceful pair skidded to a stop a few yards from shore on the slushy, turquoise ice.

I would like to think that I witnessed the swan pair's first landing after their arrival from wherever it is they winter, but it is possible that they had been hanging around the area for a day or two.

Even so, I felt as if I had watched Lindbergh land in Paris, or the space shuttle land in the desert. I wanted to cheer. The swans were back.

To celebrate the end of their successful voyage, the pair stuck their heads deep into small holes in the ice to nibble on swamp scum. Later, one took to preening her feathers, while the other watched for intruders. When they walked, their webbed feet sloshed loudly on the disintegrating ice.

The swan pair must have gotten used to vehicle noises last fall, for when I started my pickup, they didn't even lift their heads from their swamp scum buffet.

Back home, I looked up trumpeter swans on the Internet. Interesting facts: They weigh between 25 and 30 pounds. Their wingspan is seven feet across. They are the largest bird native to North America.

And they nearly died out. In fact, for most of the 20th century, trumpeter swans were nearly extinct. It is due to some very successful wildlife restoration programs that their numbers have recovered in the past decade.

Even more interesting: Trumpeter swans only nest atop old muskrat houses. They breed in swamps where the water is one to three feet deep, which allows them to reach the bottom and uproot aquatic plants for food.

Turns out, my swamp, with its big old muskrat house, makes the perfect home for swans. The shallow water, which incidentally, keeps skid steer loaders from completely disappearing when they go through the ice, is perfect for swans as well.

So, I hope we live together in peace and harmony, the swans and I, recognizing our differences while celebrating that which we have in common: our little green-scummed swamp.

Initial claims for unemployment benefits down from one year ago

Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development Commissioner Matt Kramer recently announced the number of initial claims for unemployment benefits filed in February was down by 58 or 0.2 percent on a seasonally unadjusted basis.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the number of initial claims filed in February was 24,777 – an increase of 170 or 0.7 percent over January.

Similar to January, temporary plant closings in motor vehicle manufacturing and boat building primarily account for the rise in initial claims in February. Of the 6,991 initial claims filed from the entire manufacturing industry, 1,631 (less than one-fourth) were filed as a result of a permanent layoff – nearly 9 percent fewer than in February 2004.

All other sectors of the economy showed either improvement or minimal increases in initial claims.

"These numbers continue to show that the unemployment situation in Minnesota is improving," said Kramer. "This is a positive sign for Minnesota's economy."

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I am a teacher planning to retire at the end of this school term and have several questions. My wife is also considering retirement this year at age 60. Will she have to wait until 62 to begin drawing her social security? I have not had covered social security wages during my teaching tenure but did contribute before and, while teaching, I paid SSA tax from farming income. Since my SSA contributions would be low, can I draw on her social security record?

A: You raise several issues here. The best answer to your questions is for you two to contact your local office for information specific to you. You can also call the national SSA toll-free number, 800-772-1213, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. local time. The earliest a person can begin SSA retirement is age 62 so for now, your wife is too young to collect SSA retirement based on her age.

Note that different types of SSA benefits vary on starting ages. For example, age based survivor benefits to a widow or widower can begin as early as age 60. If young children are at home, benefits might be payable to a spouse of any age. Potentially a husband can receive SSA through the work record of his wife just as a wife can receive through the SSA record of her husband. This is based on a mathematical comparison of the two benefit amounts at each person's individual full retirement age.

Full retirement age (FRA) is the SSA term for how old a person must be to receive retirement without age based reductions. Formerly age 65, full retirement age is slowly moving up to age 67 based on year of birth. Of special interest in your letter was the offhand, but very important, comment that your school wages are not covered by SSA. Know that receipt of a government pension from work not covered by SSA will almost always reduce potential SSA benefits to you whether paid from your own work or your wife's record.

A school district pension is from a government entity. Government pensions from work covered by SSA, including military pensions, are not part of this. For more general information see www.socialsecurity.gov and http://www.socialsecurity.gov/retire2/qualify.htm (note WEP & GPO towards bottom of webpage). Again, you two should speak to an SSA representative for [illegible] information.

Winton Knutson receives Walraven award

The most prestigious award given by the Minnesota Rural Water Association is the Henry Walraven Award. The criteria for the Henry Walraven Award is leadership contributions for the improvement of a water/wastewater system in Minnesota.

The Minnesota Rural Water Association (MRWA) Board of Directors and staff were proud to present the Henry Walraven Award to Winton Knutson, Marshall and Polk Rural Water System at the MRWA 21st Annual Water and Wastewater Technical Conference, March 8, in St. Cloud.

The MRWA was formed in 1971 when rural water was needed in the Red River Valley area of northwestern Minnesota. Many people in this area hauled water for domestic use. A meeting was held in Oslo, and a small steering committee was formed. Winton Knutson was a member of that committee.

After one of the first meetings Winton came home very optimistic, and as he talked it over with his wife she exclaimed, "You mean to say that we'll actually be getting our water piped to us?" He assured her that he believed rural water would soon be a reality in the area. The Marshall and Polk Rural Water System did indeed become a reality on July 26, 1973 when it was established by District Court. Marshall County Commissioners appointed Winton to the original board of directors and the board's first meeting was held on Nov. 13, 1973. At that meeting, he was elected to the office of Secretary/Treasurer, a position Winton has held to this day. During his tenure in office, he has participated in the growth of the system from its original 605 users to the present 1,490. Five expansion projects have been completed during this time and the cities of Oslo, Alvarado and Fisher are now being served by the Marshall and Polk Rural Water System.

In 1999, along with the Kittson Marshall Rural Water System, Chairman, Luther Johnson, the Minnesota Rural Water Finance Authority was started. This program has issued $63,000,000 in interim loans and has saved systems thousands of dollars in interest and closing costs.

Winton also serves on the Oak Park Township Board. He is an active member of his church and the Knights of Columbus in Argyle.

Pvt. Tollefson graduates from basic combat training

Army National Guard Pvt. Jennifer M. Tollefson has graduated from basic combat training at Fort Jackson, Columbia, S.C.

During the nine weeks of training, the soldier studied the Army mission, history, tradition and core values, physical fitness, and received instruction and practice in basic combat skills, military weapons, chemical warfare and bayonet training, drill and ceremony, marching, rifle marksmanship, armed and unarmed combat; map reading, field tactics, military courtesy, military justice system, basic first aid, foot marches, and field training exercises.

She is the daughter of Rodney and Sylvia Tollefson of Greenbush. Tollefson is a 2004 graduate of Greenbush-Middle River Senior High School.

Foundation awards $140,000 to projects that improve education

Students, teachers and education employees statewide will benefit from more than $140,000 in new grants announced by the Education Minnesota Foundation for Excellence in Teaching and Learning.

The total includes $111,575 in classroom grants to 46 teachers for innovative classroom projects. "Many of these student-focused learning programs would not be possible without these grants, which are funded by Education Minnesota members," said Education Minnesota President Judy Schaubach.

Local recipients include Reading Through the Summer – Oklee School District and Backpacks for the Outdoors – J.A. Hughes Elementary School, Red Lake Falls.

The Oklee School District received $3,000 for a summer reading program for students in kindergarten through fourth grade, according to Ellen Hegge. For the program, the school district also received support from Oklee Farmers Elevator and Security State Bank of Oklee. She noted the district will send books home with the students.

Hegge added the books include leveled books (books that are geared to the children's reading levels) and also books that parents can read to their children. The program also includes three summer family sessions.

J.A. Hughes Elementary School received a $2,975 grant for backpacks and other supplies, such as clipboards, binoculars, compasses, thermometers, pencils, rulers, tape measures, field guides, magnifiers and calculators, noted Linda Mickelson. The elementary school students will use the items in the school's outdoor classroom.

This was not the first or second time Red Lake Falls schools received Education Minnesota grants. Last year, Mickelson said, the school district received a $3,000 Education Minnesota grant for snowshoes. The snowshoes are used by students in pre-kindergarten through high school. In particular, Mickelson said, primary grade students used the snowshoes to pretend they were animals searching for food. Families are also able to check out the snowshoes.

In 2000, the Red Lake Falls School District received a Education Minnesota grant for the outdoor classroom that includes podiums and tables.

Besides those grants to local schools, the foundation awarded Affinity Grants totaling $28,000 to four nonprofit organizations for projects that seek to improve teaching and learning. Those grants were awarded to Mixed Blood Theatre, TPT-TV, the Minnesota Humanities Commission, and the Minnesota International Center.

The foundation also awarded three Professional Development Leadership Grants totaling $3,000 to educational support professionals for planning, acquiring and sharing professional development opportunities.

Foundation grants are funded by voluntary contributions of $5 per member. Since its inception in 1992, the foundation has awarded $1.5 million for projects aimed at improving teaching and learning.

This year's recipients were recognized at the Education Minnesota Representative Convention, the annual meeting of its highest governing body, March 18-19.

Red Lake Electric annual meeting celebrates its tradition of service

Submitted

"A Tradition of Service" was the theme for Red Lake Electric Cooperative's 67th annual meeting. Approximately 350 members and friends of the organization attended the event, which was at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls, Wednesday, March 30.

In his president's report, Veral Mosbeck said the board faced two major issues in 2004. It was unanimous in its support for the new garage and warehouse that Mosbeck said would serve the Cooperative well for many years. The second major issue was a rate increase that took effect in July. Mosbeck said the increases in wholesale power cost were too great to absorb, so a retail rate increase was necessary.

Mosbeck praised the employees for the good service they provided in spite of some obstacles - obstacles due to office remodeling, construction of the new building, and conversion to a new computer system. He thanked members for their cooperation, which he said was essential to the success of Red Lake Electric Cooperative.

Ron Kennedy, general manager, said the state of the co-op is pretty good today. He cited a good workforce, good headquarters facilities, and good wholesale energy supply as critical to delivering reliable electric service at reasonable rates. He related some of the system maintenance efforts in place that contributed to the record service continuity record in 2004. Kennedy encouraged members to conserve energy through the use of efficient appliances, and heating and cooling equipment. He said the future would surely bring increased electric rates, but that the Cooperative's tradition of service quality would continue.

Roger Johanneck, manager of finance and administration, gave the financial report for 2004. He said that despite the drop in total margins from 2003, the Cooperative had a good year financially. Red Lake Electric Cooperative's total energy sales were very similar to the previous year. Total revenue increased, however, because of the general rate increase, the first at Red Lake Electric Cooperative in over 14 years. One other factor attributable to an increase in revenue is that on-peak sales generated more revenue that off-peak energy sales and an increase in on-peak kilowatt hour sales more than made up for the loss in revenue from a decrease in off-peak kilowatt hour sales.

While customer demand for electricity was not the highest on record, the 123 million kilowatt hours of energy purchased in 2004 ranks as the second highest amount of energy purchased from Minnkota Power Cooperative.

Other indicators also point to a good year for Red Lake Electric Cooperative: Average power interruption (outage) time was less than one hour per customer, which is very good; the Cooperative retired over $431,000 in capital credits, the second highest ever in one year; and it maintained a customer equity level near 50 percent.

Minnkota Power CEO Dave Loer explained the role Minnkota plays in the delivery of electric service to Red Lake members. He reviewed their generation facilities and said Minnkota was in a good position to supply the future electrical requirements of Red Lake Electric Cooperative. Loer said a new generating plant was being considered, but that no firm decision was needed before 2008. He explained the difference between firm and interruptible power and stressed that it was not economically feasible to build a power plant to supply interruptible load such as off-peak electric heating.

Part of Red Lake Electric's commitment to service includes the Operation Round Up® Program. Over 85 percent of the cooperative's 4,191 members participate. Under the program, participating member's electric bills are rounded up each month with the odd cents being used to help fund community projects and charities. In the past 12 years, grants totaling $237,453 have been awarded. Red Lake Electric Trust Director Terry Weiss presented a $1,000 grant check to Jan Wikstrom of the Violence Intervention Project headquartered in Thief River Falls.

The Cooperative's board consists of nine members. Elected to three-year terms were Mark Hanson of Thief River Falls, Steve Linder of Oklee, and Bonnie Christians of Crookston. Other directors are Joyce Johnson of Viking, Robert Olson of Middle River, Kelly Lundeen of Trail, Robbie Finstad of Thief River Falls, Henry Wieland and Veral Mosbeck of Red Lake Falls. John Hammer of Thief River Falls did not seek reelection. He was recognized for serving 13 years as a director.

As a rural electric cooperative, Red Lake Electric serves 4,191 members in the five-county region of Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Beltrami. It operates and maintains 2,565 miles of distribution power lines. The Cooperative employs 22 full-time employees.

Long-term members William and Carl Larson of Oklee, were recognized and received a special prize. The Larsons have received electric service from the Cooperative since 1941. Several additional door prizes were awarded. Lunch was served by members of St. Ann's Catholic Church of Goodridge. Musical entertainment was provided by Vern Rogalla also of Goodridge.

John Hammer (right), Thief River Falls, did not seek re-election to Red Lake Electric Cooperative's board of directors. He was recognized for his 13 years of service to the Cooperative by President Veral Mosbeck, Red Lake Falls, during the organization's annual meeting. The annual meeting was on March 30 at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls. (Submitted photo)

National Library Week is April 11-16

National Library Week, April 11-16, will be celebrated at the Thief River Falls Public Library with a week of traditional celebration and introduction of new services. Traditional celebrations include continuation of the quilt exhibit, refreshments all week and book drawings. Introduction of new services include an Anime Club and a comic book subscription.

The TRF Quilter's Guild annual Quilt Show will continue the month of April (including National Library Week) with display, quilts, wall hangings and more gracing the rafters in the main portion of the library. Challenge projects will be hung in the children's room and a voting station will allow the public the chance to vote for the project of their choice.

Refreshments will be served all week during National Library Week, and the public is encouraged to sign up to win a drawing for such award winning books as "Because of Winn-Dixie," "The Tale of Despereaux" and Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix." A book display of the 2005 book award winners for children's literature will also be featured.

However, the library will also introduce two new services this week: the Anime Club and a comic book collection.

For the high school through adult crowd, a new Anime Club is being formed and tentatively set to meet biweekly in the library's computer lab Thursdays at 6 p.m. starting April 14. Viewing of various Anime films will be the focus of the club and previews of anime Web sites will also be featured.

The film shown at this organizational meeting will be "R.O.D. Read or Die." This film centers on the efforts of a schoolteacher (a special agent and a lover of books and reading) who is determined to keep a rare Beethoven manuscript safe from unsavory characters. For more information about this club, contact the coordinator for the club, Library Associate Michael Haukaas, at the library (681-4325). Anime are Japanese cartoons (anime for animation). This art form is almost immediately recognizable by its superior artistic quality and by the distinct artistic characteristics in its creations such as the child-like large eyes. Anime truly provides a unique look into the Japanese culture, as well as being a unique and stylized art form. The Anime cartoons have also been highly recognized recently with nominations for major cartoon and motion picture awards.

The library will also be introducing a new collection during this week: the comic book collection. When the graphic novel (novels in a comic book format, but in a tradition book binding) collection was introduced, a new wave of readers was realized in the middle school and high school age years at the library. The teens pronounce the books fun and exciting. Moreover, students with learning disabilities found them easier to read even though most contained the same reading level and amount of reading as their non-illustrated books. The next step is being tried with a comic book collection geared at the middle school age student. As with the graphic novel collection, this new collection most likely will have a readership higher than originally planned, but with limited funding, the library is testing out this collection with its eye on this age category.

St. Hilaire Lions and Community Club hold successful blood drive

A total of 35 people volunteered to donate blood and 31 were able to give during St. Hilaire's blood drive on March 21. Two of the donors gave blood for the first time.

Lisa Moellenkamp, donor recruitment representative of United Blood Services, commented, "This is a clear example of concerned people in this area responding unselfishly to a great need - the need for blood. You can feel pride that these volunteer donors are your friends and neighbors."

Tom Scholin coordinated the drive, sponsored by the Lions and Community Club, which assisted with recruiting donors, publicity, providing refreshments and registering donors. Others who assisted were Harlow Johnson, Ken Asp and Jeremy Williams. The St. Hilaire Activity Center provided space to hold the drive.

Donations will also help meet the blood needs of many patients in 74 area hospitals served by United Blood Services.

"Teach Me!" offered this summer in TRF

"Teach Me," a learning club located in Thief River Falls is pleased to announce a brand new, special program for six weeks of summer education and fun. Parents are urged to complete enrollment right away, to assure their children's seats in the individualized program of remedial tutoring and summer skills retention. This time will help prevent a child's summer learning loss and will focus on any missing skills gaps.

The only goal of "Teach Me!" is helping children succeed in school by reaching their full academic potential. Creating confident, independent students by assessing and discovering the sources of their academic frustrations is the objective. Weak foundation skills often don't affect schoolwork until students are faced with more advanced concepts in later grades. By then, the problem has grown and the underlying cause — the gap in the foundation and skills — may go undetected. They are locked into a failure chain! Assessment methods will develop a road map to creating a personalized curriculum that addresses and eliminates underlying issues.

It is the individualized program that makes the difference. Through positive reinforcement and instructional methods "Teach Me!" ensures that each student achieves success. What's more, academic success translates into improved confidence and enthusiasm for learning — qualities that help students well beyond their years in school.

"Students in today's marketplace are not just competing for jobs with local people," said Mark DaParma, founder of Teach Me! "They will compete with people from around the world. When I taught in the metro areas of Minneapolis, competition in school was fierce. Many of my students were from other nations and were hungry to get ahead. Plus, more and more of today's employers are requiring you to furnish your GPA."

Studies have shown some interesting effects of bonding with the school, improving self esteem and getting good grades. "Less than 10 percent who earned As in high school are half-pack-a-day smokers in the decade following high school," says John Schulenberg, a researcher at the Institute for Social Research and first author of the study, published in the March 1994 issue of the Journal of Health and Social Behavior. "Over one-third of those who earned Cs and Ds in high school smoke half-a-pack-a-day, by comparison."

A program developed by researchers at the University of Washington to help schoolchildren earn good grades and get along with others unexpectedly led to fewer pregnancies by age 21, even though the project involved no sex education, a study found.

"These results fit with our theory that if children become bonded to school and committed to achieving in school during the elementary grades, they are less likely to risk that bond by engaging in behavior that puts their future success at risk," said J. David Hawkins, a social work professor and head of the university's Social Development Research Group.

"We looked at national franchises in making our decision to open Teach Me!," DaParma went on to say. "The franchise costs to open a 'business in a box' were very steep with rigid methods to follow. Plus, they wanted a population base of 30,000 or more. We can help rural kids who need it. Our analysis shows our methodology to be strong, we can work with the students and the schools in a way that tailors it to the child, not a given corporate formula. This is reflected in our pricing-about half of the franchise operations!"

Teach Me! Learning Club believes that every child possesses untapped abilities and the potential to excel. In short, there's nothing a child can't do. "Let your child amaze you, imagine where that could take them!" said DaParma in closing.

Heden guilty of killing daughter

after her last visit to a doctor on Feb. 2, 2004. She testified the infant did not suffer any "recent injuries" to her brain prior to her death.

She testified the cause of Rose Heden's death was "inflicted traumatic injuries to the head with irreversible brain damage." Ophoven also noted the infant had "injuries to her genitals that were old."

Ophoven noted there was fresh bleeding in the infant's diaphragm, liver, lungs and heart. She testified those injuries were "more probably consistent with poorly performed CPR." However, she noted that the injuries would not have killed Rose Heden.

"There was no fresh blood in the brain," said Ophoven. "There was no swelling in the brain. There was no shift of the brain."

Ophoven testified the baby could still appear normal, including eating, drinking and swallowing even if there was "nothing there" mentally.

"This baby could not have been or become a normal baby," Ophoven testified.

"She suffered a fatal injury, but my opinion is that it happened a considerable time before," testified Ophoven, who noted she could not say Rose Heden had not been shaken. However, she reiterated there was no evidence of fresh brain trauma and later noted it was her opinion the fatal head injury did not occur as a result of shaking the infant.

On cross-examination, Ophoven noted the Hedens were concerned and had mentioned, at a Jan. 12, 2004 doctor appointment, that Rose Heden had formula intolerance. Ophoven noted vomiting, which may be associated with formula intolerance, is a common symptom of brain injury.

Ophoven testified Rose Heden had looked at people at a Feb. 2, 2004 doctor appointment. As a result, she noted she would say Rose Heden "probably had not suffered a serious brain injury."

If there had been severe shaking of Rose Heden, Ophoven said that "it could have triggered" a fatal event.

Klumpp asked whether shaking causes head trauma to an infant. Ophoven replied that was controversial and head trauma possibly resulting from shaking an infant is "probably related to neck injuries."

Klumpp asked whether there would be an "almost immediate change" in an infant with head trauma. Symptoms of head trauma can "present variably even if a child ends up dead," Ophoven replied.

Ophoven noted a genital injury to Rose Heden was the result of severe trauma from one instance, and other than that, she said that she could not say.

The brain and genital injuries could have happened at the same time, Ophoven said. Yet, she noted she had no proof of that.

Klumpp asked Ophoven about bloody diapers found in the bedroom and kitchen of the Heden home as well as a bloody diaper Rose Heden had been wearing at the time of her death. Ophoven replied there would have been bloody drainage until the vaginal injury had been completely healed, possibly taking months.

Rebuttal witness

After Ophoven completed her testimony, the defense rested its case. The prosecution then called a rebuttal witness, forensic pathologist Dr. Dan Davis.

During his testimony, Davis showed a CD-ROM depicting what happens to a baby based on the theory of shaken baby syndrome. He noted the CD-ROM was a general scenario, not a scenario for what may have happened to Rose Heden.

Mentioning relevancy, Hillier objected to showing the CD-ROM. Murphy overruled Hillier's objection.

Davis also reviewed McGee's autopsy report regarding Rose Heden. He testified he would classify Rose Heden's death as being caused by blunt force head trauma on March 1, 2004. He noted that the injury may have been caused by shaking, but he added he was not saying that was to the total exclusion of another cause.

"There's an obvious fresh subdural hemorrhage in her head," testified Davis, who noted children can survive a shaking incident.

Furthermore, he noted there were some old hemorrhages around the infant's brain as well as old and new injuries to the infant's vagina.

However, he said, "I don't think the brain was shrinking at all."

Rose Heden also had circular bruises on her chest, according to Davis. He attributed those bruises to fingertip pressure, which he said was due to grasping the child around the chest.

On cross-examination, Davis testified he was paid to testify Monday. He also said he reviewed the slides with McGee, who performed the autopsy on Rose Heden.

Hillier asked him about the controversy regarding shaken baby syndrome. Davis responded that a small number of people in both the pediatric and forensic pathology communities do not believe in shaken baby syndrome. He noted those individuals are "predominantly defense witnesses."

Jury receives instructions

After Davis testified as a rebuttal witness for the prosecution, Murphy provided the jury with instructions for their deliberations. He instructed jurors to look at the case according to the rules of the law even if the law "is or should be different." Murphy also told them to disregard anything they had heard or seen elsewhere. Jurors were also instructed to consider each offense separately.

Closing summations

Once jurors received their instructions, Klumpp presented his closing summation. "We are not here to claim that the defendant wanted his daughter to die March 1," Klumpp said.

Klumpp further claimed that John Heden murdered his daughter sometime after his wife left for work. Klumpp noted John Heden admitted to shaking his daughter five or six times violently. "Immediately after that, by the defendant's own admission, Rose Heden stopped breathing," Klumpp said.

Klumpp asked the jury to use its common sense regarding direct and circumstantial evidence. About the experts who testified, he said, "Think about what they said and how they reached their conclusions."

Klumpp showed the jury pictures of Rose Heden as what he called "a beautiful baby girl" and later after the "defendant got done shaking her and penetrating her."

Klumpp likened the three charges to building a house. He said the second degree murder charge was like the house's foundation, the first degree murder (child abuse) charge was like the walls, and the first degree (criminal sexual conduct) charge was like the roof of the house.

In her closing summation, Hanson said, "There is no scientific proof that John Heden caused the death of Rose Heden on March 1, 2004."

Hanson added experts who testified in the case did not dispute that Rose Heden died of head trauma. However, she noted they dispute what type of head injury occurred and when that injury occurred.

Hanson said Ophoven testified there were no fresh brain injuries to Rose Heden. As a result, Hanson said that McGee was wrong in his autopsy report.

About the DNA analysis, Hanson noted the person who performed the analysis had been terminated from his job at the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA). By using that man's notes, another BCA employee testified to the results of that DNA analysis, Hanson noted.

"The [prosecution] did not get the science right," said Hanson, who also referred to law enforcement officers who thought there was blood on a baby wipes container as well as the bedroom floor. There was no blood on the container or bedroom floor, she noted.

Hanson asked jurors to look at the elements of each charge and noted there was no proof John Heden caused any of the injuries to his daughter.

"He loved his daughter," said Hanson. "He called 911 to save her that morning."

Furthermore, Hanson asked jurors to look at promises she said investigators had made to John Heden.

Klumpp was given the opportunity to respond to Hanson's closing summation. He asked who had admitted and confessed to shaking Rose Heden.

Klumpp further noted the police did exactly what they said they would do – record and report their findings to the jury. There were no promises to render John Heden's confession involuntary, Klumpp noted.

Bailiffs sworn in, alternate jurors excused

Upon the conclusion of Klumpp's response to Hanson's closing summation, Murphy swore in the bailiffs. They took an oath to make sure the jurors were secluded from the public. Two jury alternates, both of whom are men, were notified they were excused from their jury duties. Seven men and five women then deliberated and found John Heden guilty of three counts of murder.

Students to start school before Labor Day next year

Superintendent Irv Peterson said one of the considerations discussed in making their decision to start before Labor Day weekend had to do with the fact children are generally excited about starting school, but not so in June.

There are 174 student days in the school year, and 185 teacher days, two holidays, one all-staff development open house, four teacher work days and four teacher inservice days. The tentative date for graduation is May 26.

Important dates on this calendar include:

- fall conferences October 16-20.
- American Education Week Nov. 13-19.
- Thanksgiving, Nov. 24-25.
- Christmas holiday break, December 22 (half day) - Jan. 2.
- Martin Luther King Jr. Day, Jan. 16.
- President's Day, Feb. 20
- Conferences, Feb. 13 and 16.
- Spring break, April 12-17.
- Easter Monday, April 17.
- Memorial Day, May 29.
- Last day for students, June 1 (April 12, June 2 are snow make-up days).

As is always the case, dates and times listed on the calendar may change. Parents and students are advised to watch for these changes.

Autism

Elaine Grovum, director of special education in the School District, has requested approval to hire an additional special education instructor to address the needs of students with autism.

Next fall, Grovum anticipates that there will be 17 students diagnosed as being autistic in the District. This is a significant increase in the number of students with these special needs.

According to information presented by Grovum, in Minnesota, the incidence rate of autism, which includes a wide spectrum, is 1 in 2,000. On Dec. 1, 2003, there are 5,929 students diagnosed with autism in the state, and 183 in the northwest region of Minnesota.

The information presented by Grovum stated that the term "autism" is used to refer to a range of related conditions also known as Pervasive Developmental Disorders. [illegible] ties that usually begin during the first three years of a child's life. They are neurologically based disorders and affect the way a child communicates, interacts with other people and perceives and reacts to the world.

Grovum said most of the cases of autism in School District 564 are diagnosed in the District, not by physicians. There are no medical tests for diagnosing any of the autism spectrum disorders. The diagnosis, she said, is made by trained professionals.

Grovum's proposal calls for the hiring of an individual who will be the case manager for all autistic students, be responsible for all due process paper work, give direct service to each child weekly and monitor their progress, consult with teachers, teach teachers and paras regarding methods of instruction, conduct observations, team teach social skills across the district, and coordinate the making of accommodations.

Federal and state funds are available for this position. Grovum said hiring of this new position would not cause any undue funding burden on the district. She added, however, that they need to look at the federal vs. state dollars to determine the best source of funding. She also noted that there are other funding sources, as well.

No decision was made on the proposal.

District Activities

Students in School District 564's activity programs continue to be successful, "especially academically, which makes me proud," said Jim Sims, activities director.

"There's a whole lot of opportunities out there for kids in School District 564," said Sims in his activities report to the board.

School District 564 provides 19 athletic programs (10 boys and 9 girls), and over 40 fine arts, music, and club activities from which students can choose to participate. According to Sims' early estimates, over 776 students, 364 females and 412 males, have been involved in these activities. Sims noted that spring registration for some activities has not been completed and those numbers will have to be added to the total.

Sims reviewed some of the highlights [illegible] the fall and winter 2004-2005 season. Highlights included listings of champions, and academic champions. The most recent highlight, Sims announced, was the naming of Coach Jeff Mumm as head coach of the Minnesota Out-State All-Stars.

Sims also reviewed the often confusing team classification process and current classifications. For example, Lincoln High School's football program is now in Section 8AAA (a change from last year), but its boy's hockey program is Section 8A, and its boy's basketball program is Section 8AAA. (The Prowler's new section for football includes teams from Crookston, East Grand Forks, Park Rapids, Pequot Lakes, Perham, Roseau and Warroad. This information was included in a previous story appearing in the Sports section.)

Sims also offered that the board may soon receive a request to add soccer to its list of sports.

Sims reiterated the success of the District's program. In answering why the teams and students are so successful, Sims said it's due to the support of parents and the District as a whole, and because the kids want to work.

Hugo's buys pharmacy from Pamida in TRF

will hire the present staff and plans to continue to offer the same great service.

ShopKo is also pleased with the purchase.

"We're pleased that the pharmacy employees will be moving over and that customers will see the same faces and receive the same service," said John Vigeland, spokesman for ShopKo.

Hugo's owns two pharmacies, and plans to open a third in Crookston in the future. It also leases three other pharmacies, so the pharmacy business is nothing new.

To some, the purchase may signal changes in the community, changes that are the result of Wal-Mart's announcement that it plans to open a store in Thief River Falls.

Driscoll said even though Wal-Mart has not formally announced that it will open a store in Thief River Falls, Hugo's believes that it will happen. Wal-Mart, he said, is the largest retailer in the world and it is rather predatory. While many stores may not be able to compete with Wal-Mart, Driscoll said Hugo's believes it will be able to compete with it and be competitive in price. It comes down to offering convenience to the customer, he said, and the Hugo's store in Thief River Falls offers groceries, a deli, banking services through Northern State Bank and now a pharmacy. It is truly a one-stop shopping center."

Driscoll said the new pharmacy will occupy 600-square feet of the store. It will also have a drive-through window.

Vigeland said the purchase was a "good offer and a good fit." He said it also offers them an opportunity to re-merchandise the store and study what to do with the space that was occupied by the pharmacy.

Vigeland also said they have no plans to close the Pamida store in Thief River Falls. Wal-Mart is in a number of its markets, he said. Sometimes it affect Pamida, sometimes there's a downturn in business for a short time and then it rebounds. There's no clear cut model that will tell them what will happen, but at this point, he reiterated, there are no plans to close the store.

ShopKo Stores Inc. is headquartered in Green Bay, Wis., with two divisions: ShopKo stores and Pamida stores. The company employs more than 25,000 teammates in 23 states, in over 360 stores, generating annual sales exceeding $3 billion. ShopKo was founded by a pharmacist, James Ruben. Ruben opened ShopKo's first store in Green Bay in 1962. Pamida was originally founded in 1948 by Jim Witherspoon and Lee Wegener. ShopKo Stores Inc. purchased Pamida in 1999 and began operating it as a separate division.

What is it?

There are many unique and different tools used on farms. This one will be on display at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village this summer when the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibit "Barn Again! Celebrating an American Icon" will be at the Village. Guess what this tool was used for.

Answer: This is a round knife, one of the most versatile tools in a leatherworker's tool chest. It can cut long, straight lines as one may need for straps; it can cut in curved lines in tight places; and it can skive the edge of leather for buckle laps on a long edge to allow the edge to be folded over.

Farmers should look for added value opportunities

by David Hill
Editor

Kim Leval, senior policy analyst for the Center for Rural Affairs, a private, non-profit organization, that works to strengthen small businesses, family farms and ranches, and rural communities, visited Thief River Falls Tuesday, March 22. Billed as a town hall meeting, the meeting attracted only a few stalwart supporters of rural agriculture, including Wally Sparby, staff assistant to Congressman Collin Peterson, Ken Pazdernik of the Minnesota Farmers Union, and Norma Hanson, dairy farmer and representative on numerous organizations, including Minnesota Agri Women.

One of the questions discussed was why more people weren't interested in participating in this discussion.

Leval said the purpose of the meeting was to find out what farmers believe works and doesn't work. In addition, Leval also mentioned that her organization has been instrumental in encouraging farmers to develop value added products.

It was speculated that a lack of capital and a difficult agricultural market were seen as factors wearing down the enthusiasm of area farmers.

But Leval noted several examples of success stories that may bring back that enthusiasm. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been awarded for value-added projects, even in Minnesota.

Leval mentioned funding for wineries. Wally Sparby noted one ethanol production facility in Benson, Minn., that is successfully using a byproduct to produce vodka. He said that it has become a very profitable venture for the business.

The Center for Rural Affairs, said Leval, is very interested in helping farmers and rural communities. As such, it is very concerned about the Bush administration's proposal regarding value added producer grants. Their proposal, she said, would amount to a cut rather than an expansion of programs that help farmers and rural communities.

But perhaps the lack of enthusiasm for pursuing value-added producer grants, may have more to do with knowledge of what's available.

Norma Hanson asked, "Where will the help come from?"

Leval points to the USDA Web site as a good source of information, particularly www.rurdev.usda.gov/rbs/coops/vadg.htm.

"Value Added"

There is a simple definition of "value added" - changing the physical state of a commodity, wheat, for example, into flour. But according to the USDA, it also includes:

- differentiated production or marketing, as demonstrated in a business plan;
- Product segregation; and,
- Production of farm or ranch-based renewable energy.

Several renewable energy production projects have received funding, said Leval. She noted that her organization is specifically interested in small projects that directly benefit the farmer.

Leval strongly encouraged farmers to form small cooperatives, which she described as "new generation cooperatives." She noted several success stories from her home base in Oregon. In one example, three or four dairy farm families had formed a co-op to develop higher-end cheese products. Of course, their effort included a market study that showed they had a market for their products. In this example, Leval said, at the time they began their cooperative, the local processor was about to go out of business. Their cooperative, which became successful, allowed the farmers and the processor to stay in business.

Where to look? Leval encourages farmers to remain positive and keep an eye open for opportunities. Once they have an idea, she said there are many different sources of help for farmers with a good value-added business idea. She said there are even organizations that have the expertise and staff who can help farmers write grants and develop project ideas.

Kim Leval, senior policy analyst for Centers for Rural Affairs, conducted a town hall meeting at Handy Farms in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, March 22. Leval met with farmers and rural leaders to gather information about policies and programs that farmers believe are working and not working.

Soccer Association seeks support to add new fields

A committee of the Joint Powers Board for the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls will be taking a closer look at a proposal to develop a soccer complex.

In the few years it has existed in Thief River Falls as an organized sport, soccer has become increasingly popular. Glen Kajewski of the Soccer Associated reported that 320 children have registered to participate in the sport this spring and summer. Kajewski said this represents a slight increase over last year's numbers.

In a letter to the MEC Joint Powers Board, Kajewski said, "During the past two years, participation in soccer has required that we use green space that took up the equivalent of seven full-sized soccer fields to accommodate practices and games for over 300 players."

Wednesday, during a meeting with the Board, Kajewski said the intent of the letter was to spell out the organization's need, and desire to work with the MEC Board to find a solution that meets their needs.

Currently, the organization utilizes grass fields at Franklin Middle School, the old Prowler football field, Challenger Elementary School and the Lowell T. Swenson Field for special games. Some of those fields have drainage problems.

Kajewski said they would like to have a soccer complex consisting of about eight fields in one place so parents and children don't have to be running to different locations throughout the community. They would also like to host a tournament in the community but they would need about eight fields for a tournament.

Dr. Orley Gunderson, chairman of the Joint Powers Board, said the MEC Board did build one soccer field at the MEC, and he believes there may be room for one more small field. At one time, he acknowledged that the Board envisioned having five soccer fields at the complex, but that was only a concept.

There are no plans to give up the two softball fields on the southwest corner of the complex.

Madelyn Vigen, parks and recreation director for Thief River Falls, said that if they gave up those two fields it would have a significant negative impact on the city's and school district's programs. The city, she said, is short on fields as it is and would like to build one more.

Kajewski said the Soccer Association doesn't have any specific plans in mind, at this time. They are interested in working with the MEC Joint Powers Board to find space for fields.

Representatives from the various MEC member organizations - Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Northland Community and Technical College, and School District 564 - mentioned different locations for a soccer field complex, but seemed to hit a consensus when they talked about expanding the MEC complex to the north.

Kajewski's only request was that the location have close access to utilities.

The proposal may also be hindered by the fact that neither the MEC Joint Powers Board or the Soccer Association have a lot of money to fund such a project.

Vigen mentioned that there are some grants out there that do fund land purchase, as well as construction.

In any event, the Joint Powers Board and the Soccer Association would probably have to come up with a match to any grant they receive.

Dave Carlson, who represents the City of Thief River Falls on the board, and Vigen agreed to explore options with Kajewski and the Soccer Association.

New Sign

The Joint Powers Board has approved a bid for the purchase and installation of a sign identifying the track and field as Lowell T. Swenson Field. The bid from Cook Signs of Fargo, N.D., in the amount of $24,500, will be paid for with $10,000 from the MEC Joint Powers Board and the remainder from Northland Community and Technical College.

Relay for Life

American Cancer Society's Relay For Life in Pennington County has received permission to conduct its Relay For Life event at Lowell T. Swenson Field on June 10 and 11.

Area mothers start HOPE program

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Two Thief River Falls mothers have started an organization that they hope will change the lifestyle of the modern family.

Angela Westlin and Kathy Selvig, both stay-at-home mothers, have started a program called H.O.P.E. (Helping Other Parents Exercise). The two mothers met at an Early Childhood Family Education meeting (ECFE).

The ultimate goal of the program is to educate parents and their children about the importance of eating in moderation, coupled with exercising.

"We want to combat the fact that this is the first generation of children that are predicted to have a shorter life span than their parents, due to the complications associated with obesity," Westlin said.

Westlin said that adolescent obesity and diabetes are at an all-time high and numbers continue to increase. She added that children learn their eating and exercise habits from their parents and a program like HOPE is beneficial because it helps families learn healthy eating and exercise habits.

"It helps to have other people give you an incentive to exercise," Westlin said.

Selvig added that the group hopes to enhance relationships between stay at home moms and their children.

Westlin and Selvig began discussing ideas for a fitness challenge for mothers during ECFE meetings. Westlin, a 9 year resident of Thief River Falls, recalled not knowing any other stay at home moms. She is hopeful that this program will provide both a beneficial fitness club and a helpful network of support for stay at home mothers.

The H.O.P.E. program is based on a fitness challenge that Selvig participated in as an employee of Elim Care Center in Fargo, N.D. That program ran annually from Jan. 1 to May 31.

"We encourage some type of aerobic activity at least three times per week," Selvig said.

The H.O.P.E. program began on March 1 and will continue until May 20. The minimum goal for each participant is 15 minutes of exercise, three times per week.

"Some moms don't have an hour to exercise," Westlin said. "If you can do an activity for 15 minutes, that's still a good amount of time."

Selvig said that latitude is given for the brief interruptions that children demand. It is ideal to exercise for 15 minutes continuously and whenever possible, include the children.

"Overall the response has been very good and the participants are excited that there are a network of supporters," Selvig said.

Currently the group has 19 members. All are mothers, with children ranging in age from infant to adult.

Encouraged activities are all family oriented and include walking, swimming and bike riding.

The group has received prize donations from Styles by Amy, Altru Clinic, Dairy Queen, Pizza Hut, Ben Franklin, K Mart, Pennington Main, Home Sweet Home, Northern State Bank, Northwest Medical Center, Sheers, Hardees, McDonalds, Subway, Taco Johns, Super 8 Motel, Mr. Movies, Super One Foods, TRF Community Education, Ralph Engelstad Arena - Thief River Falls, Take 2 Video, Diary Queen, local dentist, Dr. Tom Dimich and the Fargo, N.D. television station, KVLY.

Prizes will be awarded during random drawings and to the individual and teams with the most recorded hours of exercise.

The first fitness celebration was held on April 1, from 2 to 12 p.m. at the Thief River Falls United Methodist Church. Winners include Lynn LaCoursiere, most hours (21) exercised.

Other fitness celebrations will be held on May 2 and May 20. Sites and times for those celebrations have not been determined. Any mothers who would like to participate in the HOPE program may call Angela at 681-6101 or Kathy at 681-7772.

Several recruiters from Cessna Aircraft Company, based in Wichita, Kan., visited Northland Community and Technical College's aviation maintenance technology program on Tuesday, March 29. The visitors toured NCTC's airport facility, gave a presentation to students graduating from the program, and interviewed 14 students and former graduates for job openings at Cessna facilities in Wichita and around the United States. Cessna is expanding and plans to hire more than 200 aviation maintenance technicians in the next two years.

Susan Dowers, placement director at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls, greeted the Cessna executives upon their arrival in Thief River Falls. In the background is the Cessna Citation aircraft that they flew direct from Wichita to Thief River Falls that morning. Dowers took the executives on a tour of the airport facilities.

Quilters keep it together

quilting. And they come from all over – Grand Forks, Roseau, Goodridge, Greenbush, Plummer and Oklee.

Winjum loves quilting. She said she stops at every fabric shop she sees just to check out new materials. It also changed her life. "I literally quit my job to quilt," said Winjum.

The passion for quilting that Winjum and others in the Quilters Guild may have also may be changing other lives.

In celebration of National Quilt Month, which was in March, the members of the Thief River Falls Quilters' Guild decided to donate quilts to Violence Intervention Project (VIP).

Jan Wikstrom, executive director of VIP in Thief River Falls, said the quilts are used at their facility in Thief River Falls and also given to their clients as they transition out of temporary housing. She said the clients really enjoy receiving the quilts.

Violence Intervention Project serves a seven-county region, and Wikstrom said sometimes the victim advocate service providers in the region don't have storage space so they also send some of the quilts out to them to give to their clients.

"I think it's really special because it's not something bought but made with heart and caring," said Wikstrom.

Sometimes, she explained, their clients come to them with absolutely nothing, so it gives them something to take with them and something to start a new home with.

The more than 70 members of the Quilters' Guild are an active group of area residents. They meet on the fourth Tuesday of every month in room 201 at Northland Community and Technical College. Monthly meetings include a hands-on project or program and much more. This year, the members have been working on quilt blocks at each meeting. Each member was challenged to make one block for themselves and one for a lotto. During the monthly meeting, the extra blocks were raffled off.

Pauline Helgeland, vice president, noted that the winner could end up with enough blocks to create another quilt, and some have. The group has had different challenges, but the purpose of this monthly challenge is to help members of the organization learn more about quilting.

Learning more about quilting fuels their passion. Helgeland said the organization sometimes brings in speakers. In October of this past year, the Quilters' Guild brought in Susan Cleveland, a nationally known speaker and quilter.

Annually, the organization challenges its members to participate in a special project. In this year's challenge project, the challenge is for participants to include a circle, a square, a rectangle, a triangle and the color gray in their quilts or wallhangings. Helgeland said it's really an off-shoot of the monthly challenge.

The organization, which draws members from many communities outside of Thief River Falls, participate in the Pennington County Fair, makes a New Year's Baby Quilt, and holds a Christmas party.

Pauline Helgeland and Shurleen Adams, members of the Thief River Falls Quilter's Guild, examine some of the entries in the Quilter's Guild exhibit at the Thief River Falls Public Library. Area residents can see the quilts through April 26, and even vote for their favorite.

TRF softball squad has veteran line-up

Experience alone could elevate Thief River Falls to contender status in Section 8AAA high school softball this spring. But performance must complement potential for the 2005 Prowlers to close the gap between themselves and traditional powers like Fergus Falls, Brainerd and Bemidji.

Thief River Falls' starting line-up returns intact from a team that went 12-9 a year ago.

With a veteran pitching/defense combination, the Prowlers don't figure to give up a ton of runs this spring. The key to success, then, is tied to their ability to create an offense.

"Our strength again this year will be our defense," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson, who is less certain about his team's offense. "I have a lot of confidence, defensively, in all the girls. We need to find nine players who are going to fill the offensive rolls. We have some who can bunt, and a few with a little power. We need to mesh offensively and figure out how to score runs. Last year we left too many base runners in scoring position."

Five Prowlers who pitched at the varsity level in 2004 are back this year. Senior Megan Berg heads the staff. She was 5-5 with a 1.02 earned-run average last spring when she struck out 127 batters in 68.2 innings. Junior Allyson Helling stepped in when Berg went down with an injury and finished with a 7-2 record and a 1.08 ERA.

Sophomores Kelly Hanson, Brittni Johnson and Shawna Rogalla also threw varsity innings a year ago.

An all-junior infield that averaged less than an error a game last year includes Jamie Hoglo at first, Helling at second, Kjelsy Loeffler at shortstop and DD Rambeck at third. Johnson, along with seniors Angie Blom, Trudy Erickson and Jenny Grove will also be vying for playing time in the infield. "All of these girls are very athletic and have been pushing each other for spots," noted Okeson.

Senior Kindra Trontvet and junior Chasity Johnson are competing for the catching job. "Both have a lot of varsity experience, and both bring a lot of athleticism behind the dish," offered Okeson.

Returning starters in the outfield are senior Kayla Gallagher in left, junior Amanda Timm in center and both Chasity Johnson and senior Shayla Torrell in right. Junior Katie Pribula will be trying to crack that line-up.

Four Prowlers did hit .300 or better last year, led by Torrell, who carried a .367 average (11/30) and finished the year with a nine-game hitting streak. Loeffler batted .355 (22/62) with 21 infield teams and a team-high 15 walks. Trontvet batted .305 (18/59) and drove in a team-leading 14 runs. Gallagher finished with a .302 average (16/53).

"Those four need to produce again at those levels, and the rest need to up their averages from last season," said Okeson.

Rest of the roster includes sophomores Lauren Dondelinger, Joann Blom and Sarah Michaels, along with freshmen Mauri Gonsorowski, Brittany Andreason, Amanda Lara, Jodie Roy, Paige Woods, Jenna Hoglo and Brandi Hermanson.

Junior varsity coaches are Tony Greene and Kenny Geiser.

The players followed their high school spring softball season with a 20-game summer program that featured a second place finish in a strong Winnipeg, Man., tournament and a consolation title at the Class C 18U Minnesota Fastpitch Softball Association state tournament.

Okeson is beginning his seventh year as Thief River Falls head coach. The Prowlers have posted winning records the past four seasons, but they are 0-6 in the double-elimination Section 8AAA tournament over the last three years – including three straight one-run opening round losses.

"This group has put a lot of expectations upon themselves," mentioned Okeson. "Their main goal is to be playing Memorial Day – the third round of the post-season."

Thief River Falls' 2005 season and home opener planned April 1 was rescheduled for Saturday, April 16.

Andrew Peralta, a Lincoln High School sophomore, earned a championship medal in the 275-pound portion of the Cadet Division for 14-15-year-olds during the USA Wrestling Kids/Cadet Folkstyle National Championships April 2-3 in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Andrew Peralta wins title at national meet

A title-winning performance was turned in by Lincoln High School sophomore Andrew Peralta during the 2005 USA Wrestling Kids/Cadet Folkstyle Nationals April 2-3 at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Peralta won the 275-pound title in the Cadet portion of the event for wrestlers born in 1989-90 (14-15-year-olds).

The event was held at the UNI-Dome on the the University of Northern Iowa campus.

Peralta's national championship performance started with wins over a pair of Wisconsin wrestlers – a 2:56 quarterfinal pin of Tom Mattfield and a 10-0 semifinal decision over Zak Saevre.

A title match against Randy Morin was a close affair until Peralta put the Indiana opponent on his back for a 4:37 pin.

Peralta was coming off a 36-7 varsity high school season for the Prowlers when he led the team in pins with 25.

Peralta qualified for the nationals with a USA Wrestling state championship performance March 19 in Rochester, where he was an 8-4 championship match winner over Blaine Hjelm of St. Francis, who was 34-8 and a Class AAA state qualifier during the 2004-05 high school season.

Peralta expressed thanks to family, friends, organizations and area businesses for their support in helping to finance the trip to the national tournament. Organization/business donations came from the Thief River Falls Take Down Club, Northern Pride Inc., Ace Rent-All, Celltech Communications, Safe-Key Storage, Woodman Construction, Fynboh Construction, Altra Chiropractic Clinic, Bergerson Construction, Thygeson Construction, Oil Boyz Express Lube, Dr. Sanjay S. Northland baseball...

NCTC is 1-3 on trip to Miles City, Mont.

Northland Community and Technical College began its Saturday/Sunday appearance at the Pioneer Tournament in Miles City, Mont., with a win, but then lost the next three starts, dropping the team's early-season nonconference record to 4-7.

Saturday, Northland out-scored Prairie Baseball Academy of Canada 9-6 before being shut out by host Miles Community College 9-0.

Sunday rematches resulted in a 12-1 loss to Prairie Baseball Academy and a 5-4 extra-inning setback at the hands of Miles Community College.

In that final game, Northland led Miles, a perennial National Junior College Athletic Association Division II power already boasting a 25-8 record this spring, 4-2 going into the bottom of the seventh, but gave up the tying run with two out and two strikes on the batter.

Northland then loaded the bases with one out in the top of the eighth, only to have the inning end on a fly ball to right field that turned into a double play as the runner tried to tag and score from third.

Miles won it in the bottom half of the inning by loading the bases on two hits and a walk, followed by a solid single to right.

"This was a tough loss," said Northland coach Steve Gust. "We played our hearts out, but came up just short."

Gust, however, hopes the Pioneers can learn from the experience. "These are the type of games that will help a team in the long run," he explained. "I'm proud of the team's effort."

Two TRF wrestlers win state tournament titles

Thief River Falls' Jacoby Bergeron and Chaz Abrahamson won titles during the Northland Youth Wrestling Association state championships held April 2-3 at the Mayo Civic Center in Rochester.

Bergeron defeated Nate Mitchell of Shakopee 15-3, Ben Henle of New London-Spicer 12-4, Tanner Pehrson of Waseca 9-0 and Nate Lynn of Adrian 4-2 for the championship in the fifth/sixth grade 70-pound division – his fourth title.

Abrahamson opened with a pin against Shane Westrich of Lakeville, then decisioned Trey Hable of Albert Lea 5-1, Mitchell Lexvold of Kenyon-Wanamingo 3-1 and Christian Skillings of Minneota 3-2 in double-overtime to take the fifth/sixth grade 80-pound title - his first title crown.

Tournament Notes

Two other Thief River Falls wrestlers were also state meet place finishers. Seventy-pound second grader Nathaniel Holeck defeated Carter Klinger of Waseca for third place and 93-pound sixth grader Stevie Keogh beat Zach Rohr of Hastings to place fifth. Orlando Peralta, a 130-pound sixth grader, was sixth.

Chaz Abrahamson had his arm raised by the referee after the Thief River wrestler defeated Mitch Lexvold of Kenyon-Wanamingo during the April 2-3 Northland Youth Wrestling Association state tournament in Rochester. Abrahamson won the 80-pound title in the fifth/sixth grade division. Submitted photo.

Alec Holen is a member of title-winning 8A/8AA team

Alec Holen of Thief River Falls was a member of the title-winning Section 8A/8AA team during the 22nd annual Ted Brill Minnesota Great 8 High School Hockey Festival April 1-3 at Wakota Arena in South St. Paul.

Designed for high school seniors, the event is put together by the Minnesota Boys High School Hockey Coaches Association and Minnesota Hockey.

Selection process begins with coaches nominating their players. The roster is finalized by a vote of section coaches. Each 17-member team includes two goalies, six defensemen and nine forwards, along with six alternates: a goalie, two defensemen and three forwards.

The Class A and Class AA Coach of the Year in each section coach the Great 8 teams.

Holen was part of the Section 8A/8AA squad that also included goalies Spencer Deutz (Moorhead) and Mark Therie (Warroad); defensemen Jon Ammerman (Moorhead), Eric Olimb (Warroad), Brett Barta (Moorhead), Channing Boe (Bemidji), Casey Morin (East Grand Forks) and Jesse Johnston (Roseau); along with forwards Cory Loose (Moorhead), Corey Johnson (Moorhead), Matt Becker (Moorhead), Ben Bengston (Warroad), Greg Beller (Lake of the Woods), Jesse Echternach (Bemidji), Josh Brodeen (Warroad) and Donavan Haugstad (Kittson Central).

Alternates were defensemen David Larson (Warroad) and Brent Bratloff (Park Rapids), forwards Alex Lundbohm (Roseau), Clayton Grimstad (Alexandria) and Ryan Clukey (Moorhead), plus goalie Charlie Doth (St Cloud Tech).

Dave Morinville of Moorhead and Dennis Fermoyle were the Section 8A/8AA coaches.

Section 8A/8AA posted a 5-1 quarterfinal win over Section 4A/4AA; notched a 4-3 overtime victory over Section 1A/1AA in the semifinals; and skated to a 9-3 championship game decision against Section 2A/3AA.

For 14 years, the event was known as the Minnesota High School All-Star Maroon and Gold Series featuring two 21-member teams – the Outstate Golds and the Metro Maroons. The format then became the Minnesota Great 68 High School Hockey Festival with four teams and 68 players. Six years ago, in an effort to further provide more graduating seniors with the opportunity to display their talents and skills for advanced levels of hockey, organizers went with eight teams and 136 players.

The event is sanctioned by the Minnesota State High School League, allowing participants to maintain their edibility for spring sports.

Impending retirements pose challenges for natural resource agencies

Arlington, Vir., Government agencies charged with managing America's renewable natural resources are facing an unprecedented challenge due to huge changes in the workforce because of coming retirements. Other concerns are budget constraints and suggestions by some that less government involvement in resource management is desirable. These issues and how to recruit and provide the necessary training for the natural resource workforce of the future were discussed at a special session held recently at the North American Wildlife and Natural Resources Conference in Arlington, Virginia.

There is a striking difference between the federal government and civilian workforces. "Over 40 percent of the government workforce is over the age of 50, about 23 percent have more than 25 years of service, and only about 6 percent are under the age of 30," according to Ryan Colker, of the Renewable Natural Resources Foundation and a presenter at the session. "In the civilian labor force, about 24 percent are over age 50 and about 38 percent are under 30."

In 2002, the Department of Interior (including the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Park Service, Bureau of Indian Affairs, U. S. Geological Survey, and Bureau of Land Management) had 58,857 employees, the U.S. Forest Service had 30,811, and the Environmental Protection Agency had 16,776. In late 2003, Interior had an overall attrition rate of 20 percent over the previous four years and by October of 2007, over half of their senior level executives will have retired. In the Forest Service, 50 percent of the key leadership personnel and 40 percent of the overall workforce will be eligible to retire by 2007. "In some key specialties (within the Forest Service), the projections are particularly significant-entomologists (81 percent), foresters (49 percent), and wildlife biologists (35 percent)," according to Colker. A similar trend will occur within the Environmental Protection Agency. Steve McMillin of Virginia Polytechnic University surveyed state natural resource agencies and noted similar trends as the federal sector. "At least 41 percent of all groups planned to retire by the end of 2015, including 54 percent of law enforcement personnel and 77 percent of management team personnel."

David Trauger, also of Virginia Tech, noted that while the retirement wave will create some challenges, it will also present a strategic opportunity to improve the diversity goals within governmental agencies. "Our natural resources workforce in agencies simply doesn't reflect the ethnic diversity of our population. By 2050, 52 percent of our college age population will be minorities."

Of particular concern to agencies in this unprecedented changeover in personnel, is the loss of experienced staff or "institutional memory," and the maintenance of core competencies in science and technology. Passing on the knowledge of how and why things were done, agency history, and experiences is often of strategic importance to new hires. Colker suggests that retirees could be recruited to remain in an emeritus status with agencies to mentor new employees or associate with university natural resource programs to assist in the training of future agency employees.

Universities have an especially critical role to play in this transition challenge since they recruit and educate students, provide agency in-service training, and further resource management science. In addition to providing traditional background courses in a particular discipline, universities must ensure that graduates; are good communicators, can work in teams, embrace a diverse constituency, are technologically proficient, have competency in conflict resolution, can think critically, and are prepared to become life-long learners to keep pace with a rapidly changing work place.

In some university natural resource programs, enrollment has actually declined in recent years; perhaps due to a lack of interest in government employment or working in the environment, or a lingering perception that there are a limited number of jobs in the field. In fact, until recent years, employment opportunities in the public sector were more limited and very competitive. "In my 35 years in natural resources education, the job market has never been better," according to Dan Svedarsky, Head of the Natural Resources Department at the University of Minnesota, Crookston. "Those students who do well academically, complete internships, and present themselves well, often have two or three jobs to choose from and indications are that these conditions will persist for at least 7-10 more years."

Another significant change in the natural resources workforce has been the shift from public to private entities. Increasingly, public agencies are contracting or "outsourcing" some of their research and management tasks to private contractors or consulting firms. Also, there has been an increase in the number of private conservation organizations such as; The Nature Conservancy, Ducks Unlimited, and Pheasants Forever which employ field and staff personnel. Many private firms specialize in land management to restore prairie, woodlands, and wetland environments and are a significant source of employment.

Meeting the natural resource management needs of the present and the future will necessitate a highly coordinated effort between public agencies, private management organizations, and educational institutions. Competing uses for limited natural resources will become more intense as human populations and special interest groups increase. Employment opportunities, however, will be quite good for those natural resource graduates with the full skill set needed to work with a variety of public and resource uses.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota has the makings of springtime in it. This morning when I put out the garbage at 7:00 a.m., it was actually warm and no wind. The snow is fast disappearing, even on the north side of the house. It's already over 50 degrees out here and if it keeps on, the rest of today, I'll be able to get to the bird feeder and clean it and fill it again. There was a robin sitting on Morris and Hazel's steps last week and Morris got his feeders filled. There are a lot of small birds around the farm waiting for nice weather.

The ladies of the Bethesda Lutheran Church are busy quilting today. It is unbelievable how many quilts that group gets done and distributed each year to needy people near and far. They are to be commended for their worthy efforts.

Judy Kleinvachter doesn't forget her friends on holidays. She took June Severson to Irene's Cafe on Easter Sunday and waited while June enjoyed the wonderful smorgasbord dinner that Irene had spread, returned June to her home before she joined friends and relatives at Mark Kleinvachter's home for dinner in the afternoon. Father John Kleinvachter and the families of Wayne Larson, Ben Kilenvachter, Terry Pietruszewski, were there and also Lois Kleinvachter and Matt Hammer. Judy says there was so much to eat that it was almost impossible to eat on Monday at the Center. Other guests at her home last week were June Kasprowicz, Kelly Lefrooth, Betty Pietruszowski and Pat and Rebecca Larson.

Jeremy and Lisa Johnson from the Cities spent the Easter weekend visiting Danny Johnson's home. On Thursday evening, Danny, Becky Jake, Jeremy and Lisa Johnson and Grandma Pearl Thompson had dinner in Greenbush. On Friday, LaVonne and Brian Johnson took Pearl Thompson to dinner in Strandquist. Jeremy and Lisa returned to the Cities on Sunday.

On Friday evening, Isaac and Betsy Thompson, Pearl Thompson and Elsie Lefrooth had dinner with me. Robert Thompson stopped in for a few minutes also. There is going to be a benefit for him Friday the 9th of April to help with the expenses while he has to take treatments in Rochester for the next eight weeks.

Elaine Grovum of TRF came for her mother, Elsie Thompson on Easter Sunday. David and Elaine served a delicious dinner for both their mothers Evelyn Grovum and Elsie. They spent the afternoon visiting.

I accompanied Morris and Hazel Anderson to Grand Forks, N.D. on Sunday where we were dinner guests at Jim and Cindy Wetterlund's beautiful home. Other guests were John and Sherlene Bridenbach, and Christy Wetterlund.

I will forego the dinner at the Center to tell why we celebrate Easter because I didn't realize how many people are not aware of the tradition. Originally it was called the "Passover" and was celebrated on Nisan 14th regardless what day of the week it fell on. Because Christians were celebrating the resurrection of Jesus Christ, they did it on the Lord's Day, Sunday. The difference was settled in 325 AD and Easter was celebrated on the first Sunday after the full moon following the vernal equinox. This date can vary from March 21st to April 25th. Let's not forget that because He rose, we shall also rise someday!!!

Ida Rupprecht • 681-4440

Wendy and Rachel Blue from Moorhead were overnight guests Saturday at Ida Rupprecht's home. On Sunday, they were joined by Judy and Casey Jones from Goodridge, David and Lori Jones and Walter from Gatzke and Jessica Wellman for dinner at Ida's.

Margaret and Les Nelson were Easter Sunday dinner guests at Jean Nelson's home. Gary Hanway and Jean Sorenson joined them for dessert in the afternoon.

Bernice Trochmann, Jean Nelson and Ida Rupprecht treated Irene Nelson to a belated birthday dinner on Wednesday at the Lantern.

Scholarships were presented to many students at the Northland Community and Technical College Spring Scholarship Ceremony, which was held March 21 at the Swenson House. Among the recipients were (from left) Don Martens and Todd Rimmereid, both Cherry Air Inc. Scholarships, Simon Schmitz, Thief River Falls Community Arts Council Scholarship, and Mandy Sparby and Michele Beito, Border State Bank Scholarships.

Quilters sew together a show for community

Thief River Falls Public Library and the Thief River Falls Quilter's Guild is offering visitors a glimpse at some of the talent possessed by quilters in the region. We invite residents to not only stop in and visit the library for the purpose of checking out a book or the many other services offered by our library, but to take a look at quilts now on display.

At one time, quilt-making was more than art, it was necessary. At one time, it was less expensive to make a quilt than it was to buy one. Today, there's no way someone could be fully compensated for the many hours spent in making a quilt. In the past, making a quilt was also a way to do something with pieces of worn out clothing or cloth. Yet, they meant something. These carefully crafted quilts became cherished pieces of the past when they were passed on from one generation to another. Almost everyone I know still remembers "grandma's quilt." I don't want to start any fights, but I'll also bet that everyone in the family remembers who got that cherished heirloom after grandma passed away.

Many times, the symbols in quilts also had meaning. A couple of years ago, quilters visited with students at Lincoln High School about how designs in quilts were used to provide directions to slaves escaping the South in the underground railroad.

Today, buying a quilt or blanket is more economical than making one. Yet, quilt-making is, according to Deb Winjum, president of the Quilter's Guild, the fastest growing artform in the nation. It's popular not only because of a resurgence in the interest of history, but because people with sewing skills needed an outlet for all their creative energy.

I have no sewing skills. I've sewed buttons back on to shirts, but the result could only be described as pathetic. I told the quilters that I have no sewing skills whatsoever, but they still wanted me to pick out a quilt for the Editor's Choice Award.

My brother laughed at my predicament when I told him they didn't have any selection standards for me to follow. "What are you going to do?" he asked. I told him I was just going to pick out the one I like. "You're in deep trouble," he said.

Saturday, as I looked at the quilts and intricate detail that went into making each quilt, I had to agree with my brother - I'm in trouble. How do you pick one from so many, especially when you don't know what you're doing?

Then, I looked at the bigger picture. It was one of the nicest Saturday afternoons we've had in a long time, and yet there were many people in the library. They were reading books, magazines, newspaper articles, listening to music, looking up information on computers, and milling about - looking at quilts, like I was. As I stood there, I thought that this is a nice arrangement that complements the duties of the library. There's certainly a lot of history in quilts, which can often be read in the designs of the quilts. Some of the quilts were also very modern, so that they demonstrated an interesting mix of tradition and modernity.

Perhaps the only thing that was lacking was more room to display all the quilts. Wouldn't it be nice if the library had more room for books and its services, as well as a display room for pictures, art, quilts - all of which are part of our past and present? Maybe expanding the library is something this community should be thinking more seriously about, but I digress.

As my imagination drifted, exploring the many options for a larger library, I did, however, come to a decision. Because of how well the exhibit complements the library and shows how past and present can complement each other, my first choice for an Editor's Choice award would have to go to the entire club. All of the quilters deserve it. They're tremendously talented, and as representatives of this community, they are terrific ambassadors.

OK, some of you may think this is no decision at all. If this decision is seen as a copout and I'm forced to make a decision on just one quilt, I'll probably just have to cover my eyes and point. Like a lot of things I've attempted, I have no idea what I'm doing. I'm also desperately trying not to insult anyone.

Now, I wonder if there's a way to get off this fence post?

Congratulations to Dick Spyhalski

Congratulations to Dick Spyhalski. Spyhalski recently resigned from his duties as chief executive officer for Northwest Medical Center. Last week, staff honored Spyhalski with a party celebrating his 22 years as the chief executive at the hospital.

In a recent news release about his resignation, Larry McDowell, chairman of the Northwest Medical Center Association board of directors, said, "Dick has always had the best interests of Northwest Medical Center at the forefront of his leadership, and has done a fine job of leading and managing the medical center."

We add to that, that throughout his career, Spyhalski zealously supported the policies, procedures, purchases and beliefs he thought were in the best interest of the community, the hospital and patients' interests. He also served during a time of enormous change, and during this change, he was direct and forthright in letting us know what he thought should be the direction of the hospital. We appreciated that.

A replacement is now being sought. Whoever is selected to lead the hospital in the future, will do so amidst increasingly difficult challenges - challenges that are being faced by the medical community here and across the country. He or she will need the support of the entire community. We are convinced that the board of directors will select a leader who will act in the best interests of the community, the hospital and its patients

Area gets a healthy return on taxes paid

by Rep. Bernie Lieder
District 1B

Whenever a discussion involves taxes, one can expect a difference of opinion over who pays what and who gets what. This is especially true when a group of legislators are involved in the debate or in a political campaign.

The argument I hear from rural residents is that the metro area gets the lion's share of state benefits while those living in the metro area tell me they are paying the way for rural areas.

In the past, I have provided data compiled by nonpartisan House Research that shows the statewide totals of all state aids and taxes paid in the last available years. I think it's important to look at these numbers again to understand how much we're paying in state taxes in this area and where those taxes actually end up.

The total taxes that I'll be presenting here are not all taxes collected by the state. I didn't include taxes like the cigarette tax or the tax on alcohol and others that are dedicated for specific purposes. The major state taxes I did include are the individual income tax, the sales tax, motor vehicle sales tax, corporate income tax and state property taxes.

The taxes are returned to the area through direct spending by state agencies as well as state aids to schools; local governments; county, municipal and township highway aids; and property tax credits.

(Just as an aside, as strange as it sounds, state aids designed to help reduce property taxes are considered as state spending when dealing with the state budget. That's an important thing to remember when you hear the governor complaining about the rise in state spending over the past decade. What he fails to acknowledge when he talks about the rise in state spending is that much of the increase in the 1990s came in the form of property tax relief. That's why so many of his cuts have resulted in higher property taxes.)

Here is the breakdown of taxes paid by residents and businesses in northwest Minnesota and how much the state spends here. The numbers are the return per capita based on every dollar paid in major state taxes:

- Marshall County – 1.73 county average, 1.57 northwest area average and 0.80 state average.
- Pennington County – 1.05 county average, 1.57 northwest area average and 0.80 state average.
- Polk County – 1.88 county average, 1.57 northwest area average and 0.80 state average.
- Red Lake County – 2.31 county average, 1.57 northwest area average and 0.80 state average.

The following numbers are the average total property tax levy in dollars per capita less credits:

- Marshall County – $700 county average, $699 northwest area average and $911 state average.
- Pennington County – $613 county average, $699 northwest area average and $911 state average.
- Polk County – $771 county average, $699 northwest area average and $911 state average.
- Red Lake County – $639 county average, $699 northwest area average and $911 state average.

The following numbers are the average dollars per capita received for education:

- Marshall County – $927 county average, $1,086 northwest area average and $854 state average.
- Pennington County – $1,032 county average, $1,086 northwest area average and $854 state average.
- Polk County – $1,027 county average, $1,086 northwest area average and $854 state average.
- Red Lake County – $1,203 county average, $1,086 northwest area average and $854 state average.

Finally, these numbers are the average dollars per capita we get in highway aid (not including state highways) for each dollar paid in fuel and license taxes:

- Marshall County – $2.06 county average, $1.61 northwest area average and $0.48 state average.
- Pennington County – $1.09 county average, $1.61 northwest area average and $0.48 state average.
- Polk County – $1.45 county average, $1.61 northwest area average and $0.48 state average.
- Red Lake County – $2.43 county average, $1.61 northwest area average and $0.48 state average.

I hope these numbers demonstrate the value we get in this area for being a partner with state government. I've talked a lot in the past about how the unique partnership we built between the state and local units of government is the reason Minnesota is a leader in so many areas that are vital to the quality of life. It's the reason our schools perform as well as they do. It's the reason our health care system is the envy of other states. It's also why our rural communities have done as well as they have compared with other Midwest states.

Our budget debate over the past few years has been, in a large part, about this partnership. The governor and the majority in the House want to undo a lot of the aids that are a part of that partnership. I hope these numbers demonstrate why I oppose the governor's budget approach.

Racino! It's about horses

by Rep. Randy Demmer
District 29A

Canterbury Park features a state-of-the-art horse track, and is the horse racing industry's primary venue in Minnesota. In 1999, the Legislature approved the addition of a card club at Canterbury. Today, 14 percent of revenue generated from the card club is designated to increasing purses at the track. Higher purses directly improve Minnesota's horseracing industry by increasing the demand for and value of horses raised by the state's breeders. Larger contributions to organizations that promote equine interests are also possible.

Currently, Minnesota's horse population ranks ninth in the nation. Our equine economic impact, however, is ranked 45th in the nation accounting for $930 million in economic activity per year in our state. Minnesota has not been utilizing our equine assets to their full economic potential. The University of Minnesota's Department of Applied Economics prescribes investing in the racing and show industry as the best way to increase the value and impact of our horse industry. Racino provides that investment.

The Racino vision involves the construction of two indoor arenas, three outdoor arenas, western show arenas and pens, a racehorse barn area and a show horse barn area. These facilities would enable Canterbury to host local, regional and national equestrian events. In addition, the construction of a first-class hotel and conference center would further provide competitive accommodations for traveling visitors and competitors. The big events must have the facilities that are convenient, comfortable and accessible.

The Racino proposal would involve the construction of a casino, which would be a separate facility from the rest of the park to maintain a family friendly atmosphere. It would offer the same games as Canterbury offers now but with the addition of slot machines. Some argue that this would create an unfair competition for the tribal casinos. However, tribal casinos have increased their number of slot machines by more than 50 percent to meet the demands of increased tourism and visitors. The Racino's few thousand slot machines versus the tribes' 21,000-plus slot machines would still give the tribes the advantage. But, with one of the highest gaming taxes in the nation, the addition of slot machines at the Racino would generate tens of millions in annual revenue to the state.

So, what is the connection between slot machines and our horse industry? Over 7 percent of the slot revenue, or nearly $20 million per year would be applied towards increasing purses at the track. Also, the Minnesota Breeder's fund would receive 20 percent of those purse increases to enhance Minnesota's horse industry and population. The state would receive 35 percent of the slot revenue - nearly $100 million per year. The local government would receive 2 percent, Canterbury Park would receive 46.75 percent and 10 percent would go to the lottery to cover costs of regulating the gaming. Any money left over from funds appropriated to the lottery would then be dispersed as lottery proceeds are under current law.

The funding for the construction of the $120 million new facilities would be the sole responsibility of Canterbury without any state aid or subsidies. The only contribution Racino would need from the state is permission through legislative actions.

Penas approves of spending resolution

State Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger) was part of the majority in the Minnesota House of Representatives that recently approved a state government spending package for the 2006-07 biennium. The final total approved by the House was $29.84 billion, which Penas noted is $75 million more than Gov. Tim Pawlenty proposed.

"This package is more than $2 billion larger than the amount spent in 2004-05," said Penas. "This total equals a more than 7 percent increase in state government spending, or put another way, equals $400 more for every person in Minnesota."

Penas said the budget resolution is adopted every two years by the House and sets the maximum limit on state government spending. During the debate, an amendment was proposed that would have allegedly added more money to K-12 education in the state, but it was defeated.

"The problem with this amendment was that there was no explanation of where the additional money would come from for K-12," said Penas. "Common sense tells me if this had been approved, we would have had to raise income or sales taxes, institute a clothing tax, or further cut other programs to make it work."

Penas added, "In addition, the amendment did not allocate where the money would go, meaning there was no guarantee the funding would be dedicated to local classrooms. It is irresponsible to approve a tax increase without knowing where the money is coming from and determining how it is going to be spent."

Penas said the House's overall budget figure should be enough to meet the growing needs of state government. With approval of the budget resolution, the Minnesota House now has 14 days to set its spending targets.

"If we wouldn't have been able to agree on this resolution, it could have created another stalemate where nothing gets done during the session and nobody wins," Penas said.

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER APRIL 6, 1905
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

Thief River's Petition
It Is Completed and Will Be Presented to the County Auditor This Week

"This week, Thief River Falls' petition for the removal of the county seat from Red Lake Falls to this city will be presented to the county auditor of Red Lake county. It at once becomes the duty of the county auditor to give twenty days' notice and then call a meeting of the board of county commissioners to consider the petition.

"The meeting of the commissioners will probably be about the first of May and if at that time they are of the opinion that the petition as presented contains the names of 60 percent of the voters of Red Lake county, it will be their duty to call a special election and the people will vote upon the matter. As Red Lake Falls controls the county commissioners, it will be within the power of that city to have the election come off at once, or to delay it for a year or more by forcing Thief River Falls to carry every proceeding to the state supreme court. Thief River Falls cares little when the election takes place, in fact it will stand a much better show a few years from now than at present, but is willing that the election be held at any time.

"The petition, when presented, will have a few over 2,000 names or about 700 more than the 60 percent. It has been found that nearly 300 signatures secured in the southern part of the county had not been secured in a proper form and these were taken off the list, or the petition would have over 2,300 names. It was not thought wise to again go to the expense of getting these names and, as it is certain that we have considerably over 60 percent of names that will 'stick,' they will not be needed.

"Red Lake Falls has made no attempt yet to circulate the remonstrance, and of course there can be no way of knowing the intentions of the down river town until it takes some action. The town will, in its usual 'foxy' way, endeavor to wait until the last minute and then rush the people off their feet."

Ditched the Caboose

"GREENBUSH JOURNAL: While on his return from Thief River Falls Tuesday, Conductor Ramsheart lost his caboose, when about two miles this side of Strathcona. The recent thaw has settled the roadbed away from the track and when the caboose struck one of these spots after the balance of the train had passed over it, she bumped the ties, turned a somersault or two and parted company with the train. There was no one in the caboose at the time and all the damage done the caboose was slight. The wrecking train came up Thursday and picked it up."

The Ice Has Gone Out

"The ice in the Red Lake River has gone out. Considerable damage was done to the Thief River Falls Lumber company's piling about three miles up the river."

Warning by the Mayor

"The attention of Mayor Bakke has been called to the fact that residents of the east side are dumping manure in the slough east of the Knox school on the east side, and he wished to warn people not to continue doing this or they will be prosecuted. The dumping ground is the proper place to haul this stuff to."

School Board
Meeting Held Tuesday Evening and Three New Teachers Hired

"The school board held a meeting Tuesday evening and hired three new teachers for next year. The teachers hired were Miss Mary McGinn of this city, Miss Hattie Nickerson of McIntosh, and Miss Irene Lansing of Owatonna.

"There were twenty-two applications for superintendent of schools, and the matter of hiring a new superintendent was discussed, but no action was taken. W. W. Prichard was present and urged that the board engage George A. Frankland at a salary of $2,000 a year. As the board has only paid $1,000 to superintendents in the past, it was considered by some of the members to be too large an increase and that the district was too poor to hire such an expensive man.

"A petition was presented asking that Dr. Gambell be appointed to fill one of the vacancies on the board. As there was no vacancy, no action could be taken upon the matter. The resignation of Mrs. W. A. Wright had been withdrawn."

It Is Now Smiley
Settlers Living In Town 153, Range 42 Do Honor to a Former Loyal Citizen

"The settlers living in town 158, range 42, have decided to name their town Smiley, in honor of W. C. Smiley, that former loyal citizen of Thief River Falls who did so much to secure the opening of this land to settlement.

"When the town was first organized, the name of Big Bend was selected, but owing to the fact that there was another township in the state having that name, it was found necessary to select a new one."

Mill To Start Up

"The Thief River Falls Lumber company expects to start up its mill for the season's run this week. For the first few days the mill will be run days only, but next week it is expected to start up both the day and night crew. The lumber company has plenty of logs in the river to last until the ice goes out in the lake and a fresh supply can be secured."

"The appointment of C. H. Remington as village marshal by the council last Monday evening seems to give general satisfaction. Mr. Remington takes to the work like an old hand and will, we think, make a good official."

Sawmill Will Start

"Fires were put under the boilers at the sawmill for the first time this season last Monday and the week has been spent putting everything in readiness to start next Monday morning, if the ice in the river will permit. H. D. Pettibone will be general manager here this season and Fred Stapleton will be day foreman and John Christie, night foreman. Wm. Maynard will be head sawyer days and Victor Bergeron at night. A. W. Kemp will be day engineer and Fred Case, night. Bridge Brothers will run the lath mill and Fred Campbell and A. M. Dean, the shingle mill. Adolph Brouillard, Ole J. Antoine and Peter N. Anderson will be millwrights. Peter N. Dalnard will run the re-saw days. Joe Demars and Eli Blair will be the edgermen and Peter Hanson and Fred Sandmoen, the trimmers."

New Train Service

"Commencing next Monday, April 10, the Great Northern will inaugurate their new train service. Trains will leave Crookston daily, except Sunday, at 8 a.m. running via Dugdale, Red Lake Falls, and reaching here at 9:55. Returning in the evening the train will leave here at 4:55, arriving in Crookston at 6:45. There will also be a daily freight which will leave here daily, except Sunday, for Wylie at 10:10, arrive at Wylie at 10:45 and arrive here at 11:10. There will be no train between here and Crookston on the old line."

Two Tax Dodgers
J. K. Hannay and Tolef Thompson, Prominent Businessmen, Want Village to Pay Sidewalk Tax
A Technical Point
They Seek By Trickery to Make Neighbors Pay Their Taxes

"Recorder K. O. Gigstad was served with a notice last Monday to appear at Red Lake Falls the following day with the books of the village. It was found after arriving there that J. K. Hannay and Tolef Thompson, two of our prominent businessmen, had instituted an action in the district court to have the taxes levied for sidewalk purposes set aside on technical law points. The case was started in a peculiar manner and no one here knew anything about it and it was the evident intention to put it through and secure snap judgement before anyone interested knew what was going on. Fortunately this has been frustrated and the cases will come up for trial at Red Lake Falls on May 16th. The village council has employed Frank A. Grady as their attorney in the case. The cause of the actions is simply as follows:

"In 1902 the village council condemned the sidewalk on the east side of Broadway in block 39 as unsafe and ordered a new one built. The walk was not built by property owners so after due time was put in by the village street commissioner and the costs assessed against the lots. All of these assessments have been paid except lots 20, 21, 22, block 39, (Markham Hotel) owned by J. K. Hannay. The total cost of construction of the seventy-five feet in question is less than $50.00. In the same year, sidewalk was constructed in a similar manner along two sides of lots 1, 2, block 52, then owned by B. E. Burkee, but now owned by Tolef Thompson.

"In the twenty odd years that St. Hilaire has been incorporated, these two public spirited citizens (?) are the only ones who have ever tried to evade a sidewalk tax. In one or two instances, however, where parties were financially unable to make the payment the village council donated the amount and we do not doubt but that the present council would prove equally as generous if the persons were needy. No question has been raised as to the justice of the claim; the walks were built and the property thereby improved and made more valuable. If it is not paid for by the lot owners it must be paid for by the taxpayers of the village.

"In connection with this, it might be well to call attention to the fact that J. K. Hannay, who is the instigator of these cases, received last year from the village a fee of $200 for looking wise and watching a Crookston attorney win the dump ground case."

Entertains Basketball Boys

"Mrs. N. C. Lindberg entertained the Lincoln High basketball boys at a dinner at the home of Mrs. Bertha Lonson on Wednesday evening of last week. Those present were Coach George Hays, Donald B. Chalmers, and Lyle Lanning, and Richard Dablow, Howard Hoium, Arnold and Grant Mickelson, Arnold Rustad, Glenn Brokke, Robert Booren, Kenneth and Merle Lindberg, Roy Lonson and Donald Snyder."

Norse Play Will Be Given By Brage Chorus Thursday

"The cast has already been chosen for the Norwegian play 'Aunt Billa,' which will be given at the auditorium on Thursday, April 10, at 8:00 p.m. under the auspices of the Brage Male chorus, according to Gustav Schilbred, who is coaching the play, and regular rehearsals are being carried on.

"The cast includes Dr. P. L. Vistaunet, Mrs. T. Reep, Caroline Melby, Carrie Aakhus, Thea Burstad, Clarence Houg, Nell Axelson, Edgar Lundgren, Ragna Stenerson, Olaf Neset, and Ed Burstad.

"There will also be songs by the chorus and readings by Ellen Kolstoe of Oklee.

"Proceeds of the play will be used to defray the expenses of the Brage Chorus when they go to Minneapolis to sing in the National Sangerfest. 'If this play is successful,' Mr. Schilbred says, 'We plan to organize a literary society to sponsor plays and the study of the literature of various countries.'

St. Hilaire* - Birthday Party

Mrs. [illegible] Skatrud entertained [illegible] Monday afternoon [illegible] a delicious lunch was served. The following were present: Beryl Burkee, Doris Hegglund, Evelyn Gigstad, Mildred Hanson, Ruth Brink, Rachael Skatrud, Hazel Hegglund, Edna Hovie, Martha Launa, and Garmo Jenson."

Goodridge* - Boy Scouts Progressing

"The recently organized Boy Scout troop is doing well. At the last meeting 25 boys were present. All of these signify their intention to continue and take part in the movement. It was found necessary to divide the group into two patrols. Einar Johnson will have charge of one of the patrols and Gerald Frodahl will handle the other. Many are able to pass the tenderfoot tests now, but no examination will be given until a large number can pass. As soon as this has been done a charter will be issued. From all the interest evidenced in this organization it seems that it should be a growing organization. These boys are working to become tenderfoot scouts: Howard Frodahl, Laurel Stephenson, Alvin Halvorson, Charles Josephson, Richard Frodahl, Loren Christianson, Ernest Anderson, Einar Johnson, Melvin Belland, Justin Lovly, Gilbert Rime, Olaf Bratland, Selmer Anderson, Glenn Johnsrud, Orrin Uglem and Linden Magnuson."

High School Progress
Winners of Junior and Sophomore Theme Cover Contests Are Announced

"The English II and III classes displayed much initiative on their theme covers. The judges selected three of the best covers from each class. The winners in the English III class were Robert Booren, first, Bertha Solem, second, and Kenneth Lindberg, third.

"The winners in the English II class were Ragna [illegible], first, Vilia Holthusen, second, and Clifford Froehlich third. Others were awarded honorable mention."

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 YEARS AGO • APRIL 6, 1955

Three Local Drug Stores To Divide Sunday Openings

"In order to provide better working hours for employees, Thief River Falls drug stores are cooperating on a plan where only one of the three stores will be open each Sunday in the future between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. It was announced that the new J & B will remain open Sunday, April 10, Parkins Corner Drugs, April 17, and the Pharmacy, April 24, with the schedule for succeeding Sundays to be announced later."

On TV Saturday

"The 26th annual Good Friday presentation in Crookston of the world-famous oratorio 'The Seven Last Words of Christ' by Theodore Dubois, will be repeated in a television performance Saturday, April 9, at 9:30 p.m. from Fargo over KXJB TV of Valley City, North Dakota."

Policemen's Ball In Armory April 15

"Departing from the custom of past years, the annual Policemen's Ball will be held Friday evening, April 15, in the National Guard Armory, instead of in the municipal auditorium. Chief of Police [illegible] Cummings today extended an invitation to local citizens to attend the event."

Auditorium Is Packed Friday At Style Revue

"The municipal auditorium was packed to the limit of its capacity last Friday evening by an audience that enjoyed the presentation of a style revue and vaudeville acts sponsored by a dozen local apparel dealers to herald the event of spring and the inception of Friday night store openings.

"Earl Dunn, Minneapolis entertainer, served as master of ceremonies, with Miss Katherine Barzen as commentator to describe the various types of garments modeled. Mrs. Mae Larson was stage director and Bob Sjulestad supplied incidental music.

"The models paraded on a runway after emerging from a doorway in an attractive background of crepe paper streamers. Apparel presented included the latest styles in dress and casual clothes as well as sports wear for men, women and children.

"Stores represented by models in the style revue included [illegible]

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

THE RIGHT TO VERIFICATION OF THE DEBT AND IDENTITY OF THE ORIGINAL CREDITOR WITHIN THE TIME PROVIDED BY LAW IS NOT AFFECTED BY THIS NOTICE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN: That default has occurred in the conditions of the following described mortgage:

DATE OF MORTGAGE: January 24, 1996.

MORTGAGOR(S): Tracey L. Larson, a single person.

MORTGAGEE: Northern State Bank of Thief River Falls.

DATE AND PLACE OF RECORDING: January 25, 1996 in the office of the County Recorder, in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota and recorded as Document No. 147166, in Book 261 of Records, page 597.

LEGAL DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY: A tract of land lying and being in the South Half of the Southeast Quarter (S1/2SE1/4), Section Twenty-four (24), Township One Hundred Fifty-four (154) North, of Range Forty-five (45) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, described as follows: Beginning at a point of beginning, at a point on the South boundary line of said S1/2SE1/4 which point lies 565' East of the Southwest corner of said S1/2SE1/4; thence North at a right angle and parallel to the West boundary of said S1/2SE1/4 a distance of 750'; thence East at a right angle and parallel to the South boundary of said S1/2SE1/4 a distance of 600'; thence South at a right angle and parallel to the West boundary of said S1/2SE1/4 to the South boundary of said S1/2SE1/4; thence along the South boundary of said S1/2SE1/4; thence along the South boundary of said S1/2SE/14 to the point of beginning.

COUNTY IN WHICH PROPERTY IS LOCATED: Pennington

ORIGINAL PRINCIPAL AMOUNT OF MORTGAGE: $18,300.00

AMOUNT DUE AND CLAIMED TO BE DUE AS OF DATE OF NOTICE, INCLUDING TAXES, IF ANY, PAID BY MORTGAGEE: $7,831.32.

That prior to the commencement of this mortgage foreclosure proceeding Mortgagee/Assignee of Mortgage complied with all notice requirements as required by statute; that no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof;

PURSUANT to the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the above described property will be sold by the Sheriff of said county as follows:

DATE AND TIME OF SALE: Tuesday, May 3, 2005, 10:00 a.m.

PLACE OF SALE: Lobby of Pennington County law Enforcement Center, City of Thief River Falls, to pay the debt then secured by said mortgage, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and the costs and disbursements, including attorney's fees allowed by law subject to redemption within six (6) months from the date of said sale by the mortgagor(s), their personal representatives or assigns.

MORTGAGOR(S) RELEASED FROM FINANCIAL OBLIGATION ON THE MORTGAGE: NONE

THIS IS A COMMUNICATION FROM A DEBT COLLECTOR. ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

THE TIME ALLOWED BY LAW FOR REDEMPTION BY THE MORTGAGOR, THE MORTGAGOR'S PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES OR ASSIGNS, MAY BE REDUCED TO FIVE WEEKS IF A JUDICIAL ORDER IS ENTERED UNDER MINNESOTA STATUTES, SECTION 582.032, DETERMINING, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THAT THE MORTGAGED PREMISES ARE IMPROVED WITH A RESIDENTIAL DWELLING OF LESS THAN FIVE UNITS, ARE NOT PROPERTY USED IN AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION, AND ARE ABANDONED.

In 1987 a program called Little Brother-Little Sister began in Thief River Falls with the simple concept, that one of the greatest influences in a young person's life, is a consistent and positive role model. Like similar programs such as the Big Brother Big Sister program and the Boy's and Girl's clubs, it pairs children, age 6 to 16, with positive minded adults who seek to influence the life of a child.

One of the program's first big sister - little sister pairs, Cindy Hernandez and Angie Lubitz, formed a friendship that has lasted as long as the program itself. Hernandez and Lubitz met when the program began in 1987, and have been like family ever since.

Seventeen years after their last big sister-little sister outing and nine years after their last face to face meeting, Hernandez, 45, now of Fountain Valley Calif., returned to Thief River Falls on Friday for a special occasion - the baptism of Lubitz's son Zachariah. Lubitz, 25, asked Hernandez to be a Godmother of Zachariah, saying she wanted her son's Godmother to be someone who was a positive role model in her own life.

Zachariah was baptized during the 9:30 a.m. service at Silver Creek Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls on Sunday.

Little Brother-Little Sister Program

The Little Brother-Little Sister Program (LBLS) is based locally in Pennington County. The program believes that mentors can influence young people in three important ways, by enhancing social skills and emotional well-being, improving thinking skills through talking and listening and by serving as a role model and advocate.

LBLS mentors are volunteers. They enjoy being with children and have at least eight hours per month available to spend with a child. Activities are planned both by the program and the mentor and child.

Currently, the LBLS Program has 58 youth, ranging in age from 6 to 16, including eight boys and six girls that are waiting for a mentor.

Little brothers and sisters come from a variety of family settings, most commonly from a single parent family, low income household, or a home with other family issues.

Lubitz's story

Lubitz was one of the first little sisters to sign up for the Little Brother-Little Sister Program. Lubitz, the oldest of four daughters, said her mother signed her up for the program "to have different things to do and have a role model that will teach her different things.

Hernandez and Lubitz would spend at least one day a week and two to three

Former "little sister" Angie Lubitz, left and "big sister" Cindy Hernandez, saw each other for the first time in nine years last weekend, when Hernandez returned to Thief River Falls to accept the role of godmother of Lubitz's son Zachariah. Lubitz and Hernandez first met in 1987, during the first year of the Little Brother-Little Sister Program and have stayed in touch ever since.

Greenwood Street bridge funded

Federal funding available

Construction may begin in 2008

by April Schelnoha
Reporter

Another bridge may soon be constructed in Thief River Falls. It is expected the Greenwood Street bridge will be completed by the end of 2009.

City leaders recently learned Thief River Falls has been granted $577,500 in federal funding for the estimated $2 million project. Municipal State Aid will fund the remainder of the bridge project.

The bridge will span from the Greenwood Street and Oakland Park Road intersection across the Red Lake River and through Greenwood Cemetery to Pennington Avenue South.

"The bridge is needed to alleviate traffic congestion at the intersection of First Street and [Highway] 32," said Public Works Director Ron Lindberg.

He anticipated bridge construction may start in spring 2008. "I'm anticipating it will be probably a year-to-a-year and a half maybe," Lindberg said about the amount of time it may take to construct the bridge.

However, city leaders have been told the project may begin earlier if federal funds are available in 2007.

Funding may not be needed for land acquisition related to the project. "We do not anticipate any acquisition of land would be required," Lindberg said.

Once the bridge is constructed, vehicles won't be the only mode of transportation across it. "There would be a sidewalk for pedestrians," said Lindberg. "There would also be a provision for snowmobiles."

It has also been proposed that a more aesthetically pleasing driveway and parking lot be constructed near the Greenwood Trails as part of the project, Lindberg said.

A Greenwood Street bridge has been on the minds of city leaders and residents for a number of years. Years ago, a traffic study estimated a minimum of 4,000 vehicles would use the Greenwood Street bridge instead of the First Street bridge. Given that a few years have passed since that study, Lindberg expected that minimum number is now higher than 4,000.

The First Street bridge currently has the most traffic of any area in the city. The average number of vehicles on the First Street bridge is "just under 20,000 per day," Lindberg said.

Lindberg also referred to traffic congestion at the intersection of First Street and Main Avenue (Highway 32). Due to the number of people traveling home after classes at Lincoln High School (LHS) or after their shifts at Arctic Cat or Digi-Key, drivers are sometimes stopped in traffic past LHS and/or Dairy Queen, according to Lindberg.

He also noted city leaders anticipate 80 to 100 homes will be constructed in the southern part of the city in the near future. As a result, those residents could potentially use the Greenwood Street bridge.

That bridge may also help drivers in the event the First Street or Third

The bridge would span from the Greenwood Street and Oakland Park Road intersection across the Red Lake River and through Greenwood Cemetery to Pennington Avenue South. # Teams scrambling for Relay For Life

by David Hill
Editor

Nearly 30 teams have signed up to participate in the 2005 American Cancer Relay For Life in Pennington County June 10 and 11 at the Lowell T. Swenson Field in Thief River Falls.

Organizers are excited about the number of teams who have signed up to participate in this event. Granted, last year was the first time a Relay For Life event has been held in Pennington County and organizers had no idea how many people would express an interest in the event. They were pleased when 11 teams signed up to participate in the event. So, with still more than two months until the event, organizers are excited about the fact that they have received more than double the number of team entries they received last year. It represents a significant increase in the number of participants and interest.

Ideally, each team consists of eight to 15 individuals; some teams have more than 15 and others less. Relay For Life is a fun-filled overnight event designed to celebrate cancer survivorship and raise money for research and programs of the American Cancer Society. Prior to the event, teams gather donations and pledges to support cancer research

Work on First Street bridge scheduled

Drivers will be encountering a two-lane First Street bridge sometime this summer. An annual inspection has determined bridge bearings need some maintenance.

The First Street bridge will be lifted to enable workers to clean and lubricate the bearings upon which the bridge sits, according to Public Works Director Ron Lindberg. He noted the bridge will be lifted slightly to swivel the bearings. Lindberg said he thought the average driver will not be able to notice that the bridge has been lifted.

During the project, Lindberg said that he thought the bridge will be able to carry traffic on one half of the bridge at a time. As a result, while the work is being completed, the First Street bridge will have two lanes instead of four.

As of this time, Lindberg said he did not know when this summer project will occur or how much the project will cost. He also did not know how long the project will take.

Setting a higher standard for science at LHS

Lincoln High School Student Barrett Holen to participate in International Science Fair in Arizona

Barrett Holen

Holen is just the sixth individual student, and his project just the fifth from LHS to qualify for the International Science Fair since the LHS program began in 1996.

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Lincoln High School student Barrett Holen has joined a pretty select group. The LHS sophomore was selected to participate as an alternate for the International Science Fair during the Feb. 26 regional science fair competition.

Holen is just the sixth individual student, and his project just the fifth from LHS to qualify for the International Science Fair since the LHS program began in 1996.

Holen will join some of the brightest young minds in the country for the International Science Fair, held May 8-14 in Phoenix, Ariz. Not only will Holen be able to learn from some of the older competitors at the international level, but he will be able to participate in side activities that active competitors aren't allotted time for, such as scientific adventures, going to Lowell Observatory, the Desert Botanical Gardens and possibly a trip to the Grand Canyon.

"It's a great opportunity to observe and get ideas for next year," Holen said. "Its going to be a fun experience."

Holen qualified as one of two alternates from the regional science fair. His project was in the botany category (plants). The fair is also sending two active competitors, each of whom is a senior and returning International Science Fair competitor. Holen will become an active competitor if for some reason either returning competitor chooses not to compete.

The regional science fair includes categories, all of which compete with each other for the top four overall places. Students can enter a progject (board with judging interview) or a paper (written) or both, based on their experiment and use of the scientific method to obtain results.

Holen began working on his science fair project in October 2004, during a college-prep biology class. He originally wanted to do a project that dealt with acid rain. His topic eventually shifted to plants that grow well in acidic soil and eventually to his final project on the effect of salicylic acid on chlorophyll.

Holen's project compared how various amounts of salicyclic acid (common aspirin), with the concentrations of 0, 1, 3 and 5 percent effected the chlorophyll content in bean plants. Holen used a chlorophyll meter to measure the content. Plants were watered with the various concentrations for one week, then they were tested. The process was repeated for three weeks.

Holen's findings were, the lower the salicyclic acid concentration, the higher the mean chlorophyll count. He compared the various concentrations with his control group, 0 percent, using three "T" tests. His conclusion, salicycelic acid had a negative effect on the chlorophyll content when given salicycilic acid in higher concentrations.

Holen used photos, diagrams and graphs to show his results while displaying the work at the local, regional and state science fairs. In the end, Holen spent about six months on the project that earned him a trip to Phoenix, Ariz.

This is Holen's third science fair. His family moved to Thief River Falls when he was in eighth grade and he has participated ever since.

Holen is the son of Loren and Jodi Holen of Thief River Falls and the brother of Alec and Ian. He has a strong interest in the fields of science and health, and is considering a career in either field. Besides his academic interests, Holen participates in soccer, Envirothon, LHS Student Senate as class president, Key Club and is a past recipient of an academic letter

What You Should Know About Natural Gas Pipeline Safety.
Natural gas is a safe and reliable source of energy when used properly. While natural gas has an excellent safety record, it is possible to have a natural gas leak by accident or through misuse.
Even if you don't use natural gas as an energy source at your home or business, it is important to be aware of natural gas safety.
Indications A Gas Leak May Have Occurred
• First, be aware of the natural gas odor, sometimes compared to the smell of rotten eggs.
• Blowing, hissing sounds, or bubbling in a wet or flooded area.
• Unexpected areas of dead vegetation or vegetation that is turning brown along only a certain portion of a lawn, or near natural gas equipment.
What To Do If You Smell Or Hear Natural Gas
• If you suspect a gas leak, immediately leave the premises, or if outdoors, move away from the area.
• Do not turn lights or appliances on or off.
• Do not light a match.
• Do not use the telephone; instead, go to a neighbor's home or a nearby business to call for help.
Who To Call
• If you are a customer of Aquila, use the Company's 24-hour emergency line at
• If your gas service is provided by another utility, please follow their notification procedures.
• If you are not a natural gas utility customer, or if an incident occurs at a public location, call your local emergency officials using 9-1-1.
Call Before You Dig
Remember: At least 48 hours before you plant a tree, build a fence or complete any project that might require digging, call Gopher State One Call at 1-800-252-1166. This will help ensure that affected utilities are notified of your plans, with utility personnel available to mark the location of underground lines for you. A simple call can help avoid potentially serious or fatal injuries as well as expensive repairs that you may be liable for.
Look For Gas And Pipeline Markers
Utility companies use the following types of markers to indicate the presence of a gas line. These markers are not set over the pipeline, but are used to indicate gas pipelines in the area.

Warren man faces drug charge for meth

Fifth degree controlled substance crime: On March 5 at 9:05 p.m., police were asked to pick up someone on a hold order request from the Minnesota Department of Corrections. According to a criminal complaint, a probation agent told police that Kyle Allen Larson, 19, Warren, may have been at a residence in the 400 block of First St. Police allegedly found him hiding in a bathtub at the residence. While he was being taken out of the residence, Larson allegedly asked a woman for a pack of cigarettes and an officer intercepted it since smoking is not allowed in police squad cars. Once at the Law Enforcement Center, the officer allegedly found a small baggie of methamphetamine in the pack. Larson has been charged with fifth degree controlled substance crime. The criminal complaint did not list why there was a hold order request for Larson.

Theft by false representation: On Feb. 23, police received a report of a theft from Northern State Bank. Clara Ann Daniels, 42, unknown address, allegedly received a refund from Aquila in the form of a check. She allegedly told Aquila that the $647.27 check had been lost. Aquila stopped payment on the check and sent her another check. Daniels allegedly cashed the first check after telling Aquila it had been lost. Daniels also allegedly cashed the second check at Northern State Bank. She has been charged with theft by false representation.

Unauthorized use of a motor vehicle: On March 25 at 8:08 a.m., police received a report that someone had allegedly taken a family member's vehicle without permission from the 500 block of Markley Avenue S. Through an investigation, police learned a 16-year-old Thief River Falls male allegedly took a 1991 Ford Explorer the night prior to the call to police. He has been charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Fourth degree driving while intoxicated: While on patrol April 1 at 2:09 a.m., a deputy sheriff allegedly observed a driver execute an illegal U-turn in the 700 block of Eighth St. E. and drive onto a south sidewalk before proceeding onto the street. Jason Joseph Koch, 20, Thief River Falls, was cited for fourth degree driving while intoxicated.

Shoplifting: On April 1 at 7:48 p.m., police received a report of shoplifting at SuperOne Foods. Daniel Leo Skime, 18, Thief River Falls, allegedly stole two Bic lighters, valued at $2.98. Skime was cited for shoplifting.

Driving after cancellation, possession of a small amount of marijuana and transporting an uncased firearm: While on patrol April 2 at 12:20 a.m., the sheriff's department allegedly observed a speeding vehicle on Center Street near 330th Avenue Southeast. Joseph Lee RedEagle, 42, Redby, was cited for driving after cancellation, possession of a small amount of marijuana and transporting an uncased firearm. An uncased 22-caliber Marlin rifle was allegedly found in the vehicle.

Disorderly conduct: On April 4 at 10 a.m., police received a report of disorderly conduct at the Occupational Development Center. Louann Kay Dahl, 44, Thief River Falls, was cited for disorderly conduct after she allegedly punched a female individual in the chest.

Public nuisance: On April 4 at 10:42 p.m., police received a report regarding a public nuisance at Greendale Manor. Shawn Francis Livingston, 41, Thief River Falls, was cited for public nuisance after loud music was allegedly heard coming from his residence.

Public nuisance: On April 5 at 2:45 a.m., police received a report regarding a public nuisance in the 500 block of LaBree Ave. N. Upon officers arriving at the scene, the subject had allegedly fled. Police found Allan Wayne Chosa, 42, Thief River Falls, one block east, near Horace Avenue. Chosa allegedly broke into a residence, kicked a door and threw a bucket of water on items in the residence. According to the report, Chosa allegedly continued to be rude while cleaning up the mess. He also allegedly slammed a door, nearly breaking glass on the door. Chosa was cited for public nuisance.

Accident: On April 5 at 9:09 a.m., police received a report of an accident at the intersection of First Street and Main Avenue. A 1996 Ford Taurus driven by Brandie Faith Bradshaw of Newfolden and a 1991 Chevy Caprice driven by Ormond Edwin Johnson of Thief River Falls collided. At the time of the accident, Bradshaw was eastbound on First Street, and Johnson was westbound and attempting to turn south onto Main Avenue. According to the report, Johnson turned in front of the Bradshaw vehicle. Bradshaw's vehicle sustained $500 in damage, and Johnson's vehicle sustained $1,700 in damage.

Issuance of worthless checks: Meloni Von Delage, 32, Oklee, has been cited for the issuance of worthless checks. She allegedly wrote three worthless checks totaling $192.75.

Fifth degree assault: On April 7 at 6:58 p.m., the sheriff's department received a report of an assault in the 200 block of Minnesota Ave. in St. Hilaire. James Edson Hillyer, 46, St. Hilaire, allegedly pushed and scared a woman. Hillyer was cited for fifth degree assault.

Disorderly conduct: On April 7 at 8:27 p.m., the sheriff's department received a report of disorderly conduct in the 200 block of Minnesota Ave. in St. Hilaire. James Edson Hillyer, 46, St. Hilaire, was allegedly loud, said profanities and would not calm down. Once a deputy sheriff arrived and tried to calm Hillyer down, Hillyer allegedly continued to say more profanities. Hillyer was cited for disorderly conduct.

Property damage: On April 7 at 10 p.m., police received a report of property damage in the 100 block of Second St. W. A 2000 Chevy pickup sustained a scratch that was one-fourth of the vehicle's length. It is believed the vehicle was either keyed or it was scratched by a bicycle. The vehicle sustained $150 in damage. The incident remains under investigation.

Accident: On April 8 at 1:52 p.m., police received a report of an accident at the intersection of Highway 32 North and 13th Street. A 1989 Buick LeSabre driven by Tamara Jane Cassavant of Newfolden and a 2000 Dodge Intrepid driven by Tami Lynn Byklum of Fisher collided. At the time of the accident, both drivers were northbound on Highway 32 North. According to the report, Byklum attempted to turn left onto 13th Street, and Cassavant attempted to go around the Byklum vehicle on the left. The vehicles then collided. Cassavant's vehicle sustained $1,000 in damage, and Byklum's vehicle sustained $2,000 in damage.

Underage consumption: On April 8 at 10:30 p.m., police received a report that an underage individual had allegedly been drinking alcohol at the Best Western Lounge. A 17-year-old Red Lake female has charges pending for underage consumption.

Fifth degree domestic assault: On April 8 at 11:06 p.m., police received a report of an assault in the 1600 block of Greenwood St. Sandra Dee Housey, 25, Thief River Falls, allegedly struck Bruce David Williams, 45, Thief River Falls. Williams allegedly struck Housey as well. Both Housey and Williams were cited for fifth degree domestic assault.

Underage consumption and driver allowing open bottle: On April 9 at 1:08 a.m., the sheriff's department received a report of a large party in a wooded area in the 14000 block of 130th St. N.E. As a deputy sheriff arrived, he allegedly observed a rapidly accelerating vehicle that later fishtailed on the road. The vehicle, which allegedly left the party, was stopped along 130th Street Northeast. Christopher John Swanson, 21, Thief River Falls, was cited for driver allowing open bottle. Cody Alan Walseth, 18, Thief River Falls, was cited for underage consumption.

Disorderly conduct: On April 9 at 3:35 p.m., police received a report that a man had allegedly pulled his pants down and exposed himself to other individuals, including kids, in the 600 block of Tonder St. William Edward Nelson, 35, Thief River Falls, was cited for disorderly conduct. According to the report, he was arrested since police had allegedly been to the residence twice earlier that day. No citations were issued for those earlier calls.

Obstruction of the legal process: On April 9 at 10:18 p.m., police received a report of someone riding a bicycle in the gazebo at Floyd B. Olson Park. A 16-year-old Thief River Falls male was warned about allegedly riding a bicycle in the gazebo. When officers attempted to seize the bicycle for one week, the juvenile allegedly protested the seizure and would not cooperate. He allegedly would not get off of the bicycle. The juvenile has charges pending for obstruction of the legal process.

Underage consumption: On April 10 at 1:11 a.m., police received a report of underage consumption at Greendale Manor. Those cited for underage consumption include Anthony James Donarski, 20, Newfolden; January Marie Johnson, 19, Ponemah; and Kendra Annette Hanson, 20, Thief River Falls.

Property damage: On April 10 at 8:07 a.m., police received a report of property damage in the 1300 block of Arnold Ave. N. A Chevy Suburban sustained a smashed driver's side rear window and a dent next to that window. Damage was estimated at $800. The incident remains under investigation.

Property damage: On April 10 at 10:35 a.m., police received a report of property damage in the Sjoberg's Cable parking lot. A pickup truck was apparently keyed. The report did not include the make and model of the pickup truck. Damage was estimated at $200. The incident remains under investigation.

If readers have any information about the aforementioned crimes or offenses, they are urged to contact the Law Enforcement Center at 681-6161.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Warm weather brings additional dangers

As temperatures rise and skies clear, bicyclists, motorcyclists and pedestrians awake from their winter hibernation to reclaim the outdoors and the roads. The Minnesota Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) said their reemergence is an indicator for all motorists to slow down and pay attention to avoid serious injuries and deaths.

Of 566 crash fatalities in 2004, 50 motorcycle operators or passengers, 36 pedestrians and nine bicyclists were killed. Of those deaths, two-thirds occurred in warm weather months. To date this year, seven pedestrians and one bicyclist have been killed in traffic crashes. In all, 109 people have died on Minnesota roads in 2005.

"Just as we welcome back warm weather, we need to welcome those on foot or on two wheels back to the road," said Kathy Swanson, OTS director. "Motorists need to modify driving behaviors and recognize the new traffic safety challenges."

Specifically, motor vehicle drivers need to share the road, and allow bikes and motorcycles the time and opportunity to merge or turn. Conversely, motorcyclists, bicyclists or pedestrians need to obey traffic signs and rules of the road. And for all parties, in both rural and urban areas, the most critical elements are to pay attention and operate at safe speeds.

While it may be easy and natural to be lulled into complacency by nice weather and exercise less caution in traffic, Swanson said this is the precise time to recommit to safe driving.

"This time of year is the 'on-ramp' to the summer driving season, which is the deadliest time on our roads," said Swanson. "It's vital to stay focused on driving and those traveling around you – not on the sunbathers."

Fire damages TRF home April 4

Fire damaged a Thief River Falls home during the early morning hours of April 4.

Ryan Iverson owns the Sanders Township home. The fire was caused by a possible electrical shortage in a microwave oven, said St. Hilaire Fire Chief Steve Miller. He noted the fire caused an estimated $15,000 in damage in the kitchen area of the home.

The St. Hilaire Fire Department was dispatched to the scene at about 1 a.m. April 4 and was on the scene for about three hours.

Iverson said he has no insurance. Donation cans have been placed at local businesses, and Zion Lutheran Church is accepting donations for Iverson as well.

Police animal pound holds six animals

The Times' Wedding and Engagement Announcement Policy

When submitting an announcement, please be advised of our policy regarding weddings and engagements:

- Engagement announcements should be submitted at least 30 days prior to the wedding date.

Wedding write-ups will be published as follows:

- If the wedding took place within six weeks from date of receipt at The Times office, a detailed write-up will be published from information provided, along with a picture, if submitted.
- If the wedding took place from six to 12 weeks before submission to The Times, we will run a brief social announcement or a picture with a short caption stating names of the bride and groom, names and addresses of parents, date and place of wedding and where the couple is residing.
- If the wedding took place from three to six months before submission to The Times, we will run a brief story or short caption under a picture announcing when the wedding took place.
- There will be no publication of weddings after six months have elapsed.

Every effort will be made to publish the wedding write-up within two issues of receipt. Forms are available at The Times office to help in organizing information regarding weddings and engagements.

TRF students receive awards

A reception and reading will be on April 15 at Bemidji State University to honor high school writers who had works selected for publication in the 2005 edition of "New Voices."

Open to the public at no charge, the event will take place in the Crying Wolf Room of the Hobson Memorial Union from 1:30 to 3 p.m. and will feature the high school writers reading from their work.

"New Voices" is an anthology of poetry and short stories featuring Minnesota high school authors. Initiated in 1975 by the late Bill Elliott of the BSU English Department, the publication provides students with an opportunity to have their writing reviewed by experienced faculty and published in a broader forum.

In addition to selecting compositions for publication, the "New Voices" reviewers judged the submissions for several awards. The 2005 winners include three students from Thief River Falls:

- Tate Sorvig of Thief River Falls, received the Margaret Atwood Award for fiction;
- Ben Willis of Thief River Falls, received the Ray Bradbury Award for fiction;
- Lisa Watts of Thief River Falls, received the Robert Frost Award for poetry.

"New Voices" is coordinated by faculty in the Department of English and is produced by junior and senior English majors. Faculty editors were Lauren Cobb, Susan Carol Hauser and Will Weaver.

Sara is the daughter of Keith and Laura Denbrook of Erhard. She attended North Dakota State University and will attend North Dakota State College of Science in Wahpeton, N.D. She is currently employed by the Pelican Rapids Good Samaritan Center and the North Dakota Air National Guard in Fargo, N.D.

Gabriel is the son of Rodney and Linsay Hagenbeck of Moorhead. He is a graduate of Northwest Tech in Moorhead and is currently employed by Tecton Products LLC in Fargo, N.D.

Grandparents of the bride are: Larry and LaVonne (Haraldson) Greenquist of Fergus Falls and grandparents of the groom are: Elton and Yvonne Underdahl of Newfolden and Judith Hagenbeck of Newfolden.

The couple will be married on April 30, 2005 at Hope Lutheran Church in Fergus Falls. A reception and dance will follow at the Eagles Club in Fergus Falls, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Heidi Timm graduates from leadership institute

Heidi Timm of the Thief River Falls Public Library is one of the first graduates of the Minnesota Library Association's Leadership Institute, held at the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, March 29-31. Twenty-five librarians from public, private and academic libraries and library systems were among those graduating.

The institute was created to identify emerging library leaders throughout the state and provide training and support to help them build leadership skills needed in today's libraries. Sponsors of the Leadeship Institute include the Minnesota Library Association, the College of St. Catherine and the Minnesota Library Association Foundation.

The three-day program included presentations from experts on advocacy, fundraising, diversity, leadership styles and team building. Graduates also participated in exercises to solve problems presented in actual case histories. An 18-month mentorship program is part of the institute. Through this program, graduates are paired with more experienced librarians who support them as they work toward leadership development goals.

Suzanne Miller, Minnesota State Librarian and keynote speaker, commented that "This leadership institute is important for the future of Minnesota libraries. As we face new and unimagined obstacles and opportunities in our rapidly changing world, library services must develop and respond to new challenges. We must develop the next generation of leaders who will rise to the challenge and shepherd libraries into the future. The leadership institute is a great first step."

Viking Volcanoes 4-H Club holds April meeting

The Viking Volcanoes 4-H Club held its April meeting on April 4, at the Viking School.

Business of the meeting included discussion of the upcoming county Share-The-Fun show, possible fundraisers and plans for summer flower gardening on the club's flower bed.

The highlight of the meeting was a presentation by guest speaker, Warren fire chief Lonnie Stauffenecker. The topic of the fire prevention was of interest to the entire group. The club's next meeting will be May 2.

How do nurses learn how to give shots to babys? Elaine McGeary's third-grade class at Challenger Elementary School visited the Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) nursing program on Wednesday, April 6. ## Kylie Lehrer wins at Scott's Music competition

Kylie Lehrer, the daughter of Mark and Jodi Lehrer of Thief River Falls, was a winner at Scott's Music Competition in Grand Forks, N.D., April 1 and 2, at Columbia Mall.

Lehrer, a fourth grader in her third year of piano lessons with Jan Lee of Thief River Falls, won third place in Level 2 competition. She performed "Sonatina in C Major," by Clementi, and "Twirlathon" by Dennis Alexander.

As a result of winning in the competition, she was invited to perform in a recital on April 2 at First Presbyterian Church of Grand Forks, N.D.

There are six levels in the competition, each based on age: Level 1 (ages 8 and under), Level 2 (ages 9-10), Level 3 (ages 11-12), Level 4 (ages 13-14), Level 5 (ages 15-16), and Level 6 (ages 17-18). Each student memorized two pieces of music for the competition. Each piece had to represent contrasting styles from different time periods in music history.

Thirty-four piano teachers entered 68 piano students to participate in this piano competition. Each teacher could enter three students in the competition.

Trinity Lutheran Church holds congregational meeting

by Dr. Charles Samuelson

Trinity Lutheran Church of Thief River Falls held a congregational meeting on Sunday, April 3, 2005, beginning at 9:30 a.m. following the first service. Over 120 members of the congregation were present to hear a report from the Call Committee that was created to secure a new pastor.

The members of the Call Committee were introduced and each had an opportunity to speak to the church membership. Call Committee members present were Sara Olson, chairwoman, Steve Lillestol, vice chairman, Ron Hamre, Charles Samuelson, Yvonne Rahn and Christy Joppru.

Several scenarios were discussed and the budget constraints of each plan were examined. The possibility of calling a husband/wife team was discussed. Also considered was the calling of a senior pastor and an associate pastor for youth work. Another plan was to call a senior pastor and the hiring of lay people for leadership in the youth program and also calling a retired pastor to be a part-time visitation pastor. No final decision was made on any of the options that were presented.

Little by little the congregation is crystallizing its thinking through the discussion of options and the exchange of ideas. The congregation is trying to balance what it wants with the needs of the church.

It is very apparent that these meetings have brought the church membership closer together, both in spirit and in focus on the needs of the church. A spirit of unity of purpose and a spirit of camaraderie has developed amongst the congregation over the past few weeks as a result of their common goal, the betterment of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Kathryn Knuttila

Piano students win at Scott's Music competition

Kathryn Knuttila, 12th grade daughter of JoAnne and Steve Knuttila of Detroit Lakes, and Jillian Larson, 12th grade daughter of Jean and Mark Larson of Thief River Falls, are winners in Level 6 (ages 17-18) of Scott's Music Store's 19th Annual Piano Competition, which was on Friday, April 1, and Saturday, April 2, at Columbia Mall, Grand Forks, N.D. Knuttila and Larson study piano with Marcia M. Knuttila of Thief River Falls.

Kathryn Knuttila was selected as the first place winner, and Jillian Larson was selected as the third place winner. Both girls received a monetary award.

This piano competition was sponsored by Scott's Music Store, Columbia Mall, Grand Forks, N.D. All piano teachers in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota could enter only three piano students in this select piano competition. Each contestant memorized two piano selections with contrasting styles representing two different periods in music history.

Thirty-three piano teachers entered 68 piano students to participate in this piano competition. There are six categories set up according to age: Level 1 (ages 8 and under), Level 2 (ages 9-10), Level 3 (ages 11-12), Level 4 (ages 13-14), Level 5 (ages 15-16), and Level 6 (ages 17-18).

Kathryn performed "Toccata, Op. 11" by Serge Prokofiev and "Humoreske, Op. 10, No. 5," by Serge Rachmaninoff. Jillian performed "Sonata in A Minor, Op. post., 164-D537, First Movement" by Franz Schubert and "Images 1, Third Movement" by Claude Debussy.

Dr. Kathryn Norman, associate dean of the arts, and piano professor at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D., was the adjudicator for this piano competition. The top three award-winning piano students for each level performed in the Honors Recital on Saturday, April 2, at 3 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church, Grand Forks, N.D.

Minnesota FFA Hall of Fame announces inductees

The Minnesota FFA Association and the Minnesota FFA Alumni Association have announced the Class of 2005 of the Minnesota FFA Hall of Fame.

These 20 inductees will join the 75 inaugural members who were inducted into the Minnesota FFA Hall of Fame in 2004. Among the 20 inductees is the late Bob Bollesen of Thief River Falls. More than 104 individuals were nominated by FFA chapters, agricultural education leaders and community members.

"The Hall of Fame is an excellent opportunity to honor the men and women who, over the years, have demonstrated leadership and commitment not only to the FFA but also to Minnesota's agricultural industry," said Jeff Buyck, president of the Minnesota FFA Association.

A selection committee consisting of FFA members, alumni and agricultural educators selected the final inductees. "We were looking for individuals who have been influential and supportive of Minnesota FFA and who have demonstrated a high level of service and longstanding commitment to agriculture, agribusiness, and/or education in agriculture," said Steve Olson, co-chairperson of the Minnesota FFA Hall of Fame Committee.

An induction ceremony will be held on Monday afternoon, April 25, during the 76th State FFA Convention. The Hall of Fame sponsorship was made possible through the Minnesota FFA Foundation with funding from Great River Energy.

The 2005 Hall of Fame Class will be featured on the Minnesota FFA Association Web site (www.ffa.umn.edu) as well as in the state convention newsletter to be distributed shortly after convention.

Sharp-tailed Grouse Society to meet April 15 in TRF

On Saturday, April 15, the Minnesota Sharp-tailed Grouse Society and the Minnesota Prairie Chicken Society will host an informational meeting on sharp-tailed grouse and prairie chickens at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. The "Spring Fling" program co-sponsored by the two groups will consist of several presentations and posters on sharptail and prairie chicken management, hunting, and research, and will feature live birds raised by Clifford Steinhauer of Holt.

The meeting is open to the public, and the $10 registration fee covers the cost of lunch. There will be door prizes. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. at the Best Western Inn on S. Highway 32 in Thief River Falls. Further information can be found on the Web at www.mnsharptails.org or www.prairiechicken.org, or by calling 218-326-4253 or 218-281-6063.

Day use passes available for all Corps' parks

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, St. Paul District, recently obtained its 2005 annual day use passes. Holders of these passes are allowed to use all boat launching ramps and swim beaches during 2005 without being charged day use fees at all 2,500 Corps of Engineers-managed parks nationwide.

The Corps' St. Paul District operates recreational facilities at several lakes in western Minnesota, including Lac Qui Parle, Traverse and Orwell; north-central Minnesota, including Cross, Gull, Leech, Pokegama, Winnibigoshish and Big Sandy; two in eastern North Dakota, including Ashtabula and Homme; and two in western Wisconsin, including Blackhawk and Eau Galle.

Contact any Corps' park manager to purchase an annual day use pass. These passes may be obtained for $30. Golden Age and Golden Access cardholders can buy the passes at a 50 percent discount.

Golden Age Passports are available for people 62 years of age or older, and are available for a $10 processing fee from the staff at Corps' recreation areas that charge fees. Golden Access Passports are available at no cost to anyone, regardless of age, who is legally blind or is permanently disabled. Both passports are good for life and entitle the bearer to a reduction in fees at federally operated recreation facilities.

Corps and other federal campsites and picnic shelters can be reserved online by visiting www.reserveusa.com, the official Web site of the National Recreation Reservation Service. Reservations may also be made by calling 1-877-444-6777.

Rankin performs in "Tartuffe"

Teresa Rankin of Thief River Falls took part in Bemidji State University's theatre production of "Tartuffe."

Rankin, a freshman majoring in theatre and English education, was a property designer for the production.

Written by Jean Baptiste Moliere, "Tartuffe" is a comedy that follows a con man named Tartuffe who deceives a young man, Orgon, into believing he is a man of god. Although most see Tartuffe for what he is, Orgon signs over his home and fortune. Throughout the play, there are many delightful complications as the family, friends and household of Organ attempt to unmask and get rid of Tartuffe.

The play ends by urging the audience to learn how to distinguish between true and false goodness.

New Breakthrough Technology in Cataract Eye Surgery

Cataract surgery has become one of the most successfully performed surgical procedures in modern medicine. Now there is a new technique for cataract surgery that makes the experience easier and more comfortable for the patient.

The Clear Cornea technique makes an incision ⅛th of an inch long. The opening is so small, that in most cases, no eye patches or sutures are required.

When making this tiny incision, your doctor uses a sharp diamond blade that causes very little trauma to the eye and allows clearer vision more rapidly than with older techniques. Patients can return to normal activities with minimum interruption in their daily routine.

If you or someone you love has signs of cataracts, such as blurred vision or glare, call or visit your local eye care provider and learn more about this new procedure.

A little help from my friends

For the past two years, I have felt the happiest that I have ever been in my life. Then it all ended.

I was thrown into a deep hole, where my heart lay shattered on the ground and my soul slowly drifted away. I am fighting an emotional battle, and I feel I am too weak to win. This ambush couldn't have come at a worse time either. It has flipped my life upside down. It has joined forces with what's supposed to be one of the most important moments of my life – graduation. I can feel the pressure to do well in school this last quarter, but it's hard to do anything good when you feel bad. Graduation seems so insignificant now, so what if it marks the beginning of a new chapter in my life! My favorite one just ended and that takes away from the joy of high school ending. I just started to rebuild my life, and now I will be let loose upon the "real world." I wonder if I will pull myself out of this depression. I found that music helps ease my pain. I believe there's a song that fits everybody's life, at any given time. The Beatles helped me find mine.

Now I know that for the past two years, I was the happiest I'd ever been in my life...then again my life just started. So until I am happy again, "I get by with a little help from my friends, I get high with a little help from my friends, I'm gonna try with a little help from my friends."

The mighty Wurlitzer at the Fargo Theater comes to life

One of America's most remarkable audio treasures is the mighty Wurlitzer theater organ which resides in one of the Upper Midwest's architectural treasures - the Fargo Theater.

Last Saturday evening, the newly-renovated instrument was shown off by Rob Richards, the house organist at Disney's El Capitan Theater in Hollywood, Calif.

Richards, who is originally from Aberdeen, S.D., spent a week fine-tuning the organ to his standards before he put on the concert. The resulting sounds were spectacular.

The highlight of the evening came when Richards accompanied a Laurel and Hardy silent movie from 1929. As the two hapless comics destroyed about two dozen Model Ts on the screen, Richards produced sound effects with the keyboard which ranged from a chugging train to a barking dog.

Some history: Before moving pictures came along, almost every major civic auditorium in the country had installed an enormous pipe organ. Why? The only other way to fill an auditorium with music at the time was to hire a big orchestra.

Orchestras were expensive, especially after the musicians unionized. So, to spite the greedy musicians, financially prudent civic boards built enormous pipe organs, which only required one musician on payroll.

When moving pictures arrived, it was logical that pipe organs would fill the gap in technology before "talkies" were invented. You can't very well have people sitting in a silent theater, and pipe organs were the loudest, most boisterous instrument available at the time.

Before long, however, loudspeakers came along and wrecked the whole works.

Loudspeakers have done us almost no good. The first politician to realize their potential was Adolf Hitler, who grabbed a hold of a microphone attached to big loudspeakers almost as soon as they were invented and used them to cause all sorts of trouble.

The first loudspeakers not only brought about the inappropriate empowerment of genocidal lunatics, but they shut down the entire civic pipe organ business only a few years after it began.

Pipe organs require constant tuning and repair. Larger instruments deteriorate quickly without a full-time repairman on staff. Imagine having to re-tune 20,000 pipes after every change in the weather.

No mystery, then, that loudspeakers, which often can be fixed with little more than a good swift kick, caused the financially prudent civic boards all across country to abandon their grand pipe organs to mice, dust and decay.

As a result, the pipe organ's brief fling into the secular world ended soon after 1930, and the King of Instruments was once again confined to stuffy church sanctuaries - sort of like putting Liz Taylor in a convent at age 19, if you ask me.

Fortunately, there are a few strange people in this world - I am one of them - who so love the sound of real air going through real pipes that they are willing to drive miles to hear the rare remaining pipe organs played by the even more rare inspired pipe organ players.

Saturday night at the Fargo Theater was one of those enchanted times when an inspired player crosses paths with a fine instrument to make great music.

Describing musical sound in words is impossible. I can say, however, that when I hear good music played well, I have so much fun that I can't help but throw back my head and laugh, even though the habit makes people turn around and stare.

I laughed several times Saturday night as Richards took on those four keyboards, the intimidating foot pedals and those hundreds of buttons as if he owned them. From little bird whistles to bass rumbles, Richards made the big old Wurlitzer talk.

Like the huffing, puffing steam engines at Rollag, the mighty Wurlitzer at the Fargo Theater is a survivor of a bygone era. Most of its ilk are gone. To hear its sounds, which range from tickles and giggles to thunder and lightning, is to hear the 1920s roar back to life.

Babe Ruth. The Great Gatsby. Laurel and Hardy. Charles Lindbergh. The Hoover Dam, puffing steam engines and pipe organs which both whisper and roar: there are so many things about the 1920s bigger and better than anything that's happened since.

Goodridge School to host science fair and music program

The Goodridge Elementary School would like to invite the community to their spring music program and science fair on Tuesday, April 19, at 7 p.m. in the Goodridge School gym.

Kindergarten through fourth grade will perform a musical play called "Go Fish" by John Jacobson and John Higgins. A unique collection of underwater friends discover how their differences make them each special. The fifth and sixth grade band and choir will also be performing. The third and fourth grade science fair exhibits can be viewed in the old gym before or after the program.

Sherry Knott to be featured in concert April 14

Sherry Knott, from Red Lake Falls, will be the featured vocalist at a Healing Program of Music and Prayer on Thursday, April 14, at 7 p.m. It will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, 510 Broadway, in Crookston.

A freewill offering will be taken. Proceeds will go to the Minnesota Institute of Contemplation and Healing, which is sponsoring the event.

A progression of songs will lead the audience to contemplate their own healing needs and desires. Musical selections will be intermixed with silence for prayer or meditation. The audience will be guided to listen to lyrics and melodies in the songs and be invited to silently examine their own prayer or healing needs.

"I asked Sherry to be a part of this event because listening to her has always put me in a place of peace," said Alice Conwell, coordinator for this event. "Her voice has a healing quality to it."

ACTIVITIES

The Easter-Egg Patch

Sing this spunky song with your children to reinforce their color-recognition skills. To prepare, fill a basket of Easter grass with different colored plastic eggs. Have your children take the eggs out of the basket. Put down the empty basket. As the second verse is sung, have the child holding that color egg place it in the basket. Continue singing the second verse, substituting different color words until each color egg has been placed in the basket.

The Easter-Egg Patch
(Tune: "Paw-Paw Patch")

Where, oh, where are the Easter eggs?
Where, oh, where are the Easter eggs?
Where, oh, where are the Easter eggs?
Take one from the basket.
If you have a (blue) egg, put it in the basket.
If you have a (blue) egg, put it in the basket.
If you have a (blue) egg, put it in the basket.
Way down yonder in the Easter-egg patch!

PARENTING TIPS

Say Something Positive

"How many times do I have to tell you not to do that!" "Don't do that! You're going to spill!" "Now look what you did!"

Sound familiar? Do you find yourself saying some of these negative statements?

As with most things in life, we have two choices. We can choose to be positive and build up, or we can be negative and tear down. Telling children over and over that they can't makes them believe that they can't. We need to break the pattern. We can accentuate the positive. Find something good to say, no matter how hard.

Instead of "Don't spill your milk" say "Hold your glass with two hands." Instead of "Don't run in the house" say "Please walk in the house." Remember to compliment your child as soon as he/she does what you have asked him/her to do. Compliments will go a long way in making you and your child feel good. Young children naturally want to please their parents. Once they hear the positive, then they will know what to do to gain your approval.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Tell your child what you want him/her to do. Be specific. Words like "behave" and "be good" may be too vague and the child may not know what you mean. "Walk slowly" or "hold my hand" is easier for your child to understand.

Farm Management Minute

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

Your most valuable asset

by Paul Oehlke
FBM Instructor, Fergus Falls

You can't drive it or wash and wax it, but it is a valuable part of your farming operation. You won't park it in your yard and let your neighbors fantasize about it either. It is farm production and financial information or simply farm records.

You can use it to help direct your farm in the near future. You can use it to compare your farm to data from similar farm operations. You can use it to make daily and seasonal decisions. You can use it to make sure you are making progress towards your business and personal goals. Most importantly, you can use it to accurately know what actually happened during the past year and why.

It begins with a sound record keeping system that keeps track of income and expenses. These farm records can be kept in a record book or computer accounting program. Either way, records need to be complete, up-to-date and accurate. I encourage farmers to run all income and expenses through the checking account and then reconcile with the bank statement. Another choice is to have a business and personal checking account and deposit all income into the farm account and write checks to the family living account. These records are combined with accurate beginning and ending balance sheets to develop an accrual based farm income statement.

The next step is keeping track of crop and livestock information to develop accurate production records to analyze enterprise information and develop a cash flow statement for the coming year. At the Northwest Farm Managers' Meeting, Dr. David Kohl, agriculture management professor at Virginia Tech, emphasized a best management practice used by the most profitable farmers, which includes enterprise accounting to know the cost of production and profit when making management decisions.

In general, farmers have stronger production skills than record keeping skills. If farmers wanted to be bookkeepers, they would have entered a different occupation. Farmers can strengthen decision making with annual financial and production records to compare and identify business trends. Records from farms enrolled in our Farm Business Management program are reporting increased expenses per acre, which makes profitability more difficult. To remain profitable, farm managers need to take more responsibility for their own financial records and analyses. Record keeping is boring and time consuming with few immediate benefits. The future benefits come from making better decisions from accurate documented information.

For more information about record keeping and analysis, contact an instructor in your area by calling Northland Community and Technical College at 1-800-959-6282.

Conservation Security Program Hotline available

Sign-up begins March 28 in 202 watersheds nationwide for the Conservation Security Program (CSP).

The sign-up allows farmers with good conservation practices to receive cash payments for their efforts. But like last year, the time frame is very limited, and comes during the busiest time for farmers.

That's why the Center for Rural Affairs is again offering a hotline to answer questions for farmers registering for the program. "We want to ensure that the farmers and ranchers this program was intended to reward are able to fully access the program," says Traci Bruckner, a policy analyst at the Center.

According to a statement recently released by Secretary of Agriculture, Mike Johanns, the CSP sign-up will be from March 28 to May 27. The sign-up announcement and an amendment to the CSP interim final rule that will detail specific program requirements will be published in the Federal Register soon.

The Center has been active in the formation and application of CSP since the beginning of the program. Potential participants can find a self-assessment workbook and other application materials at http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/csp or from their local NRCS offices.

The 2005 CSP sign-up includes the 202 watersheds announced by USDA on Nov. 2, 2004, and the 18 pioneer watersheds from the fiscal year 2004 sign-up. Producers who have a current CSP contract are not eligible for this sign-up.

The hotline, 402-687-2100, timed to coincide with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's sign-up period, will continue on past the deadline for follow-up help and questions. But those interested in taking part in the USDA CSP must be enrolled with the USDA by May 27. For more information on the CSP or the hotline, contact Traci Bruckner at 402-687-2100 or e-mail tracib@cfra.org.

Established in 1973, the Center for Rural Affairs is a private, non-profit working to strengthen small businesses, family farms and ranches, and rural communities, http://www.cfra.org.

Mission conference April 16 at Evangelical Covenant Church

Dennis Carlson and Karl Peterson, covenant missionaries from Mexico, will share stories about their lives as missionaries during a mission conference at Evangelical Covenant Church in Thief River Falls on Saturday, April 16. There will be visual presentations, as well as an opportunity for informal questions and answers.

Dennis and Mary Lynn Carlson served in Zaire from 1989 to 1997, when the Covenant missionaries were evacuated. They wanted to return to Zaire, but it was clear that this was not an option. After returning to the United States, they became convinced that God had gifted them for cross-cultural ministry, and had a place for them in Oaxaca, Mexico. They arrived in Oaxaca in 2001 to work with pastoral training by extension. Dennis serves as South District representative and secretary to the Mexico Covenant Missionary Committee and is treasurer of the Oaxaca Christian School, where their children attend. Dennis and Mary Lynn together serve as district faciliatators for the short-term missionary program.

Dennis Carlson

Karl Peterson

Karl and Sue Peterson served as Covenant short-term missionaries to Mexico in 1987. Their first term of full-time mission service was spent in Cuaulta, Morelos from 1994 to 1997. During their second term, 1998 to 2001, the Petersons lived in Cuernavaca, the capital of Morelos. They returned to the United States to await the pending adoption of their second child. They returned to Mexico City in February 2002. Karl's ministry has been with the Mexico Missions Commission, which currently gives priority to "home missions" through church planting. He also has taught seminary classes at local churches and prepared a video for the "Camp Possible" offering taken at the Covenant Bible Camps in the summer of 2004. On the horizon is a possible ministry to young adults in Mexico City, using concepts from the emerging church movement.

The public is invited to a "Taco Feast" at 6 p.m., followed by the missions program.

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs to meet

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will meet on Thursday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hall.

...Plethora of Pastel and Poking-Out Things

What is it about British women and hats? They seem to wear them for every occasion. It's got to be because the queen wears them. I've never seen Laura Bush in a hat, have you? Maybe it would be a good idea, but that is another story.

Anyway, I hadn't planned to watch the folderol about the royal wedding of Prince Charles and Camilla on Saturday, but once I saw the way the women were dressed, I couldn't resist. They were decked out like Easter eggs - every shade of pastel imaginable. Needless to say, no one wore a pants suit – not one single woman!

While we're at it, was the queen trying to steal Camilla's thunder, dressing wholly in off-white? Seems to me that should be left to the bride, even if this was her second marriage. Nonetheless, Camilla wore her off-white for the legal ceremony that the queen didn't attend, and then chose some sort of blue brocade for the blessing ceremony that the queen did attend. Her hat? Just a minute, I'll get to that.

Since I was speaking of hats, I must say many of them were in traditional hat shapes - a round top with a rather large, summer-type brim, some firm, some floppy. Some of the tops were a bit strange however - squared off or even leaning outward at the upper part, as if you turned the Eiffel Tower upside down. I thought they looked like the hats in Dr. Seuss books. But they were decorated. Oh, my, they were decorated!

They were decked out with small, medium, large and extra large ribbons, laces, bows, feathers, flowers and other frou-frous. And a lot of them had things on them that the announcers began to call weeds and fungus. They looked like something one could find in the forest, dried wheat and oats, twigs and branches, some with pointed arrows sticking out. Those pointed arrow, dangerous-looking thingies could put your eye out.

Not only were the arrow thingies and weeds and fungus stuck on hats, but they were stuck on heads. No hats - just weeds and fungus sticking on the women's heads, with the arrows coming out. One young lady had weeds and fungus reaching up toward the heavens, towering twice the height of her head. I wonder how they were fastened on the heads.

There were other unusual hats, too. Most were worn in odd places that hats don't usually go, pasted to the side of the head, the back of the head or even the forehead. Some looked like white paper plates tacked onto the side. One or two appeared to be the little pie tins that individual pot pies come in, worn bottom-to at the front of the head, like bangs. Other fashionable women appeared to have raided their gift wrap boxes and curled up clumps of shiny, curling gift wrap ribbon that matched their gowns, sticking it to the side of their heads. I saw at least one women with what I swear was a bouquet plastered to her head.

Camilla wore weeds and fungus, too. Hers were wrapped into a rather attractive crown that went all the way around her head and the weeds and fungus and pointed things stuck out to her right - where her new husband was. I think her pointed things looked a lot like wet feathers, so perhaps they weren't as sharp as they looked. I hope not because many was the time I worried that we would see a prince with one eye put out - at his own wedding, no less.

Bear in mind that all of this mad hatting took place in a rather brisk wind, so there was much clutching and grabbing of head gear when the British breezes became brisk. Camilla appeared to have a great deal of trouble with her bonnet and her bouquet. In fact, she nearly forgot which was which a time or two and we almost saw the new Duchess of Cornwall wearing a bouquet on her head just like that other lady.

But it appears that the British milliners took the breezes into account and fastened all of the head gear well, because I didn't see anyone chasing a hat down the road. I must say it was a lovely wedding.

Arlene Kain, 67

Thief River Falls - Arlene Kain, 67, of Thief River Falls, died on Friday, April 8, 2005 surrounded by her family at MeritCare Hospital in Fargo, N.D.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, April 13, (today) at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, with Rev. Mark Helgeland officiating. Casket bearers include Todd Nelson, Richard Kruta, Speed Ornquist, Gene Kjellberg, Orrin Bendickson and Dean Hams. Honorary casket bearers included Pat Kruta, Bonnie Ornquist, Avonel Kjellberg, Odette Bendickson and Gloria Hams. Interment will be held at Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls.

Visitation will be held for one hour prior to services at the church on Wednesday.

Arlene Johnson was born August 28, 1937 in Greenbush, the daughter of Oscar and Lillie (Olson) Johnson. She was baptized and confirmed into the Lutheran Faith at Oslo Lutheran Church west of Karlstad. She went to school in Karlstad and attended Karlstad High School, graduating in 1955.

On June 26, 1960, Arlene was united in marriage to Kenneth Kain at Oslo Lutheran Church, west of Karlstad. They made their home in Thief River Falls, and had two daughters. Arlene worked at the Falls Clinic and Northwestern Hospital and later worked for Dr. Seaverson. Eventually, Arlene worked for Digi-Key, where she retired in 2003.

Arlene loved to entertain and cook for her family and friends. She spent many weekends on camping trips and later on traveling to warm destinations. She looked forward to celebrating birthdays and anniversaries and shopping. Over many years, she has been an active member of Redeemer Lutheran Church. She sang in the church choir, served meals, was on the altar guild, and was always stopping by the church to check on something for Sunday. Arlene enjoyed flowers and vegetables from her many gardens, reading a good book, listening to music, and going out for coffee.

Survivors include her husband, Kenneth of Thief River Falls; daughters, Janell (Patrick) Yutrzenka of Bloomington and Cynthia (Stephen) Miner of Olympia, Wash.; two grandchildren; brother, Eldon (Joyce) Johnson of Apache Junction, Ariz.; sisters-in-law, Bernice Bengtson of Hallock, and Marjorie (Gordon) Nelson of Lancaster.

She was preceded in death by her parents; brothers-in-law, Art Bengtson and Earl Kain.

Thief River Falls - Olaf Jorde, 86, died on Friday, April 8, 2005 at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, April 12, at Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, with Rev. Gerry Eggers officiating. Casket bearers included Todd Bottem, Chad Bottem, Rory Anderson, Michael Jorde, Lee Johnson, Larry Johnson and Scott Rachael. Burial was held at Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls.

Olaf Peter Jorde was born October 31, 1918 in Excel Township, Marshall County, the son of Adolph and Ada (Jacobson) Jorde. He was baptized and confirmed at Trinity Lutheran Church. He grew up and attended Loftness School in Excel Township.

Olaf farmed with his mother and two brothers, Cliff and Clarence, and nephew Richard. He enjoyed fishing, hunting, small wood-working, and curling. Olaf was the family photo taker and others could always count on him to have his camera ready. He was an active member of the community and enjoyed visiting with his family. He was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, Thief River Falls, and served on the church council for a time. He has been a resident of Valley Home for the past nine years and he made many rag rugs.

Survivors include a sister, Olive (Laverne) Rondorf of Thief River Falls and brother Kenneth (Mary) Ranum of Thief River Falls; sister-in-law, Bev Ranum of Thief River Falls and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents; his brothers, Cliff, Clarence and Leonard Jorde and Dale Ranum; and a sister, Clara May Swanson. A00003B2005AR13

Arlene Skoglund, 69

Karlstad - Arlene Skoglund, 69, of Holt, passed away peacefully on April 5, 2005 at Karlstad Healthcare Center after a long, incurable illness.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, April 9, at Nazareth Lutheran Church in Holt, with Rev. Nancy Hanson officiating. Casket bearers included Ricky Rakowski, Jeff Rakowski, Barry Skoglund, Ronald Ness, John Rhude and Jeff Dahle. Interment will be held at Holt Cemetery.

Arlene was born April 9, 1935 to Edgar and Hilma (Nohre) Horien. She was baptized and confirmed at Nazareth Lutheran Church in Holt. Arlene attended school in Holt and Newfolden.

On May 11, 1952, she was united in marriage to Wilbert (Bob) Skoglund. They made their home in Holt where they raised their three children.

Arlene had many interests and a zest for life. She enjoyed crocheting, sewing and had a variety of craft projects going at any given time. Arlene loved the spring and summer when she could be outside working in her numerous flower gardens. Arlene loved to bake and spend time with her family. She especially enjoyed spending time with her two granddaughters, Asiah and Aspyn. Arlene will be greatly missed by her friends and loved ones.

Arlene is survived by her husband, Bob; daughter, Robyn (Leon) Derebery of Pottsboro, Texas; sons, Randy (Jean) Skoglund and Ryan (special friend, Karen) Skoglund of Holt; sister, Darlene Hallstrom of Moorhead; two brothers, Emery (Millie) Horien and Marc (Shirley) Horien of rural Holt; two granddaughters, Asiah and Aspyn Derebery of Pottsboro, Texas; and several nieces and nephews.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: Is it possible to have income tax withheld from my Social Security benefits?

A: Yes, you can voluntarily choose to have federal taxes withheld directly from your SSA benefits. About one-third of all people receiving Social Security benefits have to pay taxes on their benefits. This is true for individuals filing a federal tax return on total income of more than $25,000, and for married couples filing a federal tax return on total income of more than $32,000.

To have federal taxes withheld directly from your SSA benefits you need to complete IRS Form W-4V, the Voluntary Withholding Request, and select the percentage of your monthly benefit amount you want withheld. Options include 7, 15, 28 or 31 percent. You cannot designate specific dollar amounts. Sign and return the completed form to your local Social Security office. To get Form W-4V, call the IRS toll free number, 1-800-829-3676, or download the form from the SSA Web site at www.socialsecurity.gov/online/forms.html. Social Security personnel cannot give tax advice.

Q: How can a person find out careers with the Social Security Administration?

A: As a national agency, Social Security job opportunities can exist across the country and vary widely in responsibility and activity. Many positions, such as in local offices and the national telephone centers, work directly with the public while others do not. For details [illegible] employment information go to the SSA Web page at www.socialsecurity.gov. Click on the link labeled "Careers with Us" at the top of the home page.

Moving? If you receive Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) remember that you must notify the Social Security Administration of your new address as soon as possible, preferably as soon as you know what your new address will be. This is so even if your checks go to a bank automatically by direct deposit. For both programs, letters with important information are mailed during the year. For those on SSI, address changes can result in a change of amount. To report a new address, call the SSA national number, 800-772-1213, your local office. An online option to report your address change is available for Social Security (not SSI) beneficiaries at www.socialsecurity.gov/changeaddress.html.

Governor Pawlenty signs Capital Investment Bill

$945 million bill includes $37.5 million for Northstar Commuter Rail Line and investments in Greater Minnesota

The Northstar Commuter Rail Line is getting ready to leave the station, thanks to an installment of $37.5 million in the 2005 Capital Investment Bill.

Surrounded by legislative and community leaders, Governor Tim Pawlenty today signed the $945 million state construction project bill at the Coon Rapids - Riverdale Park-and-Ride, which will be converted into one of the stations on the Northstar line.

"After years of hard work by many it's time to get on board the Northstar line," said Governor Pawlenty. "This is one of the fastest growing corridors in the country. We need to bring relief and more choices to commuters so they can spend more time they way they choose, rather than sitting in traffic. The Northstar commuter line is a congestion buster and we need it."

The Northstar commuter line will utilize mostly existing Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway (BNSF) lines, connecting downtown Minneapolis to communities along a 40 mile stretch to Big Lake. It is predicted to save over 890,000 commuter hours per year. Of the $265 million project cost, half is to come from the federal government, with the state and counties splitting the rest.

Northstar is one of the marquee initiatives in the bonding bill. The entire $945 million package includes $886 million in general obligation bonds and $59 million from user financed bonds. It would create an estimated 10,000 construction jobs.

The Governor personally brokered an agreement on the bonding bill with House and Senate leadership on in a seven-hour meeting in the Governor's Office on Wednesday, March 30. The House and Senate passed the bill on Wednesday, April 6.

"I applaud the bipartisan and cooperative nature in which House and Senate leaders reached agreement on the bonding bill," Governor Pawlenty said. "We've shown the citizens of Minnesota that we can work together and get things done."

The bonding package will provide funds for five key quality-of-life areas:

Investments in Education - $322 million.

"Strong K-12 and higher education systems are keys to our quality of life," Governor Pawlenty said. Highlights include:

- $108 million for the University of Minnesota
- Includes $39 million for upgrading and remodeling academic health facilities, life science and science buildings
- $213 million for the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities system:
- Includes increased funding for remodeling of MnSCU science classrooms and numerous upgrades and renovations to technology, labs and classroom space.

Jobs, Housing and Transportation - $204 million

"Targeted investments in our economic infrastructure can pay big dividends in the future," Governor Pawlenty said. Highlights include:

- $21.7 million for the U of M/Mayo Clinic biotechnology research facility in Rochester
- $18.5 million for biotechnology and health science development
- $12 million to fight long-term homelessness
- $37.5 million for the Northstar Commuter Rail Line
- $10 million for Cedar Avenue Bus Rapid Transit
- $10 million for local road improvement and safety grants
- $40 million for local bridge replacement
- $1 million for improvements at Holman Field in St. Paul

Safer Communities - $125 million

"This package enhances Minnesota's prison system by adding beds and expanding facilities to house offenders who have been convicted," Governor Pawlenty said. The bill will add more than 700 beds to the prison system. Highlights include:

- $84.8 million for Phase I expansion of the corrections facility in Faribault
- $3.5 million to start construction of a 150-bed segregation unit at Stillwater prison
- $15.8 million for design and construction of a secure nursing facility for sex offenders and upgrading an existing facility
- $10 million for upgrades and renovations at existing facilities

Water, Environment and Natural Resources - $211 million

"Preserving and enhancing our environment has been a focus of my Administration. This bonding will help us pass on the natural beauty of Minnesota to our children and grandchildren," Governor Pawlenty said. Highlights include:

- $23 million for the Conservation Reserve and Enhancement Program (CREP). These dollars plus future state funding will trigger approximately $200 million in federal funds
- $12 million for wildlife area land acquisition
- $27 million for flood hazard mitigation grants
- $14 million for drinking water improvements, which will leverage matching federal funds
- $10 million for the wastewater infrastructure fund
- $28.9 million for local sewer and water projects
- $7.9 million for state trails
- $20.6 million for design and construction of major new exhibits at the Minnesota Zoo
- $14 million to clean-up old landfills

Effective Government and Public Services - $83 million

"We must fulfill our obligations to help Minnesota communities like Roseau and Buffalo Lake who were struck by tragedy," Governor Pawlenty said. "This is also the year to honor our World War II veterans with a memorial at the Capitol." Highlights include:

- $670,000 for the World War II Veterans Memorial on the State Capitol mall
- $306,000 has been added for improvements at the Luverne Veterans Home.
- $13.2 million to assist the community of Roseau with rebuilding after the 2002 floods
- $690,000 to assist the community of Buffalo Lake with rebuilding after the 2003 tornado
- $2.5 million for emergency riverbank protection along the Red Lake River in Crookston and Red Lake Falls.

Governor Pawlenty noted that the package as a whole is favorable to Greater Minnesota, with approximately 60 percent of the funds for projects in Greater Minnesota and 40 percent in the metro area.

Protein from beef; calcium from dairy - a winning combination

America's expanding waistline is getting harder to miss. With an astonishing two-thirds of Americans now overweight, according to the USDA's Center for Nutrition Policy and Promotion, the nation's obesity epidemic is becoming a priority among the medical community, dietary professionals, government officials and consumers themselves. People need to eat better and be more active.

The good news for the dairy and beef industries is that, together, dairy and beef make an effective one-two punch in the fight against obesity. The new dietary guidelines for Americans, announced by USDA and the Department of Health and Human Services in mid-January, encourage consumers to favor nutrient-rich foods in order to get the most nutrition from their calories. The recommendations include getting adequate calcium by consuming at least three cups per day of low-fat or fat-free dairy products, and choosing a variety of lean meats as protein sources.

These guidelines are backed by solid science, so once again science is helping consumers understand the positive benefits of eating beef and dairy products.

The new Dietary Guidelines confirm that consumers can not only enjoy the flavor and quality of lean beef but they can also feel good about it being part of a healthy diet. Research funded through the national Beef Checkoff Program and the Minnesota Beef Council has helped showcase the nutritional quality of beef and educate the public about beef's nutritional benefits. Dairy and beef producers should be very pleased with the place both beef and milk hold in these Dietary Guidelines.

Meat Consumption and calcium absorption.

According to a recent study funded by the Beef Checkoff Program, beef and dairy make an excellent nutrition combination. Protein from meat can actually increase the benefits of the calcium we consume, according to USDA's Agricultural Research Service Grand Forks Human Nutrition Research Center in Grand Forks, N.D., which conducted the study.

The Beef Checkoff will be using this new research to help health professionals understand the positive interaction between consumption of animal protein and calcium retention. This will be particularly important because people with osteoporosis or other bone-health concerns often avoid high levels of protein, particularly animal protein. Their concern is that high-protein feeds cause excess loss of calcium.

The new data shows that diets high in meat - comprising up to 20 percent of an individual's intake - do not increase overall calcium loss. Furthermore, eating recommended amounts of meat was especially beneficial when calcium intake was low because the protein helps better retain the calcium they do get. When the protein is from sources such as beef, it is beneficial to bone health because beef contains amino acids and nutrients such as zinc and phosphorous, which are important for bone building.

Just as the new Dietary Guidelines for Americans encourage people to step up their consumption of dairy products, the new research from the Grand Forks Human Nutrition Research Center proves that eating a moderate-high protein diet that includes beef helps the body better absorb the calcium. The net effect of this dairy-beef combination is smaller waistlines and stronger bones.

So now there's even more science to help dairy and beef producers communicate the positive benefits of consuming the recommended amounts of dairy and beef products. The Beef Checkoff Program and the Minnesota Beef Council has also funded nutrition advertising targeting youth media, classroom teachers, youth organization leaders and kids themselves. More than 9.7 million 8- to 12-year-old girls were reached with positive beef messages. A special promotion of the Fit for a Princess patch activity materials to 274 Girl Scout councils nationwide resulted in orders for more than 100,000 materials from 34 percent of these councils.

Minnesota fire deaths hit all-time low in 2004

The Minnesota Department of Public Safety Fire Marshal Division recently reported 42 per capita fire deaths in 2004 – the lowest number since record keeping began more than 30 years ago and a continuation of a steady downward trend. Based on decade totals, Minnesota fire fatality numbers fell 19 percent between the years of 1980 and 1990 and 24 percent between 1990 and 2000.

Fire deaths occurred in 32 Minnesota cities last year, including five deaths in Minneapolis and two in St. Paul. Princeton reported three fatalities. Three deaths took place in the city of Ramsey as a result of a building explosion.

November, December, January and February were the deadliest months. Of 33 structure-fire deaths, 28 occurred in homes. In 15 cases, there were no smoke alarms present or alarms were not functioning. Victims' ages ranged from newborn to over 90 years of age; fire claimed the lives of five children under the age of 10.

The primary causes of fire fatalities in 2004 went unchanged from previous years, with careless smoking at the top of the list. Use of flammable liquids was the second most frequent cause.

"The trend is encouraging, and it shows that fire safety inspections, improved fire codes and public education are paying off," said State Fire Marshal Jerry Rosendahl. "But we must remember that most of these fires could have been prevented by the most basic safety measures, and we're still 42 deaths above where we need to be."

Get started with healthy eating habits

by Kimberly Asche,
U of M Extension Service

Two-thirds of U. S. adults are officially overweight. Among kids 6 to 19 years of age, 15 percent or one in six is overweight. Another 15 percent are headed that way.

Children learn everyday living habits from adults, and here are some tips for parents:

- Start the day with a balanced breakfast. Include foods from at least three different food groups. Make an omelet to include cheese and vegetables. Offer cereal with milk or yogurt and fresh fruit.
- Serve smart snacks. Provide healthy, nutritious grab-and-go snacks like small yogurt containers, crackers, raisins, apples, bananas, oranges and string cheese.
- Eat together. Family mealtime is a great time to model healthy eating behaviors. Make sure you offer a balanced meal.
- Don't skip the dairy products. Research shows that children who include calcium from dairy foods in their diet had lower body fat than children with lower dairy calcium intake.
- Be a great role model. Children ages 8 to 17 rank mom above sports celebrities, actors and actresses and musicians as the most influencing person of their behaviors. Set a good example by eating healthy.
- Watch portions sizes. In a recent study of preschoolers, the children generally took bigger bites and consumed more food when served super-sized portions of their normal entrees, according to a research study at the Children's Nutrition Research Center (CNRC) in Houston, Texas. But when these same children were offered smaller portions, they ate less than when served the super-sized portions.

Physical activity also helps prevent obesity. Here are some exercise tips:

- Get out and play. Don't just tell the kids to go out and play; be involved. It can be as simple as riding bike, kicking the soccer ball or playing tag.
- Take a walk together. Get your activity in by walking together. Do it after school, after dinner or whenever there's a lull in family events. It's a great way to spend some time together and share your day.
- Watch the limits. Children who watch television for as few as two to five hours per week increase their chances of being overweight. The same principle applies to computer use or video game playing.
- Have active parties. If you're hosting a child's party, include activity in the event. Take the kids to a park, skating rink, swimming pool or other activity orientated places. Children will learn that physical activity can be a fun part of celebrations!

The bottom line is that it's not healthy to be obese or overweight. In the long term, the resulting medical costs may be more that what we can bear.

Head Start celebrates 40 years

Head Start is celebrating 40 years of providing services for low-income preschool children and their families.

Northwest Head Start, operated by Northwest Community Action in Marshall, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, and Kittson counties, was one of the first Head Start programs established in 1965 under the Federal Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. What began as a summer program serving 50 four-year-old children has become a program serving 263 children aged birth to five. Over the past 40 years Northwest Head Start has served over 6,000 children and families.

Head Start is a family-oriented, comprehensive, child development program that provides activities in the areas of education, health, social services, and parent involvement. Head Start provides activities for children of all ability levels, including children with special needs.

Northwest Head Start/Early Head Start is now recruiting children for the 2005-06 program years. If you have a child birth to 5 years old or are interested in learning more about Head Start, call Northwest Community Action at 528-3227 or 1-800-568-5319.

Minnesota's uninsured rate remains lowest in the nation

Minnesota continues to have the lowest uninsured rate in the nation, despite a slight increase in the number of people without health insurance.

A study released Feb. 25 by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), the University of Minnesota School of Public Health, and the Minnesota Department of Human Services shows that the state's uninsured rate crept up from 5.4 percent in 2001 to 6.7 percent in 2004, due primarily to a decrease in employer-based health insurance coverage.

Other factors include changes in Minnesota's income distribution and a change in Minnesota's Hispanic/Latino population.

The study found that the percentage of Minnesotans covered by employer-based health insurance coverage declined from 69.7 percent in 2001 to 63.4 percent in 2004. This decrease in employer coverage was driven by a number of factors, including a decline in the percentage of employees who work for companies that offer insurance coverage and a decrease in the portion of workers eligible for coverage through their employers. These declines are in part due to a shift in employment in Minnesota, away from very large firms, which are more likely to offer health insurance coverage, toward smaller firms that are less likely to offer coverage.

The time period between 2001 and 2004 was marked by rapid health care cost increases and a slowdown in the economy. These factors likely had an impact on the continued affordability of health insurance for employers and workers.

The study found that Minnesotans were just as likely to be employed in 2004 as in 2001, but that the proportion of Minnesotans with incomes below the poverty level increased from 6 percent in 2001 to 8.9 percent in 2004. This shift in the income distribution, which mirrors national trends, resulted in more Minnesotans becoming eligible for publicly sponsored health coverage. As a result, eligibility for, and enrollment in, public health insurance programs increased between 2001 and 2004, with 25.2 percent of Minnesotans enrolled in public coverage in 2004 compared to 20.1 percent in 2001. Among those under 65 years of age, public program enrollment increased from 10.2 percent in 2001 to 14.8 percent in 2004.

Another key finding is that the number of uninsured Hispanics/Latinos in Minnesota increased by 34,000 and accounted for 44.2 percent of the increase in the number of uninsured Minnesotans from 2001 to 2004. The percent of Hispanics/Latinos who are uninsured increased from 17.3 percent in 2001 to 32.7 percent in 2004. The results suggest that the dramatic increase in the percentage of Hispanics/Latinos who are uninsured is the result of changes in the Hispanic/Latino population in the state.

This study was funded by the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota Foundation, the Minnesota Department of Human Services, and by a grant awarded to the Health Economics Program at the MDH from the federal Health Resources and Services Administration State Planning Grants Program.

Study results are based on a telephone survey of more than 13,800 randomly selected Minnesota households from July through December 2004. The survey was conducted in English, Spanish, Hmong, and Somali. Additional results from this survey will be available throughout the year.

Wells Fargo makes donation to School District 564

Wells Fargo donated $1,025 to Thief River Falls School District 564 through its "Team Up for Our Schools" program, which was created in 2003 to help financially support public schools during times of significant budget cuts. Wells Fargo's "Team Up for Our Schools" program has contributed a total of $216,800 to school districts in Minnesota.

"Wells Fargo is pleased to make a "Team Up for Our Schools" donation for the second year to Thief River Falls schools on behalf of our team members and the community,' said Lenae Iverson, Wells Fargo Community Banking president of Thief River Falls. "The 'Team up for Our Schools' program offers an opportunity to support the success of students by bringing Wells Fargo team members and the community together with local schools in an effort to improve the quality of education."

The $1,025 donation was based on the number of qualifying Wells Fargo consumer checking account packages opened last summer at Wells Fargo stores located within the school district. A "Wells Fargo" Checking Package is a checking account plus three additional services, which could include Direct Deposit, Wells Fargo Online® Bill Pay, and a Wells Fargo Credit Card with the Wells Fargo Enhanced Rewards SM program.

Local families needed for ASSE exchange program

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE) is seeking local host families for boys and girls from a variety of countries around the world. These students are 15 to 18 years of age, and are coming to this area for the upcoming high school year or semester.

These students are well screened and qualified by ASSE. Families may select the students from their applications.

Spooked about retirement? Plan ahead

According to the Retirement Confidence Survey, fear continues to be one of the primary motivators in getting people to save for retirement.

The following tips from The Village Family Service Center's Consumer Credit Counseling Service (CCCS), will help individuals save for retirement:

- Know your retirement needs. Duane Emmel, financial counselor at CCCS, said recent estimates are that a person will need about 70 percent of his or her pre-retirement income – lower earners, 90 percent or more – to maintain the standard of living when the person stops working.
- Take action. Regardless of how big or small, for long-term financial health, a person must start saving today. Successful savers are not necessarily those with the highest incomes or those from financially privileged backgrounds. What they have in common is an understanding that they must make financial decisions today to impact their options for the future.
- Pay yourself first. Treat yourself as your most important creditor and make sure you are making regular payments to your retirement account(s).
- Find out about Social Security benefits. According to the American Saving Education Council, Social Security pays the average retiree about 40 percent of pre-retirement earnings. You should receive "Your Social Security Statement" automatically, approximately three months before your birthday. If you haven't received yours, contact the Social Security Administration at 1-800-772-1213.
- Contribute to an employer savings plan. If your employer offers a tax-sheltered savings plan, such as 401(k), sign up and contribute all you can. A 401(k), 403(B), Simple IRA or Tax Deferred Annuity each offers you the ability to contribute by payroll deduction. The automatic nature of these plans makes them second to none in ease.
- Don't touch savings. Don't dip into retirement savings. You'll lose principal and interest, and you may lose tax benefits. If you change jobs, roll over your savings directly into an IRA or your new employer's retirement plan.
- Consider basic investment principles. Inflation and the type of investments you make play important roles in how much you'll have saved at retirement. Investments available in retirement plans range from conservative cash and bond accounts to higher risk equity funds. Select a mix that makes you comfortable and allows you to sleep at night without worrying that you'll lose your retirement.
- Ask questions. These tips should point you in the right direction, but you'll need more information. Talk to your employer, bank or financial adviser. Ask questions and make sure the answers make sense. Get practical advice and act now.

Are low-carb diets the healthful solution?

Endorsed by celebrities, restaurants and food labels, the low-carb solution is considered by many to be the answer to weight management. Yet, according to Paul Ratté, associate clinic faculty at Northwestern Health Sciences University (NHSU), low-carb diets are not necessarily healthful, and when used incorrectly, they may do more harm than good.

Low-carb diets become damaging when they are used improperly, according to an NHSU press release. While the Atkins Diet may be a short-term solution for weight loss, the danger occurs when it is used in a long-term or a "yo-yo" manner.

"When used improperly, these diets have repercussions that are detrimental to one's health," said Ratté, who practices at the university's Natural Care Center at Woodwinds in Woodbury.

The concept behind the low-carb diet is rooted in how the body reacts to sugar. Glucose, a common type of carbohydrate is a sugar that is necessary to brain functioning. When food is consumed, insulin converts blood sugar into glucose, thus creating usable energy. However, when there is too much sugar in the blood, it may damage the body. Excess sugar is therefore converted into fat, a less damaging substance.

"The idea of the low-carb diet is to eliminate carbohydrates like glucose from the diet. This forces the body to enter a state of ketosis in which fat, rather than glucose, is used as energy," said Ratté. "Ketosis is a state of stress in which your body believes that it is starving and must turn to its reserved energy resources. I have no problem with people using ketosis as a springboard into a healthier lifestyle, but more often than not, it is used improperly, and we end up manipulating our hormonal and metabolic well-being."

Low-carb diets, like any diet that prohibits certain foods, lead people to noncompliance. "When you lower the number of carbs, you lower the insulin level, which in turn leads to weight loss," said Ratté. "However, if you eliminate carbohydrates completely, people feel deprived."

Furthermore, these diets ignore that good and bad carbohydrates exist. "The difference between how your body handles processed and non-processed carbohydrates is significant," said Ratté. "I suggest people eat less refined and more whole grain sugars."

Low-carb diets may also have repercussions that affect overall health. "This diet has adverse effects for people who are clinically depressed," said Ratté.

General weakness and skin rashes have also been linked to the diet, according to NHSU.

"These diets promote the idea that if you lose weight, you will be healthy. In fact, the reverse of that is true: You have to be healthy to lose weight," said Ratté, who offers the following healthful advice to those in need of losing weight:

- Never skip a meal – Skipping meals leads to metabolic imbalances;
- Eat all of the time – Eat small healthful meals that are high in fiber to maintain metabolism; and
- Include carbohydrates, fats and proteins in each meal.

Nutrition, physical activity are ways to prevent cancer

The American Cancer Society (ACS), a nationwide community-based health organization, reports that evidence suggests that eating a healthful diet and being physically active are the most effective ways to prevent cancer.

According to the ACS, one third of all cancer deaths are related to tobacco use and another third are related to diet and activity factors, including obesity. Scientific evidence suggests that for the majority of Americans who do not smoke, eating a healthful diet and being physically active the the most effective ways to prevent cancer

How are Americans doing? Americans are not getting the proper nutrition or physical activity that they need, and obesity trends are increasing in every age and segment of the population. According to statistics compiled by the ACS:

- Obesity is the nation's fastest rising public health problem. Obesity rates among U.S. adults increased by 75 percent between 1991 and 2001, and rates doubled in children and tripled in teens over the last 20 years.
- 64 percent of Americans are overweight, including 30 percent who are obese. These figures are increasing for both men and women in all age and racial/ethnic groups.
- 15 percent of children between the ages of 6 and 19 are overweight.
- Only 32 percent of adults and 25 percent of youth meet the minimum recommendations for moderate physical activity.
- Only 23 percent of adults and 21 percent of youth eat at least five servings of fruits and vegetables each day.

American Cancer Society Guidelines on Nutrition and Physical Activity for Cancer Prevention. The ACS is committed to improving the ability of Americans to eat a healthful diet and to be active because of the potential impact of diet and activity on cancer risk.

1. Eat a variety of healthful foods, with an emphasis on plant sources.

- Eat five or more servings of a variety of vegetables and fruits each day.
- Choose whole grains in preference to processed (refined) grains and sugars.
- Limit consumption of red meats, especially those high in fat and processed.
- Choose foods that help maintain a healthful weight.

2. Adopt a physically active lifestyle.

- Adults: engage in at least moderate activity for 30 minutes or more on five or more days per week; 45 minutes or more of moderate to vigorous activity on five or more days per week may further enhance reductions in the risk of breast and colon cancer.
- Children and adolescents: engage in at least 60 minutes per day of moderate-to-vigorous physical activity at least five days per week.

3. Maintain a healthful weight throughout life.

- Balance caloric intake with physical activity.
- Lose weight if currently overweight or obese.

4. If you drink alcoholic beverages, limit consumption.

Minnesota House passes $816 million bonding bill

On Feb. 22, the Minnesota House of Representatives passed an $816 million Capital Investment Bonding Bill that will address infrastructure, public safety and higher education needs. The bill passed by a vote of 121-12.

Rep. Dan Dorman (R-Albert Lea), chairperson of the Capital Investment Committee, said the bonding bill was a true bipartisan effort between House Republicans and the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party. While there are differences between the House and Senate bill, Dorman said he is confident the bill will continue to focus on immediate needs of statewide significance.

"This bill represents the best interests of the entire state of Minnesota," said Dorman. "The conference committee will immediately get to work in reaching a bill that is prudent, fiscally responsible and in the best interests of the state of Minnesota."

"We heard from citizens across the state that we needed to get the job done, and today we got the job done," said House Speaker Steve Sviggum. "It is unfortunate that we are not having groundbreaking and ribbon-cutting ceremonies for many of these projects that were placed in limbo over the past year. It is time to move on these projects. Today, we passed a fiscally responsible bill that will create thousands of jobs, improve our roads and bridges, and provide a stronger infrastructure for our higher education institutions."

The legislation parallels Gov. Tim Pawlenty's proposed spending target and is under the Senate's proposed $1 billion-plus bill that would cost the state an additional $24 million and significantly increase the state's projected budget deficit.

"We are committed to a spending target of $816 million, and we stood behind our commitment," said House Majority Leader Erik Paulsen. "I believe the House did a great job of prioritizing transportation and higher education institutions. We provide significantly more funds for local roads and bridges and economic development infrastructure while still passing a fiscally responsible bill."

House bonding bill summary

The Omnibus Capital Investment Bill appropriates bond proceeds and other funds for various capital projects. The House bill spends $816,749,000, and pumps significantly more money into roads, bridges and economic development infrastructure. It supports the proposed spending target by Pawlenty and is almost $200 million less than the Minnesota Senate bill. Highlights include:

Higher education

Provides more than $243 million for higher education institutions and more than Pawlenty proposed for the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities campus projects. Many projects are ready to go with a commitment by the Minnesota Legislature.

Local roads and bridges

Provides more than $70 million to fund local road and bridge projects throughout the state. It includes $50 million for local bridge replacement and rehabilitation; $6 million for local share of trunk highway projects; and $12.5 million for local road improvement grants.

Environment

More than $119 million to fund Minnesota Department of Natural Resources projects, flood mitigation, Conservation Reserve and Enhancement Program (CREP), trails and the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency. It includes $21 million for flood mitigation grants and $12 million for RIM Wildlife Area Acquisition.

Public safety

More than $123 million to fund the expansion of Minnesota Department of Corrections prison facilities. Funding is also provided for the sex offender facility in St. Peter and to house/incarcerate elderly sex offenders. It includes $84.8 million for the expansion at the Minnesota Correctional Facility at Faribault.

Economic development and infrastructure

More than $100 million for economic development projects for local communities, including the Wastewater Infrastructure Fund that provides loans and grants for local water and sewer projects. It includes $20 million for the University of Minnesota/Mayo biotech facility and $20 million in redevelopment grants.

Learn more about petunias during Horticultural Awareness Month

by Beattie Mickelson
13th District Horticultural Society and Pennington County Master Gardeners

April is Horticultural Awareness Month. For this occasion, readers can learn more about petunias.

Petunias are the nation's top-selling bedding plant, edged out occasionally by impatiens. Petunias are annuals grown for their colorful blooms that continue to bloom the entire summer season. They come in every possible flower color, are easy to care for, and are versatile. They are grown as bedding plants, in window boxes, hanging baskets and other containers.

Many people buy their petunia plants by color only. By researching many garden catalogues, the different available kinds of petunias were studied. There are plants that will stand up to wind and rain better, plants that will grow in small mounds, and plants that will become ground covers. Petunias include:

- Grandiflora petunias have large blooms and are the most popular.
- Multiflora petunias have smaller blooms but more plant vigor, and give a better color display when planted in mass plantings.
- Milliflora are the "Fantasy" hybrids. They have a miniature habit and flower size with 10- to 12-inch plants and one to one-and-one-half-inch blooms. The plants form mounds that stay in the mound shape all season. They need no pinching or pruning for a show of continuous bloom.
- Wave is a ground hugging or "prostrate" petunia. The stems grow along the ground or trail from baskets. They can have a spread of two to four feet, but they will only grow six inches high. The blooms are three inches across with good weather tolerance. They are strong bloomers and will form a dense plant.
- Easy Wave is a more mounded petunia than the original Wave. It will bloom freely without pruning and will bloom earlier under short-day conditions.
- Explorer Blue is superior to the Blue Wave. The flower petals have a shiny, waxy texture that repels water and resists damage from rain or storms.
- Tidal Wave lets the gardener decide how he or she wants the plant to be by how he or she plants it. If a gardener plants the plants six to 12 inches apart, he or she can get a petunia hedge that is two to three feet high. Plant the plants 18 to 24 inches apart for a ground cover that spreads. This plant climbs and trails, and creates mounds and edges.
- Ramblin' hybrid series have a crawling habit with short internodes on the plant. The plant will grow six to eight inches high and spread out 18 to 24 inches. It will bloom up to two weeks earlier than other trailing types of petunias. It is free flowering, which means it will produce blooms from the entire plant, including the crown.
- Avalanche is a trailing hybrid that has a tight habit. It has three-inch blooms that will hold up better under wet weather conditions. It will spread out 36 inches but grow no taller than eight inches. It will bloom 10 to 14 days earlier than other prostrate types. This petunia solves the problem of empty centers in the plant. The plant never looks struggly and is the first true red trailing petunia.
- Limbo series is an early flowering dwarf variety with compact growth and good branching habits. The plant remains in a mounded form throughout the growing season. The plant grows six to seven inches tall with a plant spread of 10 to 20 inches. Occupying sturdy stems, the blossoms are three inches. This plant is known for recovering quickly and easily from rain, wind and overhead watering. This plant gives the gardener more blooms, not longer stems.
- Storm series is probably the same or similar to the Limbo series. They are a grandiflora variety with 12-inch plants. The blossoms are three- to five-inch blooms and waxy, so they will bounce back from wind or rain.

There are other characteristics that are on the blossoms:

- Flower characteristic ("fimbriate") is a femininely fringed edge on petals
- Double cascade (grandiflora) has carnation type blooms, three- to four-inch blooms on compact 12-inch plants. Blooms have spreading petals.
- Celebrity combines the grandeur and massive flower size of grandiflora with the weather tolerance and garden performance of multiflora. They thrive in humid, rainy conditions and retain a neat mounded habit. The blooms are three-and-a-half inches and have the fastest bloom time.
- Pirouette describes a flower with a solid color and a white fringed edge.
- Daddy series are petunias with a four-inch flower that includes a solid color and darker veins.
- Dream series are plants that have exceptional tolerance to botrytis. The plants are uniform in habit and bloom time. The three-and-a-half-inch to four-inch blooms come in clear and vibrant colors and are non-fading.
- Supercascade petunias are naturally cascading plants with large blooms in bright colors. The plants are well branched, and the flowers have giant, ruffled petals.
- Frillytunia series are a contemporary variety with the "fimbriate" characteristic. The plants have three-inch to three-and-a-half-inch blooms that are single and on compact plants.
- Dolce hybrids are petunias that came from Italian breeders. They produce bright three-inch blooms over a long season on compact plants. These plants have unique color combinations – one plant has blossoms that are creamy white, pale yellow and softly rose-colored in one blossom; another is a rose-colored cranberry with touches of yellow and cream; or two-tone or more shades of yellow.

Some variety names are unique to a particular company. Some may be patented.

Then there are the old fashioned climbing petunias. Especially in the evening, these are fragrant plants. They will self-sow and are usually a mixture of pastel lavender, white and purple flowers.

- Integrifolia petunia is a miniature petunia with one-inch blooms. It flowers continuously all summer and fall. It grows one-foot tall and trails two feet. It comes in bright pink flowers with white or deep lavender throats. The white blossoms have a trumpet shape. These last two types were found in an antique/heirloom seed catalogue.
- Glorious petunia has a double bloom that will have a mixture of solid colors and veined flowers.
- Star-shaped blooms have solid color blossoms with white stripes radiating from the center to the outside edge or white blossoms with a solid color radiating.
- Prime Times are a floribunda class with a large color range. Plants have good weather and disease tolerance. Blossoms are two-and-three-fourth inches and on bushy 12-inch plants. This group includes the stars, solid colors and varieties with various colored throats and some of the veined varieties.
- Aladdin series are early blooming grandiflora. Their blooms have a waxy appearance and are three-and-a-half inches. This group includes the "Morn, Sky or Ices" series of colors.
- Ultra series are base-branching plants. The four-inch blooms have better weather tolerance. They are compact and uniform. They have increased disease tolerance.
- Frost petunias have solid colors ringed with a white outer halo. They have three-and-a-half-inch flowers with a wavy edge.
- Bonanza or sweet tarts are a double multiflora with solid colors of red, white, orchid, rose, or a combination of colors and white.

With this research, a "Laura Bush Petunia" was also found. It has one-inch to one-and-a-half-inch bell-shaped violet flowers. It is a hardy, reseeding annual variety native to South America. It is a rugged, old-fashioned variety that has been bred for its hot and cold weather tolerance as well as its disease resistance. It remains a heavy bloomer even in the dog days of summer. As an extra bonus, it is "delightfully fragrant."

When selecting petunia plants, select for their growth habits, weather tolerance, sizes and colors.

The "Million Belles plant" is not a petunia. It is a different genus, Calibrachoa.

Minnesota among top six states in preparing for terrorist attacks

A new report places Minnesota among the top six states in the country in preparing for a possible terrorist attack using biological, chemical or radiological agents.

The report was prepared by the Trust for America's Health (TFAH), a nonpartisan, nonprofit study group focusing on disease prevention issues, using publicly available information.

In the report, Minnesota received a passing score for eight of 10 indicators used by TFAH, placing it in a tie with Nebraska, New Hampshire and Virginia. Only Florida and North Carolina had higher scores with passing grades on nine of the 10 indicators.

This is the second annual TFAH report on public health preparedness for health-related terrorist attacks. Last year, Minnesota only received a passing score for five of the 10 indicators, placing it among the top 24 states in the country. However, Minnesota officials also pointed out that last year's report used a slightly different set of indicators.

Indicators for which Minnesota received a passing score this year included:

- Making effective use of federal preparedness funding provided to the states
- Maintaining or increasing state-level funding for public health activities
- Having a relatively young public health workforce with less than 25 percent eligible to retire within five years
- Having sufficient biosafety level three laboratory capacity to handle lab work during an infectious disease emergency
- Achieving an increase in the percentage of people over 65 who have been vaccinated against influenza
- Having in place a plan for responding to a possible outbreak of pandemic influenza

Indicators for which Minnesota did not receive a passing score included having enough lab personnel to test for plague or anthrax during a possible bioterrorism attack and having a system for tracking disease on a daily basis using the Internet.

Officials at the Minnesota Department of Health said they believe the report may not reflect the most recent information about public health preparedness in Minnesota, especially regarding the availability of laboratory staff to handle possible bioterrorism events. However, they were also gratified to be recognized by TFAH for their efforts.

"Since 9-11, we have had a broad coalition of agencies and organizations working very hard to increase our level of preparedness for health-related terrorist attacks," said Dianne Mandernach, Minnesota health commissioner.

She added, "We're happy to see that all this hard work is beginning to pay off and that we're being recognized for it at the national level."

TFAH, the group that prepared the new report, describes its mission as "saving lives by protecting the health of every community and working to make disease prevention a national priority." TFAH is sponsored by a number of major foundations, including The Pew Charitable Trusts and The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. Support for the new preparedness report was also provided by the Bauman Foundation and the New York Community Trust.

Street bridges are under construction, Lindberg noted.

At least one Thief River Falls resident is opposed to the Greenwood Street bridge. "Why in the world do they want to run a main road through a residential section that people have lived in?" asked Jim Burkholder, a neighboring property owner.

Burkholder also noted many neighbors currently have to back their vehicles out of their driveways onto the street. As a result, he said there will be traffic problems and more accidents. Burkholder asked who would pay if there were accidents there.

Instead, Burkholder suggested finishing the Highway 59 bypass and connecting it to County Road 7.

Lindberg said he will recommend that the Thief River Falls City Council hold a public meeting about the bridge. He expected a public meeting would be held in late summer or early fall 2005 about the project.

A soils report, hydrologic study and risk assessment will have to be completed, among other things, before the bridge is constructed. Lindberg expected the city engineer will have the final plans ready in June 2007 for City Council approval.. and programs. During the event, teams of people gather at a location in the community and celebrate by taking turns walking or running all night long. As a result, a party atmosphere prevails all night long.

There's still time to enter a team. Teams that have been registered represent families, businesses, schools, and organizational groups. Some of the groups that have already formed have reported that there's so much interest in participating in the teams that they have had to split up their teams and create another.

Important date
May 11

Team members and team captains need to remember an important date. On May 11, a team captains meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in room 201 at Northland Community and Technical College. This is the time for captains to turn in their final team roster, file participant forms and order tee-shirts.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life in Pennington County will be held on June 10 and 11. Officially, the event begins at 7 p.m. and ends at 7 a.m. Set up, and some other fun activities will begin prior to 7 p.m., however.

"Big Sister" becomes godmother

hours at a time together during the program's first year.

Their activities varied from playing with Barbie Dolls and baking cookies, to just hanging out and watching television or walking dogs.

"She was in second grade at the time and was competing for attention with her younger sisters," Hernandez said. "It gave her an opportunity to feel like an only child for one day a week.

"She helped me get a better self esteem," Lubitz said. "I always veered away from other people and she's very outgoing. She made me feel special...that I wasn't an outsider."

In April of 1988, Hernandez moved to southern California to be closer to her sister, who had recently moved there. Hernandez and Lubitz could have easily lost touch because of Hernandez's move to the West Coast, but that wasn't the case. Lubitz, whose family moved several times, lived in several communities during her youth, but always stayed in touch with her childhood mentor.

"As a young girl she made it a point to stay in contact with me," Hernandez said. "By letters, phones calls and so on. She's just as responsible for the relationship we have together."

Lubitz was actually paired with two other big sisters during her childhood, but never developed the same type of friendship she had with Hernandez. She recalls the other mentors having good intentions, but never putting forth the same type of effort Hernandez did.

Nine years ago, Hernandez and Lubitz had their first face to face encounter since Hernandez moved to California. Hernandez returned to Thief River Falls to visit family and made it a point to spend some time with Lubitz.

The pair continued to stay in touch and have since used e-mail technology to aid in their long distance relationship. Shortly after Hernandez moved to California in 1988, she inquired about becoming a big sister in a similar program in the Fountain Valley, Calif. area. But found because of extensive classroom training that it would be much more difficult to get into the program and contribute the appropriate amount of time.

The Pennington County Little Brother-Little Sister Program is supported entirely by local grants and donations. All money donated and raised by the program is used locally.

Thief River Falls boys high school hockey banquet...

Four Prowlers named captains

Michael Forney, Robby Philipp, Matt Nordhagen and Corey LaSalle have been named captains of the 2005-06 Thief River Falls boys high school hockey team, it was announced Monday during the Prowlers' annual team banquet at the Ralph Engelstad Arena.

No individual team awards were presented, but recognition went to players selected for All-Mariucci Conference and All-Section 8A honors.

Alec Holen, Lance Klaven, Michael Benedict and Forney were all-conference picks. Holen, Forney and Benedict were also all-section selections.

Holen sets scoring records

■ TRF career, single-season hockey marks broken

Thief River Falls boys high school hockey career and single-season scoring records dating back to the 1951-52 and 1959-60 seasons were eclipsed by Alec Holen in 2004-05.

The senior forward scored 30 goals and had 42 assists this winter for a 72-point season that topped the previous team mark set in 1959-60 when Dale Wennberg, the current Thief River Falls mayor, finished with 37 goals, 33 assists and 70 points.

In three varsity seasons, Holen accumulated 169 points – one better than previous record-holder Jack Erickson had posted over a five-year span from 1947-48 through 1951-52. Erickson had 114 goals and 54 assists. Holen wound up with 74 goals and 95 assists – the latter another career mark that belonged to Aaron Bendickson for a year with 78 assists from 2001-02 through 2003-04.

The 74 career goals puts Holen No. 4 on the all-time school list headed by Erickson, and his 42 assists this year ranks No. 2 to the 43 Benickson had a year ago.

Holen and his teammates put the finishing touches on the 2004-05 season during the Prowlers' annual team banquet Monday.

"The numbers speak for themselves," said Thief River Falls head coach Scott Bergland. "Alec is an outstanding hockey player."

Michael Forney combined with Holen to give the Prowlers one of their top one-two scoring punches of all time. Forney, a junior, finished with 34 goals, 33 assists and 67 points. That's the fourth highest single-season point total in school history, the fourth highest goal total and fifth (tie) highest assist total. He will head into his senior year with 108 career points, which already puts him at No. 8 on the school scoring chart.

Four other Prowlers scored 20 or more points in 2004-05 – an impressive figure when you take into consideration that in both 1999-2000 and 2000-01 the Prowlers' scoring leaders had 15 points. That foursome included sophomore Corey Horien (9 goals, 30 assists) with 39 points, junior Robby Philipp (14-23) 37, junior Matt Nordhagen (9-13). 22 and sophomore Michael Benedict (5-15) 20.

Thief River Falls finished the year 19-8-1. That's the most wins for the Prowlers since 1959-60 when the Prowlers went 19-3-1. The season ended with a 4-1 Section 8A tournament championship game loss to eventual state champion Warroad. They were ranked No. 5 in the final Associated Press Class A state poll of the year.

In addition to their accomplishments on the ice, the Prowlers were named Section 8A and Class A state boys hockey academic champions.

"At the start of the year, you figure that if you don't win the section, you have to consider the season a failure," said Bergland. "But if you look at the overall picture of what this team accomplished, it would be pretty hard to say it was a failure."

It was Bergland's eighth year as Thief River Falls head coach, which ranks him behind only Wendell Grand in terms of tenure on the Prowlers' bench.

Grand served as head coach for 11 years, compiling a record of 133 wins, 105 losses and 10 ties from 1976-77 through 1986-87. That's the most games (248) and most wins for a coach in Thief River Falls hockey history. Bergland's record over 204 games is 91-97-16.

Dennis Rolle (1949-50 through 1955-56) and Glenn Chiodo (1987-88 through 1993-94) both coached seven years. The fifth spot on the Thief River Falls hockey longevity list goes to George Schlieff who coached six years from 1963-64 through 1968-69.

Rolle has the best winning percentage among those coaches at 85 percent with a 109-19 record and two state tournament titles (1954 and 1956).

Bergland was head coach at Northland Community and Technical College for four years, where his team won the 1988 Minnesota Community College Conference state title before taking over the Prowlers' reigns. His first four years coaching at the high school level netted only 26 wins. The victory total over the last four years is 65, which includes appearance in two of the last three Section 8A tournament finals, where both losses came at the hands of the eventual state champions.

While a sought-after sectional title and state tournament trip continues to elude the Prowlers, a year like 2004-05 and the consistency exhibited over the past four seasons can certainly be a source of pride for the program.

Prairie Chicken, sharptail meeting planned

Minnesota Sharp-tailed Grouse Society and the Minnesota Prairie Chicken Society will host an informational meeting on sharp-tailed grouse and prairie chickens Saturday, April 16, at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls.

The "Spring Fling" program co-sponsored by the two groups will consist of several presentations and posters on sharptail and prairie chicken management, hunting, and research, and will feature live birds raised by Clifford Steinhauer of Holt.

The meeting is open to the public, and the $10 registration fee covers the cost of lunch. There will be door prizes. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. For additional information call 218-326-4253 or 218-281-6063.

Northland softball team 14-2

Impressive was the best way to describe the results as Northland opened its 2005 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division softball schedule by sweeping a pair of weekend doubleheaders on the road.

The Pioneers beat Mesabi Range 2-1, 5-0 Friday in Virginia and defeated Vermilion 5-4, 7-0 Saturday in Ely.

Results pushed Northland's overall record to 14-2.

"We're pretty excited to win four on the road," said Northland coach Kathy Huschle. "We hadn't seen either team and had no idea what we would be facing, but the girls played well."

Northland won the weekend opener against Mesabi Range on the strength of a two-run first inning home run by Rochelle Nelk. The Pioneers mustered just two hits – both by Nelk. Winning pitcher Shannon Olson gave up only three hits.

Nelk matched Olson's three-hit pitching while recording a Friday Game 2 shutout. Angie Van Maasdem had two hits and Tiffany Malwitz drove in two runs to back Nelk's pitching.

Saturday, Northland pushed three runs across the plate in their first at-bat and had a 5-0 lead before Vermilion staged a Game 1 rally. Two seventh inning runs had chopped the difference to just 5-4, and the tying run was on third when Olson ended the suspense with a strikeout.

Nelk completed 14 innings of scoreless pitching by blanking Vermilion on one hit in the weekend finale. She carried a no-hitter into the sixth.

Northland, after being limited to six hits in the two Friday games, came back to bang out 19 hits on Saturday.

"We were a little slow as far as hits go the first day," acknowledged Huschle. "We did start to make better contact in the second game, and Saturday we hit the ball pretty well. Mesabi's pitcher threw hard. Vermilion's pitching was a little slower."

Northland was scheduled to make its home debut today (Wednesday) with a 3 p.m. doubleheader at the Multi-Events Center against Central Lakes. A week-long home stand will continue with another 3 p.m. twinbill Friday vs. Hibbing and Saturday games against Rainy River that start at noon.

Indoor season is completed

Third and final indoor meet on Thief River Falls' 2005 boys and girls high school track schedule took place Friday when the Prowlers participated in the Bemidji Lions Invitational at Bemidji State University.

International Falls boys and Bemidji girls won team titles. Thief River Falls boys were third in a five-team field; Thief River Falls girls were fifth in a six-team race.

The event was rescheduled from a March 26 postponement due to a low number of entries. It wasn't a large field this time, either, but Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson figured the numbers fit the building perfectly. "It was a nice little meet," he said. "It's a nice facility for that size of a meet. We started at 4 and were done about 7:30."

A smaller field minus an area power like Moorhead offered a competitive experience for many of the Prowlers' entries, explained Olson. "The kids scored some points and had some fun," he said.

A 54.0 by Scott Rakozy in the boys 400 meter dash was the Prowlers' lone first place finish in either portion of the meet.

The Prowlers did get second place finishes from Kayse Lee in the girls 100, Dana Ranum in the girls 400, Aaron Langen in the boys 200 and Ryan Brummond in the boys shot.

Idle this week, the Prowlers return to action with their first outdoor meet of the season Monday, April 18 – the Northland Community and Technical College Invitational at Lowell T. Swenson Field. Competition starts with the field events at 3:30 p.m. Running events begin at 4 p.m.

Pioneers have 2-2 weekend; home opener delayed a day

Northland beat Minnesota West twice, but lost to Riverland and Fergus Falls during the Crossover Baseball Tournament hosted by Riverland Community College April 8 and 9 in Austin.

Friday, Northland defeated Minnesota West 7-1 and fell to host Riverland 12-3. Saturday, the Pioneers won the rematch with Minnesota West 5-2 before dropping a 9-8 decision to Fergus Falls.

Results put Northland at 6-9 for the year.

Due to wet weather, the Pioneers' 2005 home opener and first Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division action scheduled Tuesday against Mesabi Range was moved back to today (Wednesday) at 1 p.m. at the Multi-Events Center.

Steve Gust-coached Pioneers will also be at home Saturday against Hibbing in another 1 p.m. Northern Division doubleheader.

Crossover Baseball Tournament

■ Friday, April 8 - (Round 1) Itasca 16, Riverland 12; Fergus Falls 6, Mesabi Range 1; Northland 7, Minnesota West 1; (Round 2) Riverland 12, Northland 3; Mesabi Range 11, Minnesota West 1; Fergus Falls 5, Itasca 0.

■ Saturday, April 9 - (Round 3) Fergus Falls 16, Riverland 8; Itasca 8, Mesabi Range 6; Northland 5, Minnesota West 2; (Round 4) Mesabi Range 16, Riverland 5; Fergus Falls 9, Northland 8; Itasca 7, Minnesota West 0.

Prowlers selected for All-Mariucci Conference honors during the 2004-05 boys high school hockey season were recognized at the Thief River Falls team banquet Monday. The group included, from left, Michael Benedict, Lance Klaven, Michael Forney and Alec Holen. Benedict, Forney and Holen were also named All-Section 8A.

It's not too early to make camping reservations at MN state parks

Although snow still covers the ground in some throughout the state, a large contingent of outdoor enthusiasts will be poised to make their camping reservations in Minnesota state parks in the coming days since, for the first time, they will be able to choose which site they want to reserve. For those making plans for Memorial weekend, Feb. 28 was the first day reservations were taken.

"This year, campers are able to make site-specific reservations for campsites in Minnesota state park campgrounds," said Steve Anderson, park operations coordinator for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), division of parks and recreation.

Campers can make reservations for campsites 90 days in advance of their arrival date. "I'm sure that the opportunity to reserve their favorite site will likely prompt a lot of campers to make a reservation by phone or online as soon as the 90-day window allows," Anderson said.

By going online or making a call to the reservation service, customers will be able to find out if their favorite campsite is among those that can be reserved in advance, check when the site is available and reserve it for their getaway. For customers who may not be able to plan ahead or prefer not to make reservations, up to 30 percent of campsites in state parks will continue to be kept available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Other improvements made to the system include shortening the lead time for making last-minute camping and lodging reservations.

Customers now will be able to make reservations a minimum of two (instead of three) days ahead of arrival date if payment is made by credit card. If payment is made by check or money order, the shortest lead time for making reservations is 10 days in advance.

"In order to streamline the registration process at the park," Anderson explained, "the non-refundable reservation fee of $8.50 and camping fees for the full length of the stay are due at the time the camping reservation is made."

This policy also applies to camper cabin rental that will require the reservation fee of $8.50 and the fees for the full length of stay be paid when the reservation is made. With a prepaid reservation, customers who arrive at the park when the park office isn't open can proceed directly to the specific campsite or camper cabin they have reserved.

As in the past, customers will be able to make reservations for tours at Soudan Underground Mine, Mystery Cave at Forestville/Mystery Cave State Park, and Hill Annex Mine State Park up to 90 days in advance. Customers still will be able to reserve up to 10 tickets for one non-refundable reservation fee of $8.50 per tour.

Lodging and group camp reservations are accepted up to a year in advance. For lodging, one night's lodging fee is due when the reservation is made. The $8.50 non-refundable reservation fee is included in the deposit. Any remaining balance due will be paid upon arrival at the park. For group camps, a deposit of one night's camping and the $8.50 reservation fee must be paid when the reservation is made. Both of these group camp fees are non-refundable.

Reservations can be made online at www.stayatmnparks.com or by calling 1-866-85PARKS (1-866-857-2757) toll free in the United States and Canada. The TDD toll free number is 1-866-290-2267.

For more information or a free brochure that includes reservation information and fees, contact the DNR information center at 651-296-6157 or 1-888-MINNDNR, or visit the state park pages on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Virgil and Marvel Hjello and Mae Hjello attended the Elim Lutheran Church at Clearbrook for their grandson Ryan's confirmation service.

Friday night, Virgil and Marvel were supper guests at the Troy Hjello Home. Saturday pm they attended the Golden wedding anniversary of Wallace and Arlene Hanson at the Viking Covenant Church.

Joyce Kron was a Tuesday morning coffee guest of Liz Swenson's. Rose Sollid on Thursday went to Park Rapids to visit Sandi Gjovik, along with her went Thelma Dahl, Gladys Anderson, Gladys Heinz, and Millie Werner. They went out for dinner at the West 40 and later enjoyed birthday cake. Several other friends joined them later. Thelma then spent the weekend with her daughter Sandi Gjovik.

Megan Woleski was home from college for the weekend at her parents.

Joyce Kron was a Sunday visitor at the Ardith Solney home, and Saturday evening enjoyed the pancake supper at Zion in Viking.

Family and friends gathered at the Viking Covenant church on Saturday afternoon April 2nd, for a reception celebrating the 50th anniversary of Wallace and Arlene Hanson. Their four children and spouses -Kent and Janell Hudson, Jon and Debbie Hanson, Steve and Ann Abeler, and Steve and Nancy Fisher. All 15 grandchildren presented a short program. Larry Gustafson, Arlene's brother sang "O Perfect Love", which was sung at their wedding 50 years ago. Several others in attendance had also been there that day.

Family members and friends who came to congratulate the couple were from St. Paul, Northfield, Dassel, Andover, Orcoran, Alexandria, St. Cloud, Moorhead, Warroad, Warren, Wannaska, Roosevelt, Thief River Falls, Newfolden, Argyle, Goodridge, and Viking, Minnesota. Cooperstown, and Grand Forks, North Dakota, and Sao Paulo, Brazil.

The Vikihg Town and Country Garden Club Members were host to the Annual Spring Workshop of the 13th District Horticultural Society. It was held at the Zion Lutheran Church Saturday with the theme "Wake Up-It's Spring-Cock-a-Doodle-Do." Morning coffee was served before speaker Faith Rud of Warren showed slides and spoke of her trip to Europe. A salad lunch was served and a country store of plants, bulbs and gardening items was open for shopping. A business meeting was conducted by District President Norma Hanson of Goodridge. The afternoon was concluded with the Silver Tea celebrating the 45th year of the garden club. A special cake for the occasion was decorated with the images of the club flower, Wild Columbine in a garden setting. It was served by Clarice Rooker, Club President. A charter member of the garden club, Joyce Kron poured. Garden Clubs represented at the workshop were from Warroad, Williams, Roseau, Greenbush, Goodridge, Thief River Falls, and Warren. The Charter members 45 years ago were, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. Harold Kagg, Mrs. Bert Kron, Mrs. Ray Halvorson, Mrs. Axel Gustafson, Mrs. Albert Peterson, Mrs. George Zerold, Mrs. Axel Jacobson, Mrs. Carl Krohn, Mrs. Ben Paulson, and Mrs. Victor Ranstrom.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota spells Spring is here with a capital "S"! After a sunny Sunday, Monday is here with wind and a real cloud cover. The weather forecast this morning was rain, so I put 5-gallon buckets under the rain troughs to begin collecting rainwater for my plants. I only have about 7 gallons left in the basement that I put down before the snow came. My plants thrive on rainwater and Miracle-gro. I have six amaryllises that, after they were through blooming have grown 24-inch leaves which take a lot of room. As soon as I'm sure they won't freeze, I'll plant them in the ground until the first part of September, dig them and let the roots dry until the middle of November when I'll re-pot them and have them blooming for Christmas. Some of them had double stems this past winter with 8 big blossoms on at a time.

Just the last couple of days since the snow went off the garden, the tulips came up and are over 4 inches high already. The deer just love them and the roses for a lunch so I'm going out to spray around them with some "Deer-off" that Hazel brought to me. With all the good grain fields in the country, pruning them real early should make them stool out and maybe that would do some good. These city deer can hardly wait to get at the gardens in town. I hate to think that I may have to put up an electric fence in town.

Visitors at Judy Kleinvachter this week were Marie Steffen of Argyle, June and Karl Kasprowicz, Pat Larson and Matt Hammer of Grand Forks.

The ladies in the Bethesda Lutheran Church spend Monday and Tuesday of at least 4 weeks putting together quilts that they have made tops for in their homes. They are sent to World Relief, who distributes them any place in all the world that they are needed. You can rest assured there are many needed places these days.

Sonny and Janet Sands returned from a 3 week vacation to Florida and up the coast to the Carolinas. At Cape Canaveral or Cape Kennedy as it is now named, they were there to see the blast-off of a satellite into space. The bleachers were a couple of miles from the place it went off and it was a success. Of course, things like that was what really made his day and when he came home he took almost 2 hours to explain all the things they had seen. Today, I saw on TBN the same satellite clip of that one as it was being put together. They asked the president of TBN to place a microchip of the Holy Bible in the satellite, which we saw him do. The average life span of a satellite is 10 years. The last TBN satellite carried a microchip of the Bible in it and that was still in good shape at 13 years of sending the messages back to earth. The last 2 times before this one went up, were duds and NASA asked them to put this chip on this one. A satellite is 30 feet long and 15 feet wide. A strange thing is that the dimensions of the satellite were exactly the same as the prophet Zechariah wrote 2500 years ago 20 cubits long and 10 cubits wide. There are 18 inches in a cubit. This is found in Zechariah the 5th chapter, verses 1 and 2. This book is second from the last book in the Old Testament. Look it up.

Victims and our justice system

Progress in protecting crime victims has been made in the past 25 years since the first National Crime Victims' Rights Week in 1981, but more needs to be done to inform victims of their rights, and to engage their active participation in our justice system.

Until you've been the victim of a crime you really can't comprehend its impact on you. Unfortunately, many people don't seem interested in learning how to protect themselves until they've been the victim of a crime, and then they make it everybody's business.

April 10-16 marks the anniversary of National Crime Victims' Rights Week. While this certainly provides us with an opportunity to honor those individuals who work so hard to help victims of crime and their accomplishments, it's also time to reflect on what more can be done because it is everybody's business.

In a letter to the editor that appeared in a recent edition the Thief River Falls Times, Karla Stavnes and Deanna Sorvig, Pennington County and Red Lake County crime victim advocates, state: "Justice isn't served until we realize as a community and as a nation founded on the principles of 'equal rights for all,' that violence affects us all, and that victims' rights represent the very foundation upon which our nation as created. We can be bystanders to justice, or we can recognize that justice for one person who is hurt by crime is truly justice for us all."

Although it helps, it's not always enough to be present to see the person who violated your trust or caused you pain, made legally responsible for his or her actions. Victims often discover that there's little that anyone can do that will make them "whole again." Crime affects its victims in many different ways - financially, physically, spiritually, and emotionally - and sometimes those wounds don't heal. Receiving some compensation helps, but so too does information that helps victims understand the judicial process and empowers them.

Educating the public of its rights - ways in which they can participate in justice and receive compensation or assistance for their losses - can also go a long way in dispelling a broadly held belief that this is a nation that is interested only in protecting the rights of the defendant. We should be interested in the rights of the victim. At one time or another, we all become victims.

In his weekly column, Congressman Mark Kennedy noted his support for a $1 million grant for the Minnesota Office of Victims of Crime. "The money," he said, "is critical for the education and assistance to victims of crime all over Minnesota. All of our actions are steps in the right direction toward our ultimate goal - to see that victims of crime finally get to see justice served."

We hope that the effort to inform victims of their rights is intensified. Justice can be served, but it often means we have to make an effort, too. The first place to start may be with the officer who takes down your report, but the next step is to contact your crime victims advocate. In Pennington County, the telephone number is listed under "Crime Victim Advocate." Make an effort to become knowledgeable about your rights. It helps.

Mensa-fied

Minnesota Newspaper Association shares a lot of information with its member newspapers, some of which may be interesting enough to share with the general public. In the April 5 Minnesota Newspaper Association Bulletin was the following tidbit, which readers may find humorous.

The Washington Post's Style Mensa Invitational once again asked readers to take any word from the dictionary, alter it by adding, subtracting, or changing one letter, and supplying a new definition.

Here are some of this year's winners:

1. Osteopornosis: a degenerate disease. (This one got extra credit.)
2. Karmageddon: It's like, when everybody is sending off all these really bad vibes, right? And then, like, the Earth explodes and it's like, a serious bummer.
3. Decafalon (n.): The grueling event of getting through the day consuming only things that are good for you.
4. Dopeler effect: the tendency of stupid ideas to seem smarter when they come at you rapidly.
5. Arachnoleptic fit (n.): The frantic dance performed just after you've accidentally walked through a spider web.
6. Beelzebug (n.): Satan in the form of a mosquito, that gets into your bedroom at three in the morning and cannot be cast out.
7. Caterpallor (n.): The color you turn after finding half a grub in the fruit you're eating.

POLICIES

Letters To The Editor: The staff of The Times encourages written responses to editorial comment or letters with original thoughts or ideas of general interest. Letters should be intended for publication in The Times exclusively; letters sent to multiple publications will generally not be accepted. Right is reserved to edit letters for length and clarity and to reject letters deemed to be promotional in nature or in poor taste.

Letters Must Be Signed: All letters must be signed and contain an address or phone number of the writer so authenticity can be verified.

Signatures must appear on letters published. The staff believes that there is greater credibility in letters signed in print and will not withhold names of writers from publication.

Responses Invited: Letters critical of individuals or other entities may be shown to those individuals or representatives of those entities in advance of publication with an invitation by newspaper staff for response in the same issue as the original letter.

Corrections: If an error is made in news or advertising publication, the staff encourages readers to call it to our immediate attention by calling 681-4450. We will attempt to correct the error or clarify the misunderstanding in the next issue.

Governor's game could shift costs to local hospitals

by Rep. Bernie Lieder

Earlier this session, I wrote about the perfect storm forming when it comes to rural health care and cautioned that the governor's budget proposal will only make it worse. This week, the Minnesota Hospital Association released a study that estimated the impact the governor's budget will have on hospitals. The numbers are sobering.

Gov. Tim Pawlenty's proposed budget for FY 2006-07 has two primary impacts on hospital funding. First, it cuts the reimbursement rates to hospitals for hospitals participating in Medical Assistance, General Assistance Medical Care and MinnesotaCare programs are reduced by 5 percent. Second, it increases the number of uninsured that hospitals will have to treat because of changes in eligibility for the MinnesotaCare program. Current estimates indicate that approximately 27,000 adults will lose health coverage because of the eligibility changes. That means that hospitals will see an increase in uncompensated care costs. After the last round of cuts to MinnesotaCare, hospitals were forced to absorb an additional $107.6 million in uncompensated care, money that is made up for in higher charges to insured patients.

All together, the governor is also proposing to cut payments to hospitals by an additional $55.789 million (about 5 percent) over the next two years, a cut that will result in an additional loss of almost $40 million in matching federal funds. Greater Minnesota will absorb roughly $37 million of those cuts.

Hospitals in our area will shoulder a heavy portion of the cuts, as the chart below indicates.

Anyone familiar with the finances of rural hospitals will tell you this added burden is going to have a severe impact on the quality of health care in rural Minnesota, as well as access. Since 1991, 23 hospitals in Minnesota have closed, resulting in a loss of 1,594 hospital beds. According to the Minnesota Department of Health, one-fourth of the 119 hospitals in greater Minnesota are operating in financial distress - meaning they are either operating at a loss or they have such a small operating margin that they cannot afford to do routine capital improvements to the facility - and these cuts are going to add to their precarious financial situation.

The most frustrating aspect to the governor's proposal is that these hospital cuts are also going to cost the state much more in the long run. We need to ask ourselves what we're really saving here. If the governor's budget proposal passes, hospitals will have two options - either reduce staff and services or shift the costs to private payers.

Again, we have to ask what we're really saving here. Even with its troubles, Minnesota's health care system is the envy of our neighbors. Dismantling it shouldn't be an acceptable way to fix our budget problems.

Area Hospitals take on a heavier burden

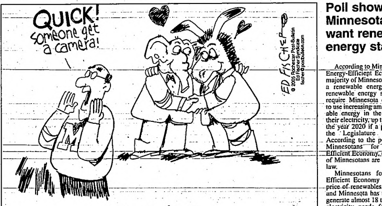
| Hospital | County | 5% rate reduction | MnCare eligibility cut | Governor's cuts |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Riverview Healthcare Assoc. | Polk | $284,246 | $355,409 | $639,655 |
| Northwest Medical Center | Pennington | $250,137 | $154,344 | $404,481 |
| Clearwater Health Services | Clearwater | $103,343 | $186,664 | $289,987 |
| First Care Medical Services | Polk | $102,990 | $128,073 | $231,063 |
| North Valley Health Center | Marshall | $1,087 | $136,773 | $137,859 |
| Bridges Medical Service | Norman | $13,234 | $113,918 | $127,153 |
| Mahnomen Health Center | Mahnomen | $49,211 | $62,708 | $111,919 |



'Bonding' Bill

Poll shows that Minnesotans want renewable energy standard

According to Minnesotans for an Energy-Efficient Economy, a huge majority of Minnesota citizens want a renewable energy standard. A renewable energy standard would require Minnesota energy utilities to use increasing amounts of renewable energy in the production of their electricity, up to 20 percent by the year 2020 if a proposal before the Legislature is approved. According to the poll paid for by Minnesotans for an Energy-Efficient Economy, over 75 percent of Minnesotans are in favor of this law.

Minnesotans for an Energy-Efficient Economy report that the price of renewables is going down and Minnesota has the potential to generate almost 18 times its current electricity needs from renewable energy sources and create thousands of new jobs. A renewable energy standard would help Minnesota stay ahead of the curve and take advantage of the rising demand for power. At the same time, it would reduce smog and other air pollutants that harm our natural resources and our children's health.

A March 31 telephone poll asked a sample of 400 registered voters what's best for Minnesota. According to the poll, over 75 percent (78 percent) of Minnesotans want a renewable energy standard, requiring all electric companies to increase the supply of renewable energy, such as solar and wind power, to 20 percent by 2020.

The poll also found that when generating additional electricity, over 80 percent (84 percent) of Minnesotans think electric companies should emphasize renewable energy sources, such as solar and wind power, over fossil fuels.

It also found that as Minnesota grows, so does its demand for electricity. Over 70 percent (71 percent) of Minnesotans think electric utilities should help customers use energy more efficiently, rather than just producing more electricity.

Capital investment package is approved

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

It came nearly a year later than I would have liked, but legislators achieved one of their major goals for the 2005 session this week by passing a comprehensive capital investment package that is projected to create 10,000 good-paying jobs throughout Minnesota.

On April 6, the full Senate voted 61-3 to pass the $886 million bonding bill that had been agreed upon in a conference committee last week. Thank you, Gov. Tim Pawlenty for your engaged participation this year and expressed willingness to support each of the approved projects.

It is especially good news to report that several badly needed projects benefiting northwestern Minnesota flood mitigation efforts and our area colleges were funded in the bonding bill. Specifically, Roseau Infrastructure Repair and Improvements was funded at $13.22 million, Crookston emergency riverbank protections at $1.9 million and similar flood protection in Red Lake Falls at $600,000, and Department of Natural Resources flood mitigation grants are available through matching grants for Roseau, Palmville and Malung. In the vital land conservation category that includes the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) and Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM), the bill provides $23 million in funding.

In higher education, Northland Community and Technical College will receive more than $2.15 million for its WorkForce addition and nursing renovations, $350,000 for repairs and preservation and another $250,000 at the East Grand Forks campus, as well as some of the $1 million throughout the system for updating classroom technology. The University of Minnesota at Crookston will receive a portion of another $40 million for U of M system repairs and preservation.

This year's version of the bill is very similar to the 2004 Bonding Bill, which failed to pass despite unanimous Senate Democratic support. Most Senate Republicans voted "no" last year, making it impossible to reach the 60 percent super-majority necessary to authorize state borrowing.

It is gratifying that we finally got the bonding bill done so the bidding and construction process can begin as soon as possible. Spring construction season is nearly upon us, so the time for getting projects started and Minnesotans back to work is now. While it's too bad that this process took so long, I am happy to see a bipartisan agreement put together so these much-needed projects can get underway. This is truly a wise investment of taxpayer dollars.

The delay was costly as inflation in building material prices over the past nine months means that several of the projects will cost Minnesota taxpayers millions more. Nevertheless, I am glad that we are moving forward. This well-balanced bill will provide jobs and much-needed construction in every corner of our state.

Wide range of opinions expressed in Rep. Penas' survey

by Rep Maxine Penas

Earlier in the session I inserted a legislative survey in this newspaper which asked for your input on certain topics that were likely to be debated at the Capitol this year. I was pleased with the response, and I knew you would be interested in the results.

When asked if you would support reforming the current education funding formula to give individual school districts greater flexibility in how they spend their money, as long as their students are meeting the state's academic standards, 53 percent of those surveyed said "yes." About 17 percent said "no."

Approximately 37 percent of respondents said the current level of K-12 education funding is insufficient, while 29 percent believe the funding level is [illegible] percent of those surveyed said the current level of funding is too high, while about 15 percent had other comments about education funding.

Slightly more than half of those surveyed said Minnesota should receive its "fair share" of gaming profits from tribal casinos. About 54 percent said "yes," and added they would support legislation dedicating those proceeds to our general fund. About 29 percent said "yes," and would support dedicating the proceeds to education only. About 17 percent said the state should leave gambling at its present status.

The most unanimous response was that 77 percent said they were not satisfied with the current management practices and public use of property owned by various units of government. About 17 percent said they were somewhat satisfied, and about 3 percent said they were very satisfied. An additional 3 percent had other comments about the property.

About 75 percent of those surveyed said they would not support increasing the state tax on gasoline to help fund transportation projects. Twenty-five percent said they support that tax proposal.

In addition, about 76 percent of you said you would not be willing to pay a $3 fee per month to identify impaired waters and restore them. Such a proposal is included in legislation called the Clean Water Legacy Act.

Finally, I asked for your suggestions about how to control the cost of health care in Minnesota. There were a number of ideas. Here's a few of them: curbing malpractice lawsuits; promote competition between drug manufacturers; price control on prescription drugs; use state lottery proceeds to pay for insurance premiums so all Minnesotans can have health insurance (which would require a constitutional amendment voted on in a general election); and expand MinnesotaCare.

As your state representative, it is important for me to know where you stand so that I can weigh and articulate your beliefs as I represent you at the State Capitol. One of the best ways to gauge how the public feels on these topics is by completing my session survey. I will continue to review any additional surveys that you send in. Thanks to all who took the time to make their voices heard.

Out in Society

From The Thief River Falls Times
April 10, 1930

Supper Party

"An Easter motif was carried out in the decorations at the six o'clock supper party given Saturday evening by Norma Batchelder when she entertained a group of friends at her home. Following the supper, the evening was devoted to games, cards and dancing. The following guests were present: Lorraine Rayson, Bernadette Waldorf, Grace Sandum, Verna Brandon, Jean Weeding, Fern Barnett, Elinor Bottelson, Bernice Berge, Rhodella Angell, Dolores Urdahl and Verona Urdahl."

Birthday Party

"Monday afternoon Clayton Angell celebrated his tenth birthday anniversary by entertaining ten little boys at a party at his home. The afternoon was spent playing games and refreshments were served at 5:30 o'clock by the host's mother, Mrs. Eva Angell."

St. Hilaire

Birthday Party

"Miss Laurine Bjerk was hostess last Tuesday evening to a group of her friends, the occasion being her birthday. An enjoyable evening was spent and at 10 o'clock refreshments were served. Those present were: Evelyn and Ivanette Thyren, Alice Huff, Ruth Rux, Evelyn Bengsten, Alice Lindquist."

High School Progress

Old Fad Revived

"A number of students have revived an old fad to take up their spare time. In fact, cross-word puzzles are appearing everywhere in the assembly and class rooms. Some students spend so much spare time to these that they have very little time to apply to their studies. The caption on most of the puzzles is 'Learn as you Play' but it really seems as if more learning could be done if a little of the playing were discarded.

"Of course there is some educational value in these games but the same amount of time put into lessons would reap much greater rewards. It does seem strange to see a supposedly sane pupil walking around with a crazed look in his eye murmuring, 'What in the world is a three-letter word staring with N meaning an African animal?' But then, think how fortunate it is for the teachers that these fans didn't revive Mah Jong instead of crosswords."

To Coach Hays and His Conquering Prowlers

Soaring he came, from the plains of Dakota
Carrying the tune, 'we're out to win.'
A scholar is he as well as a Coach
And a good Scout always, is G. L. Hays.
Through months of practice, with high ideals
With fighting fellows who were out to do,
He made teams, that were out to win
And win they did, both far and wide.
'Prowlers.' Ah! that swelling name
Spelling fear to all and disaster to most
The work of a Coach, whose unerring hand
Molded with care the fear- spreading Prowlers.
To Captain 'Rip' [Dablow] and the rest of the fellows
Who battled rue for the gold and blue
And upheld our colors against rivals of old
To go down in history as 'Lincoln's crack team.'
Now to the Coach, and his fighting Prowlers
We honor as scholars as well as athletes.
In future endeavors, as always we say.
'Good luck, Coach and Conquering Prowlers!'

- A. J. Class of '30 [Arthur Johnson]

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher April 13, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

Smiley is Grateful

"W. C. Smiley writes the News from St. Paul that he is very grateful for the honor conferred upon him by the settlers of Township 153, Range 42, in naming the township in his honor and desires to express his thanks. He also states that he is preparing for the use of the town board of supervisors an excellent township map which will prove a very valuable piece of property for the town board."

Good Sized Well

Soo is Building One for a Water Supply in Thief River Falls

"One of the largest wells in the northern part of the state is now being dug by the Soo road in this city on the grounds purchased from C. J. Knox for terminal purposes. It is to be round, fourteen feet in diameter and will be eighty or ninety feet deep. The well will be bricked up and, when completed, will furnish a sufficient supply of water for the numerous engines that the Soo will keep in the roundhouse here and on the road.

"Quite a large force of men are now at work digging this well and it is expected to have it completed in a short time. The roundhouse will be built just north of the well and the large coal sheds will be south of it."

The Mill Now Running

"The Thief River Falls Lumber company's mill started up Monday for the season's run and, from now until it freezes up, will run day and night. A new rule has been made by the mill proprietors and no work will be done on Sundays hereafter. The mill will close down at 12 Saturday nights and start up again at 1 o'clock Monday mornings. Heretofore the mill started up at 7 o'clock Monday mornings and ran until 6 o'clock Sunday mornings."

The Petition Presented

Some 2,032 Voters of Red Lake County Have Signed It

"Thief River Falls' petition, signed by 2,032 voters of Red Lake county, asking that the county seat of Red Lake county be removed to Thief River Falls and that a special election be called which would allow the people to vote upon the matter, was presented to the county auditor Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock by Attorney Ira C. Richardson, Alex A. Sweaas, Mayor D. B. Bakke and Robert Lee.

"County Auditor Ford, who, in his pre-election promises, had always told the people of Thief River Falls that, if the county seat question should ever come up while he was auditor, he would act fairly, refused to make the order calling a special meeting of the county commissioners as the law says he shall do immediately after receiving the petition and ascertaining the number of signatures which he had certified to at 10:30 that morning, saying that he wanted the advice of the county attorney.

"County Attorney Germo, who had given the people of this city the same kind of promise that Auditor Ford had, refused to give an opinion upon the matter until after six o'clock in the evening. In the meantime, Attorneys Grady and McIntyre, acting for the citizens of Red Lake Falls, had had time to drive to Crookston and secure a temporary injunction from Judge Watts restraining the county auditor from accepting the petition. The matter will come up before Judge Watts in chambers at Crookston on the 22nd of April.

"Upon what grounds the injunction was secured is not known, but of this much we feel sure, and that is that it will be dissolved by the courts. It means that Red Lake Falls intends to keep the matter in the courts for as long a time as it can, thus holding the county seat for as long a time as possible, for whenever it comes to a vote of the people, that town is sure to lose. Thief River Falls cares little as to the time when the vote is taken. The longer the matter is postponed, the surer it will be to win, as the town is growing larger every day and the chances are that in a year or so, this city can win the fight without a struggle.

"A mass meeting was held in the city hall last evening and the matter was discussed."

Taken Up River

"The large tow boat which Peter Eberhardt built for the Beltrami County Lumber company here this winter was placed in the Red Lake river last week. Tuesday a crew of men started up river with the boat and it will be taken to the outlet and remain there until the ice goes out in the lake. It will then be used to tow logs for the Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Crookston and East Grand Forks lumber companies. It is the largest boat ever built for use on this river or lake, and will have a powerful towing capacity."

The Soo's New Roundhouse

"The plans of the Soo's new roundhouse have arrived in the city and it is said that the work will be commenced at once. The roundhouse will have stalls for twenty-four engines, but only six stalls will be built this spring, the remaining ones being built after the road is completed and the freight trains are running."

—With the legislature's session scheduled to end April 21, and with many major bills still to be disposed of, we can imagine the frenzied atmosphere that must be prevailing in the state capitol.

—Each of the four remaining Dionne quintuplets will come into possession of $200,000 on their 21st birthday in May. That should make the girls distinctly eligible.

—Now comes the season for grass fires, and Chief Roy Langevin no doubt would appreciate the cooperation of local residents in preventing them.

Governor Freeman says an income tax withholding bill will insure all taxpayers paying their fair share. He seems to overlook the case of self-employed persons.

Never underestimate the power of a woman. Down in Dearing, Kansas, last week, a woman defeated her husband in a contest for a seat on the village council.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minnesota April 15, 1905

News Items

"A fair will be held in St. Hilaire on the 12th and 13th of May. Watch for particulars later.

"The weather has been disappointing the past week as it has been cold and disagreeable all week.

"Mrs. P. N. Anderson will do plain and fancy sewing and dressmaking at her home on North Water Street.

"Miss Tessie L. Hughes went up to Thief River Falls last Monday where she will work in the post office for a few weeks.

"Albert Fellman went out to his claim the other day and found that someone had stolen all the personal effects in his claim shanty.

"The ice cleared out of the river last Saturday, April 8th, the earliest date for several years. It generally goes out about a week later.

"R. J. McKercher returned Thursday from Northome with seven of his horses which have been working near there. He was five days in making the trip.

"H. D. Pettibone was up the river last Sunday looking over the log supply and states that there will not be a log shortage here this spring as there are several million feet now in the river.

"Seeding has not progressed very rapidly this week as the ground has been frozen every morning during the week. Many farmers are holding off on account of their seed which they think is not any too strong.

"Professor Onstad will come here on Thursday of each week instead of Monday as heretofore. The boys are working hard to make a success of their band. They now have twenty-four members and they all promptly meet three times a week for practice.

"The new moon which appeared several nights ago is claimed by the old residents to be a dry one. Both of its horns are straight up and the largest part is hung downward, an indication according to the home prophets that the spring will be a dry one. Farmers of the valley will sincerely hope that the prediction will come true and that rain will keep off during the next few weeks. [It was believed then that the moon with its "horns" straight up held the rain as in a cup, so that it could not fall.]

"The sawmill started up last Monday morning and the night crew commenced the same evening and everything is running with its old time smoothness.

"It is reported that the Thief River Falls sawmill is short of logs and will be compelled to shut down for a few days. They have plenty of logs in the river but they are coming in slow on account of the low water level.

"Professor Onstad speaks very highly of the band boys. He says that they have plenty of musical talent and if they continue to work as hard as they are doing now, they cannot help but make a satisfactory showing in a short time.

"There has not been a meeting as yet of the village council to consider the Hannay-Thompson tax dodging cases, but we understand that the question has been considered informally. It is probable that Mr. Hannay will be served with a notice, soon after the next meeting to remove that portion of the porch of the Hotel Markham which is now in the street. Of course the taxpayers of the village will unite with the SPECTATOR in considering it very reprehensible of the council in taking any action that would compel a man to pay his just and honest taxes.

"CROOKSTON TIMES (Monday): For the first time in the history of the Great Northern in the Red River Valley, trains were this morning routed to Thief River Falls from Crookston via the Northern Pacific through Tilden and the connecting spur, which has been in course of erection at Red Lake Falls during the winter. There is no change in the leaving time of the train at this city, but the arrival in the evening is fifteen minutes later, at 6:45. At the depot here travelers found it rather hard to get over the old arrangement of affairs and many were the queries of 'Is this the Thief River Falls train?' 'Looks as if it were going to Fosston.' Several people stood on the platform and watched the train out of sight while they waited for the train 'headed in the right direction' but in vain."

New Train Service

"The new train service inaugurated by the Great Northern last Monday does not give anywhere near the satisfaction that the old service gave. Under the new arrangement we have only one train each way a day and the people living in the northern part of the county cannot go to the county seat and return the same day as heretofore. The village of Wylie is getting decidedly the worst of it as their only service is the freight train which goes down from here every morning and returns after stopping there only ten minutes."

A Legal Fight

"The petition for the removal of the county seat to Thief River Falls which is said to contain the names of 2,006 legal voters of Red Lake county was presented to Auditor Ford last Tuesday. The auditor and County Attorney Germo spent the day looking over the petition, refusing the request of the Thief River Falls parties to give the matter immediate attention. In the meantime, Attorneys Grady and McIntyre of Red Lake Falls were at Crookston presenting to Judge Watts a complaint, that the names on the petition had been secured in an unlawful matter and by the use of whiskey, money and in other unlawful ways.

"The court signed an order granting a temporary injunction and the question will be argued before Judge Watts at Crookston on April 22nd. This action of the Red Lake Falls people in thus early bringing the question in the courts clearly indicates that they intend to await a more favorable time and we may expect a long drawn out legal fight probably lasting for years. It is not probable that the question will come before the people for at least two years and it may drag along considerable longer."

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 Years ago • April 13, 1955

North Central To Start Two Extra Flights May 1

"Effective May 1st, local patrons of North Central Airlines will note a marked improvement in service as the result of the addition to the schedule of a new early morning flight from Thief River Falls to Minneapolis and a return flight to this city late in the evening. The new flight will give patrons an opportunity to make the round trip in one day, and at the same time allows a full day's stay in the Twin Cities."

2,578 Employed in City March 15

"Employment in Thief River Falls, as of March 15, totalled 2,578, compared to 2,769 in December 1954, it was announced late last week by R. S. Eldevik, manager of the local employment office. He estimated the current number of unemployed in the city at 470, but added that this peak will recede rapidly as soon as outdoor work is resumed."

County Residents Vote Tuesday On $90,000 County Fair Bond Issue

"Pennington county voters will go to the polls next Tuesday, April 19, to make known their wishes concerning the proposed issuance of $90,000 in county bonds to finance needed improvements for the county fair grounds, including the construction of an agricultural exhibit building measuring approximately 140 by 200 feet, together with a grandstand seating 2,000 persons and a modern comfort station.

"The Pennington County Agriculture society, owner of the fair grounds, has authorized the board of directors to transfer title to the 30 acre property to the county in the event the bond issue is approved.

"Members of the fair board, who have attended numerous meetings to familiarize citizens with the question to be voted on, report having encountered no organized resistance to the proposal. Albert Koop has met with a dozen rural groups, and Jim Parkins, with nearly 20 organizations in Thief River Falls.

"The fair board has pointed out that the profits of an annual fair are inadequate to finance the needed improvements. It states that the grandstand was badly damaged in a windstorm last summer and must be replaced, and the state board of health is demanding the installation of modern toilet facilities."

14 Members of School Faculty Not To Return

"A total of 14 members of the school faculty have not signed contracts to return next fall, the Thief River Falls board of education was informed at its April session, Monday evening. The number of those not returning is considerably below last year's total of 22.

"Two of the 14 resignations of faculty members had been accepted previously, including Birdell Randorf, Northrop elementary teacher. Of the remaining 12, four are high school teachers, including Joan Fay, home economics; Mrs. Sylvia Hedlund, commercial; Marvel K. Williams, commercial; and Ruth Thron, music.

"Grade school teachers who do not plan to return include Ruth M. Mattson, Angeline Vraa, Doris E. Peterson, and Rose L. Lund, all from Knox school; Marilyn K. Thron, Barbara P. Norness, and Leah B. Balk, Northrop school; and Marion E. Dahl, Washington school."

Mercury Soars to 77 Here Sunday; Ice Out of Pool

"After having registered 20 below zero only two weeks previously, the mercury soared Sunday to a summery 77, followed by a 76 Monday afternoon. As a result of the unseasonable warmth the ice went out of the river pool in the vicinity of the local bridges on April 10th, the average date for this occurrence in past years. If no rain falls in the meantime, field work is expected to become general in this [illegible] week.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

The City of Viking has secured funding under Title 1 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development.

The funds, hereinafter referred to as SCDP, will be utilized to rehabilitate owner occupied housing and construct a sanitary sewer system. The City of Viking is hereby soliciting for proposals from interested firms in implementing the SCDP program.

Components

The successful offerer will perform specific implementative and administrative tasks related to the carrying out of the SCDP program. The job responsibilities will include all activities necessary to successfully comply with the requirements of the SCDP program and the State of Minnesota as they pertain to the SCDP program.

Timing/Work Schedule

A. The Proposal must be received by 4:00 PM April 26, 2005 by the city clerk.

B. An administrative contract will be considered for award by the city council on May 2nd, 2005.

C. Provide administrative services as required by the SCDP program.

Scope of Services

1. Assist the City in designing and establishing a housing Rehabilitation program which meets the specific requirements of the SCDP program.

2. Implementation of all activities outlined in the approved application in a manner which is consistent with the methods outlined in the approved application.

3. Assist the City in meeting all compliance requirements in a manner which is consistent with the requirements outlined in the various applicable management circulars.

Save money on your tax refund

Many elderly or low-income families are paying high fees and interest charges for fast (two-day) refund payment service. What many taxpayers do not know is they could receive their returns within 10 days from the IRS without this service. These fast refunds are also known as Refund Anticipation Loans (RALs), and are most often issued in the poorest neighborhoods across the state.

A new report recently released by Children's Defense Fund Minnesota finds an increase in the use of these loans. Nearly 5,000 more Minnesotan families applied for a RALs in 2003 compared to 2002. The use of these loans is most often used for low-income wage earners who are filing for their Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). Unfortunately, some tax preparers are marketing these unnecessary RALs to working families who are struggling to make ends meet. These loans have an extremely high average annual percentage rate (APR) of 230 percent.

$23.6 million siphoned away from families.

During the 2003 tax season, an estimated $23.6 million from the EITC was siphoned away from the intended Minnesota families to pay for fees and finance charges. "Some tax preparers are targeting financially vulnerable families with these loans and making a very large profit," said Children's Defense Fund Minnesota Tax Outreach Director Beth Haney. "It's simply immoral for any business to profit from a federally funded anti-poverty tool, such as the EITC."

Free Tax Assistance is Available in Northwest Minnesota

There are several volunteer tax preparation services helping thousands of families across the country claim —and keep—their tax credits and refunds this tax season. In northwest Minnesota, we have the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) and the AARP Minnesota programs. These programs provide trained volunteers to assist low-income families with tax preparation and to receive the tax refunds they have earned. Two sites in NW Minnesota that provide these free services are:

- Crookston (AARP): Golden Link Center; call 218-281-3072 for an appointment. Hours: Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
- Thief River Falls (VITA): Northland Community & Technical College, Room 605; Tuesday evenings, walk-in service. For further information, call: 681-0909.

To find other Minnesota sites with free tax assistance, call First Call for Help at 211 or dial 1-800-543-7709.

Get a free copy of your credit report

Consumers in the Midwest are now able to obtain a free copy of their credit report each year from all three major U.S. credit bureaus: Equifax, Experian and TransUnion. While consumers may not have thought much about their credit reports before, they should think again.

A credit report can affect a person's ability to secure a loan; use a service, such as from an orthodontist; or land a job. A credit report may also be used to determine the rate of interest a person is charged on a loan, which could mean thousands of dollars in savings.

"Checking your credit report may not seem like a high priority in our lives, but it really should be," said Jody Anderson, director of financial and housing counseling for Lutheran Social Service Financial Counseling Service. "We need a positive credit history to secure loans and get the best interest rates possible. More employers are also looking at credit reports to gauge a prospective employee's reliability or skill level in money management for jobs in finance, for example."

Checking annual credit reports can also help a person determine whether he or she needs to develop a get-well plan to improve a credit score or repair any credit problems, Anderson said. "You don't want to be surprised when you go to your bank for a loan and are turned down because of poor credit history or a low credit score."

Credit reports are divided into four categories: 1) personal identification information; 2) credit history; 3) public records, including bankruptcies and judgments); and 4) inquiries into a credit report by banks and other financial institutions or prospective employers, who may want to use the information to make a hiring decision.

Anderson said that credit reports almost always have errors in them and, for that reason alone, should be reviewed and updated each year. Checking credit reports can also help a person spot identity theft – or whether credit cards or other personal information has been stolen and used without a person's knowledge.

Lenders will check credit scores using a service like the Fair Isaacs Corporation (FICO), which ranks credit scores from 300 to 850. Lenders consider a person a better credit risk when his or her score is high. A credit score is calculated using information in a credit report.

While checking one credit report is generally sufficient before applying for a small loan, accessing a copy of a credit report from all three of the major credit bureaus is especially important if a person is planning on buying a home or wants to secure a major loan for some other purpose.

The new free credit report service is only accessible through one central Web site, toll-free number or mailing address. To receive a credit report:

- Online, go to www.annualcreditreport.com
- By phone, call 1-877-322-8228.
- By mail, complete the Annual Credit Report Request Form (found at www.ftc.gov/credit) and mail it to Annual Credit Report Request Service, P.O. Box 105281, Atlanta, GA 30348-5281.

A person can choose to get a copy of all three credit reports at the same time or by staggering them. By accessing all credit reports at the same time, a person can compare them and check for errors. By getting copies of credit reports at different times throughout the year, a person can check to see if any changes he or she has made have been rectified on the credit reports.

Worried about a friend?

Use this questionnaire to review your friend's drinking behavior. Although the questions refer to a friend's drinking, they can apply to a family member.

How Can I Recognize Signs of an Alcohol Problem in Someone I care about?

Please check all that apply:

- ☐ Drinking to calm nerves, forget worries or boost a sad mood
- ☐ Guilt about drinking
- ☐ Unsuccessful attempts to cut down or stop drinking
- ☐ Causing harm to oneself or someone else as a result of drinking
- ☐ Drinking increasingly greater amounts to achieve desired affect
- ☐ Feeling irritable, resentful or unreasonable when not drinking
- ☐ Medical, social, family or financial problems caused by drinking
- ☐ Spending a great deal of time getting and drinking alcohol
- ☐ Drinking in risky situations such as before driving.

Updated by Richard Saitz, MD, MPH

Questionnaire Interpretation

If you checked any of the boxes above, please consider talking with a professional today!
Help is available for both you and your friend.

What to do if you think a friend may have an alcohol problem?

- Let your friend know that risky drinking including binge drinking, can lead to more severe alcohol problems including alcohol dependence (alcoholism) as well as injuries and unwanted/unprotected sex.
- Seek out resources.
- Use the resources. Do what you can to encourage your friend to use the resources you identify but remember the only person you can changes is yourself.
- Don't make excuses for your friend's behavior. Many people try to protect a friend from the consequences of his or her actions by making excuses to others. Making excuses allows your friend to avoid changing for the better.
- Choose a good time to talk with your friend, such as soon after an alcohol related problem occurred. Choose a time when he or she is sober.
- Be specific. Tell the friend that you are concerned about his or her drinking and want to be supportive in getting help. Back up your concern with examples of the ways in which his or her drinking has caused problems for both of you, including the most recent incident.
- Keep in mind that you are not alone. There are many people and resources that can support your effort to help a friend. Seek them out.

WHERE CAN YOU GO FOR HELP?

Alcoholism is a treatable disease. Help is available from Alcoholics Anonymous, Al-Anon, Alateen and at many hospitals. Ask your clergyman, school counselor or local law enforcement officer for information and assistance.

Minnesota workers have tax credits available to help them

Tax credits are available for Minnesota working families that will help them pay for items on their "wish" list. This "wish list" may include paying off out-of-pocket health care costs, large utility bills or having an emergency fund. It might even be for a down-payment on a house or a renter's deposit on a safer place to live.

More than 242,500 Minnesota families and individuals claimed the federal Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) last year. The average Minnesota EITC claim in 2004 was worth $1,559. Add to that the Minnesota Working Family Tax Credit (WFTC) which those eligible for EITC may claim as well. Last year's average combined EITC & WFTC was over $2,000.

Workers may be eligible for the EITC/WFTC if they have:

- One child and family income was less than $[illegible]
- Two or more children and family income was less than $35,458
- No children, but were ages 25-26 and income was less than $12,490.

Both the EITC and WFTC can reduce taxes owed to zero, and may result in a refund. Works can get money from the credits even if they don't earn enough to owe any income taxes.

Working families may also be eligible for the:

- Child Tax Credit (federal)
- Child and Dependent Care Credits (federal and Minnesota)
- Hope and Lifetime Learning Credits for college tuition (federal)
- Retirement Saving Contribution Credit (federal)
- Minnesota K-12 Education Credit and Subtraction (Minnesota)
- Property Tax Refund for [illegible] (Minnesota)

Eligibility guidelines and income limits vary across the different credits. Keep in mind that eligible taxpayers can file three years back for unclaimed tax credits except for a one year limit on the property tax refund.

From now until April 15, trained volunteer tax help is available throughout Minnesota to help people complete tax forms and the service is free. Some local sites are: Thief River Falls at Northland Community and Technical College, Room 608, Tuesday evenings - walk-in service; call 218-[illegible] for further information. Crookston at the Golden Link Center, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., by appointment - call 218-281-3072. To find sites near you call First Call for Help at 2-1-1 or dial 1-[illegible].

Court Sentences John Russell Heden

Heden sentenced to life without parole

"Just that I'm very, very sorry for what happened." -John Heden

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

An Oklee man was sentenced Monday on a murder charge in the 2004 death of his 3-month-old daughter.

John Russell Heden, 33, was sentenced to life imprisonment without the possibility of parole. Heden had been convicted of three counts of felony murder – first degree murder (criminal sexual conduct), first degree murder (child abuse), and second degree murder in the death of his 3-month-old daughter, Rose.

However, Judge Dennis Murphy sentenced Heden on the first degree murder (criminal sexual conduct) charge. Given that the other offenses were committed during the same course of events, Murphy noted he was only sentencing Heden on that charge. (The other charge of first degree murder carried a maximum penalty of life imprisonment as well. The second degree murder charge carried a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison.)

After sentencing, Heden was committed to the commissioner of corrections in St. Cloud.

Assistant Pennington County Attorney Al Rogalla had requested the life imprisonment sentence from Murphy. He cited 11 reasons why Heden should be sentenced to life imprisonment without the possibility of parole. Rogalla noted those reasons were only some of the reasons why Heden should receive that sentence.

"[Rose] was helpless, vulnerable and dependent on this defendant for her basic needs," said Rogalla. "He responded by sexually penetrating and shaking her."

Noting that Heden did the acts on his daughter, Rogalla added, "If this defendant is willing to do these acts, there would be less inhibition to do these things to a stranger's baby."

Saying the sentence would provide closure and healing, Rogalla said, "This sentence will allow the community to feel that their children and grandchildren are safe."

Rogalla also referred to Heden's prior conviction for third degree criminal sexual conduct in Goodridge. In 1997, Heden was convicted of having sex with a juvenile female, who was between the ages of 13 and 16, according to Pennington County court documents. A stay of imposition was granted for that misdemeanor offense, and Heden served two years of supervised probation.

Kristin Hanson, one of two public defenders who represented Heden, noted Heden was cooperative with authorities and "very remorseful."

When Murphy asked Heden whether he had anything he wanted to say, Heden said, "Just that I'm very, very sorry for what happened."

Seven men and five women found Heden guilty of the three counts of murder. They deliberated three-and-a-half hours April 4 after hearing testimony since March 25.

Two weeks after jury deliberations, approximately 35 people, including Heden's parents and other relatives, attended Heden's sentencing at the Pennington County Courthouse. Heden's neighbors Doug and Heidi Horachek and three Goodridge first responders were also in the courtroom during sentencing. They were among the first people on the scene March 1, 2004 after Heden called 911 to report his daughter was not breathing.

During the trial, Rose Heden's mother, Shawna Heden, had testified as a prosecution witness. She was not in attendance at sentencing. Rogalla said Shawna Heden was given the opportunity to read a victim impact statement. However, she decided not to do so.

People attending John Heden's sentencing were searched for weapons with a metal detector wand. Purses were also searched.

After John Heden was sentenced, a group of his relatives and first responders hugged and shed tears in the hallway outside the courtroom.

AnneMarie Heden, the mother of John Heden, noted her son was remorseful "all the way through." She and Hanson noted John Heden wishes he could take back what happened that day.

Hanson said it has been a long road for the Heden family.

Referring to Hanson as the family's rock of Gibraltar, AnneMarie Heden said, "We did our best."

TRF women share a kidney

They are strangers no more

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Kay Burkel has a new body part. It's about 20 years younger than the rest of her.

Burkel, who had been awaiting a kidney transplant, received a new kidney March 15 from Doretta Hesse, someone she recently met.

Even though both women are Thief River Falls residents, they didn't know each other until Hesse decided to part with one of her kidneys and donate it to Burkel.

Hesse likened her actions to what someone would do if he or she saw another person drowning. "I think if someone walked by a river and someone was drowning, you'd stop to help," said Hesse, who noted it would be more likely for someone to die trying to save someone else from drowning in a river as opposed to donating a kidney.

Burkel is appreciative of Hesse's willingness to help her. "She's an angel," said Burkel. "She doesn't have wings yet."

The end of a journey

Both women entered MeritCare Hospital in Fargo, N.D., on March 15. Hesse left with one less kidney, and Burkel gained a kidney.

Hesse lost a lot of blood during the surgery. She was released from the hospital on March 20.

Burkel, the kidney recipient, was hospitalized for eight days. After her surgery, she stayed at a hotel near the hospital in order for her doctors to monitor her new kidney and medications. Burkel returned home April 8.

How it all began: The quest for a kidney

Burkel's quest for a new kidney began last year. She had been suffering from kidney failure, a possible side effect of the medications, including Celebrex and Vioxx, that she was taking. She was diagnosed with the illness in 2004. Her husband, Lowell, and oldest son, Rob, were tested and were not matches. Her other son, Mike, is developmentally disabled and was not tested. None of her other family members were able to give her a kidney.

They're strangers no more. Thief River Falls resident Doretta Hesse (standing) recently donated one of her kidneys to Thief River Falls resident Kay Burkel. The two women met a month before their transplant surgeries and after Hesse found she was a match for Burkel, who was suffering from kidney failure. "Ike," also pictured, is happy his mom received a new kidney.

LHS Prom April 30

After Prom and Senior Prom parties to follow

Lincoln High School's prom will be on Saturday, April 30, in Thief River Falls. This year's theme is "So This Is Love."

Of particular note for parents, families and friends is that tickets for the grand march are for reserved seats in the newly remodeled auditorium. Reserved ticket sales began on Monday, April 18, and can be purchased at Kezar Music in Thief River Falls for $3 per person from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Any remaining tickets will be available at the door.

The 2005 Grand March will begin at 7:30 p.m. The doors open at 6:30 p.m. The public is asked to use the main door entrance only. Seating for individuals with disabilities is available upon request. Students attending the prom are asked to use the gym doors.

The prom dance featuring the band "Chasing Daylight," begins at 9 p.m. in the new gym and will conclude at midnight.

After Prom Party

Elks Lodge 1308 is once again hosting an After-Prom-party for all Lincoln High School juniors, seniors and their guests. This year, the event will take place on the first floor of the Elks building, formerly Lopeka's Eatery and Diamonds and Designs, on Saturday, April 30 after the prom. The doors will open at midnight, and the party will go on until 4 a.m. on May 1. Students must be at the party by 1 a.m. in order to qualify for the grand prizes that will be awarded at the end of the night. Once students enter the party, they must stay. If they leave, they will not be allowed back in and will not be eligible for prizes.

The party is free because of generous contributions by businesses, parents, friends and other community supporters, including Elks Lodge B.P.O.E. 1308. There will be a disc jockey, karaoke provided by Peg Mehlkens, many games, great prizes to win, and lots of food. This is a safe and entertaining way for students to enjoy their prom night.

Students need to sign up for the After Prom party at the school by noon on Friday, April 29.

Senior Prom

Lincoln High School chapter of the Key Club is once again sponsoring the Senior Citizen Prom. Open to the public, the event will take place in the high school gym on Sunday, May 1, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

Discussions continue about Greenwood Street bridge

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

It may be years in the making, but Thief River Falls City Council members are discussing a potential Greenwood Street bridge, related Greenwood Street improvements and a Greenwood Street railroad crossing.

For many years, city leaders have planned to construct Greenwood Street bridge and also connect Greenwood Street to Pennington Avenue. If Greenwood Street intersected Pennington Avenue, a railroad crossing may be needed east of that intersection.

At the April 12 council meeting, council member Glen Kajewski asked about the potential for a railroad underpass in that area.

"Nothing hasn't really been decided yet," replied Public Works Director Ron Lindberg, who noted city leaders have options of an at-grade crossing or a more expensive alternative of an underpass.

In March, city leaders learned Thief River Falls has been granted $577,500 in federal funds for the estimated $2 million Greenwood Street bridge. Municipal State Aid will fund the remainder of the bridge project.

Bridge construction may begin in 2008. It is expected that the bridge would be constructed by the end of 2009. However, city leaders have been told the project may begin earlier if federal funding is available in

County Board considers its highway department's plans

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

The Pennington County Board of Commissioners approved the Pennington County Highway Department's five year construction plan during the board's April 12 meeting. Pennington County Engineer Mike Flaagen presented the Highway Department's five year plan during a closed portion of the meeting.

Road work for 2005 includes shoulder widening on CSAH 27, a north-south highway in Reiner, Star and Hickory Townships; crack sealing and potentially a second shouldering job on CSAH 7 from highway 59 (Smiley Township) to highway 22 (Kratka Township).

Plans for 2006 include regrading of CSAH 6 (section located in Kratka and Highlanding townships), additional shoulder widening of CSAH 27 and reconstruction of CSAH 28 in Reiner Township, totalling $4.4 million. CSAH 27 and 28 are due to receive $2.3 million federal funding in 2006.

Highway improvements in 2007 are expected to total $1.8 million. Projects include overlay to 10-ton for highways 7, 12 and 17 at an estimated cost of $770,000; and grading of a different portion of CSAH 17, $400,000.

Unpaved sections of CSAH 17 north of Thief River Falls and Dewey Ave. are expected to be paved in 2008, costing an estimated

Law enforcement receives reports of burglaries

Burglary: On April 16 at 9:26 a.m., the sheriff's department received a report of a burglary at Les's Sanitation/Omega Corporation. A cash register had been pried open, and approximately $1,272 was taken. The report did not include a damage amount for the cash register. According to a deputy sheriff, Les's staff wanted it known that the business will now no longer have cash at the business after hours. The incident remains under investigation.

Burglary: On April 9 at 1:25 p.m., police received a report of a burglary in the 700 block of Parnham St. Individuals moved from a home on April 2 and returned a week later to discover graffiti had been sprayed on walls. Someone had also made a three-inch by four-inch hole in a bedroom wall. Storm windows were also broken. Damage was estimated at a total of $275. A queen-size mattress, box spring and frame were stolen. The theft loss is estimated at $400. According to the report, items were "tossed over" as well. The incident remains under investigation.

Property damage: On April 16 at 10:11 a.m., police received a report of property damage at Greendale Manor. Gang symbols, including Roman numerals, were spray-painted on mailboxes. The damage amount was not known. According to the report, the graffiti was similar to graffiti found April 9 at a residence in the 700 block of Parnham St. The incident remains under investigation.

Terroristic threats, fifth degree assault and possession of a small amount of marijuana: On April 12 at 3:30 p.m., police received a report of an assault. According to the man reporting the alleged assault, on the evening prior to the report to police, he had looked at a mobile home with the possibility of renting it. As he walked away, he was allegedly approached near Nora Street and enticed into a vehicle occupied by three people. He and one of those people, Kenneth James Goulet, 38, Thief River Falls, allegedly had a conversation about the mobile home. The criminal complaint alleges Goulet struck the man in the face with his fist. Goulet then allegedly kicked the man out of the slow-moving vehicle, and he allegedly told the man that if he didn't pay Goulet $100 by the first of the month, Goulet would kill the man. The man allegedly had a cut and had blood on his glasses when he reported the crime. The complaint alleges Goulet has assaulted the man in the past. Goulet was later located in the 500 block of Tonder St. Prior to his incarceration, a pat-down search was conducted. A small amount of marijuana was allegedly found on him. Goulet has been charged with terroristic threats, fifth degree assault and possession of a small amount of marijuana.

Accident: On April 11 at 10:40 a.m., police received a report of an accident at the intersection of Pennington Avenue South and Parkview Street. A 1996 Chevy Suburban driven by Loren Dale Voecks of Thief River Falls and a 1995 Chevy Blazer driven by Skip Richard Bergeson of Thief River Falls collided. At the time of the accident, both drivers were southbound on Pennington Avenue South. According to the report, Voecks slowed to turn right onto Parkview Street and Bergeson tried to slow down, but his vehicle rear-ended the Voecks vehicle. Bergeson's vehicle sustained $1,000 in damage, and Voecks' vehicle sustained $500 in damage.

Property damage: On April 11 at 10:30 p.m., police received a report of property damage in the 300 block of State Ave. S. According to the report, someone threw rocks the size of golf balls through garage windows. Damage was estimated at $200. The incident remains under investigation.

Accident, open bottle, failure to notify police of a motor vehicle accident in which someone has been injured and no insurance: On April 12 at 3:55 p.m., police received a report of an accident at the intersection of Fifth Street and Duluth Avenue. At the time of the accident, Vernon Lee Walseth of Thief River Falls was allegedly driving a 1996 Crown Victoria eastbound on Fifth Street. He allegedly turned right onto Duluth Avenue. The vehicle spun out of control and hit a tree. Walseth allegedly fled the scene on foot and was found about an hour later in Oslo. The report indicated Walseth allegedly had a three-inch cut above his eye, but he refused medical treatment. Walseth has charges pending for open bottle, failure to notify police of a motor vehicle accident in which someone has suffered an injury and no insurance. The vehicle sustained $4,000 in damage. The accident remains under investigation.

Terroristic threats: On April 12 at 4:17 p.m., police received a report of terroristic threats in Thief River Falls. Using a cell phone, Cedric Antonio Smith, 19, Thief River Falls, allegedly left a threatening message on a female individual's answering machine. Smith has charges pending for terroristic threats.

Hit and run accident: On April 13 at 1:19 p.m., police received a report of a hit and run accident in the Evergreen Eating Emporium parking lot. A 1999 Oldsmobile Cutlass owned by Stephanie Lynn Erickson of Roseau sustained $700 in damage. The incident remains under investigation.

Shoplifting: On April 13 at 8:11 p.m., police received a report of shoplifting at Pamida. Cheryl Lynn Peterson, 35, Thief River Falls, allegedly stole three pairs of jean shorts and a Playstation game. The items were recovered. Peterson has been cited for shoplifting.

Burglary: On April 15 at 2:42 p.m., police received a report of a burglary in the 400 block of Duluth Ave. N. A Craftsman cordless tool kit was stolen from a shed. The theft loss is estimated at $220. The incident remains under investigation.

First degree driving while intoxicated and driving after cancellation – inimical to public safety: On April 15 at 8:37 p.m., police received a report that a person who allegedly had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath had driven a vehicle away from Petro Pumper. The vehicle was stopped in the 17000 block of 130th Ave. N.E. Steven Ray Carlson, 46, Thief River Falls, has charges pending for first degree driving while intoxicated and driving after cancellation – inimical to public safety.

Fifth degree domestic assault: On April 16 at 1:12 a.m., the sheriff's department received a report of an assault in the 17000 block of 110th Ave. N.W. Shane Curtis Dahlstrom, 29, Thief River Falls, allegedly hit and kicked a woman. He also allegedly banged the woman's head on the ground. The report alleges the woman had bruises on her face and elbow. Dahlstrom was cited for fifth degree domestic assault.

Underage drinking and driving, window tint and no proof of insurance: While on patrol April 17 at 2:19 p.m., a deputy sheriff allegedly observed a driver who had a difficult time seeing outside of a vehicle caked in thick mud. The vehicle was stopped near the intersection of Highway 59 and Nelson Drive. Alex Lee McIntyre, 18, Thief River Falls, was cited for underage drinking and driving, window tint and no proof of insurance.

If readers have any information about the aforementioned crimes or offenses, they are urged to contact the Law Enforcement Center at 681-6161.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

NightCAP DWI arrests on pace for record year

Impaired drivers in Minnesota are being arrested in droves by law enforcement officers participating in Operation NightCAP (nighttime concentrated alcohol patrol). Since October, the state's cornerstone DWI enforcement program has generated 734 impaired driving arrests – on pace to surpass the DWI arrest record set last year.

Year-to-date, NightCAP officers have also issued 5,300 traffic citations; 10,400 warnings and stopped more than 11,500 vehicles for traffic- and equipment-related offenses. In 2004, NightCAP enforcement efforts set program records with 1,356 impaired driving arrests; 11,515 traffic violations; 17,206 warnings; and 21,776 vehicle stops.

NightCAP combines the Minnesota State Patrol, county sheriffs' offices and local police departments to saturate specific roadways where impaired driving is likely. NightCAP, a federally funded program, began its 2005 operations at the start of the federal fiscal year, Oct. 1, 2004.

"These proactive enforcement efforts make Minnesota's roadways safer," said Col. Steve Mengelkoch, State Patrol chief. "These patrols will continue throughout the summer – the deadliest time for impaired driving."

NightCAP saturations target the 14 Minnesota counties with the highest incidence of alcohol-related fatalities as well as the seven-county metro region and other counties, including Pennington County. These efforts run unannounced to the public, but results from each effort are publicized. Nearly 300 NightCAP saturations will occur this year.

In Pennington County, NightCAP saturations led to five DWI arrests, 47 citations, 159 warnings and 153 vehicle stops.

Last year, traffic crashes killed 566 people on Minnesota's roadways. Historically, nearly 40 percent of all fatal traffic crashes are alcohol-related.

Body of missing Crookston teen found Saturday

The body of a rural Crookston teen, who was missing for four days, was found Saturday near Grand Rapids.

The body of Matthew Magsam, 15, was found along with the 1997 Ford Expedition he was last seen driving.

The Itasca County Sheriff's Department investigated and determined foul play was not involved, according to the Polk County Sheriff's Department. In a press release, the Polk County Sheriff's Department noted no further information will be released.

Magsam had been missing for four days. He was last seen April 12 at approximately 3:45 p.m. driving the Ford Expedition in the Crookston High School parking lot.

"Living Above The Line: Use Respect - Best Respectful" is the Franklin Middle School theme. Shane Zutz, assistant principal at Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls, has been named the Northern Division Assistant Principal of the Year by the Minnesota Association of Secondary School Principals (MASSP).

Shane Zutz named MASSP Secondary Principal of the Year

Minnesota Association of Secondary School Principals (MASSP) has named Franklin Middle School Assistant Principal Shane Zutz as its northern district Assistant Principal of the Year.

MASSP promotes and conducts activities that advance the effectiveness of middle level and high school administrators which support their pursuit of quality education for youth. The MASSP also advocates the continued improvement of conditions under which students learn and grow to adulthood, and it provides for a cooperative relationship with the National Association of Secondary School Principals and other local, state and national educational associations.

Zutz has been with School District 564 in Thief River Falls for seven years, and has served as the assistant principal at Franklin Middle School for the past four years. He is a 1993 graduate of Lincoln High School, and a graduate of Northland College in Thief River Falls, Bemidji State University and Mankato State University.

As Assistant Principal of the Year, his name is now advanced for Minnesota Secondary Principal of the Year.

Zutz said he appreciates the support he has received from the community and School District staff.

It's easy to work in a community, he said, where you can walk into a post office and they know you by name. And, it's easy to work in a school in Thief River Falls because "parents care about you and care about working with you." He also said the "staff has been outstanding in its support during this time of significant change in education."

Last year, Franklin Middle School Principal Bob Wayne was named Northern Division Principal of the Year.

SON Granlund Lodge to meet

The Sons of Norway, Granlund Lodge No. 240, will meet on Thursday, April 21, at the Embassy Community Center in Fosston.

Refreshments will be served by lodge members president, Helen Sordahl and lodge social chairperson, Mae Johnnessohn.

Distracted driving program makes teens pay attention to paying attention

Minnesota high school teachers are adding two "Ds" – distracted driving – to the three "Rs" of education to address the leading cause of death for Minnesota teens. From 1999 through 2003, traffic crashes accounted for 305 teen fatalities – and distracted driving was cited as a major contributing factor.

As a result, high school teachers and students across the state are using "Teens Behind the Wheel," an educational kit that includes an easy-to-use teacher lesson plan, class activities and supporting resources. "Teens" is anchored by a video composed of a dramatic public service announcement and a teen-targeted educational segment.

Led by the Minnesota Wireless Foundation (MWF), "Teens" was produced in partnership with AAA Minnesota/Iowa, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety and the Minnesota Safety Council.

Since the kit's January launch, more than 200 kits have been ordered and implemented by high schools across the state.

"While it's important for students to pay attention in class, it's even more critical when they're behind the wheel," said Kathy Swanson, director of the Minnesota Office of Traffic Safety. "With the support of teachers, we can educate teens to avoid future traffic tragedies."

The most common teen driving distractions are talking to passengers, eating or drinking, adjusting vehicle controls, and cell phone use. Speeding and not wearing seat belts are other primary factors in fatal and serious injury crashes. Of the 305 teen drivers killed in the last five years, 74 percent were not belted. Each year, one in 10 licensed Minnesota teen drivers are in a traffic crash.

"There's learning how to drive, and then there's learning to stay focused while driving," said Robert Eddy, MWF president. "This program provides a necessary extension to driver's education."

"Teens Behind the Wheel" is intended for use in high schools and can be ordered at no charge at www.dps.state.mn.us/ots, click on the link in the right column under "Featured Stories."

April 18-22 is Severe Weather Awareness Week

Severe Weather Awareness Week is being commemorated this week, April 18-22. The campaign educates citizens, schools, hospitals, nursing homes and businesses on the need to plan for the possibility of severe weather that may occur during the course of the year.

On Thursday, a simulated statewide tornado watch will be issued at 9 a.m., and statewide tornado drills will be conducted at 1:45 p.m. Voluntary tornado drills also will be held at 6:55 p.m. in the following local counties: Beltrami, Polk and Roseau.

In Pennington County, law enforcement will sound civil defense sirens in Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Goodridge at 1:45 p.m. The Thief River Falls fire chiefs will sound their outdoor warning systems as well. Sirens should sound for one minute.

A tornado or severe thunderstorm warning means a tornado or severe thunderstorm has been reported or is indicated by weather radar. Warnings are issued for counties and/or communities. Warning information includes the tornado's location, direction and speed. If the warning is for your area, you must take shelter immediately.

"There is no pattern, geographically or time-wise [for tornadoes]," said Barb Fonkert of the Minnesota Department of Homeland Security and Emergency Management (HSEM). "You may not have experienced a tornado for 20 years, but it could happen tomorrow."

According to the National Weather Service, every Minnesota county has experienced tornadoes at some time during the past 53 years.

The following information was taken directly from the HSEM Web site (www.hsem.state.mn.us).

Warnings are issued when severe weather has been reported and is imminent. Sirens are meant to warn those who are outdoors. If you hear a siren, turn on a radio or TV to hear safety information. Seek shelter immediately.

What to do if a tornado warning has been issued – Go to a basement, under a table or other sturdy furniture; go into a stairwell or small interior room on the lowest floor of a home. Stay away from windows. Abandon mobile homes or vehicles as quickly as possible and seek a permanent structure or sturdy shelter. If there is no time to get to shelter, lie flat in the nearest ditch or depression with your hands covering your head.

Severe thunderstorms

Thunderstorms are typically 15 miles in diameter and last for 20 minutes. Severe thunderstorms produce large hail as well as winds of at least 58 miles per hour and sometimes winds exceeding 100 miles per hour that produce tornado-like damage.

Lightning

Lightning kills more people than tornadoes. Do not use a telephone or electrical appliances while it is lightning. If you are caught outside in an open area while it is lightning, crouch down immediately. Put your hands on your knees, but don't lie down on the ground. Avoid seeking shelter beneath lone trees.

Hail

The common diameter of hail is pea size. In extreme cases, hail can be as large as a grapefruit. Large hail falling at speeds faster than 100 miles per hour have been known to kill people.

Flash flooding

A thunderstorm that produces large amounts of rain in a short period of time may cause flash floods. Two feet of running water is enough to carry away most vehicles. Many deaths occur when people purposely drive around barricades indicating that the road is washed out ahead.

More information

A Severe Weather Awareness Week Web site hosted by HSEM provides safety information on weather watches and warnings, thunderstorms, lightning, hail, flash flooding, tornadoes and heat waves. The site includes links to downloadable materials for children and educators. Web users can access the site from the Minnesota Department of Public Safety homepage at www.dps.state.mn.us.

AFTER

The sun comes up,
but it must also go down.
We see a child smile,
but we also see a frown.
We see the flowers bloom,
but after, watch them fade.
for how else are other ones made?
We see the sky so clearly blue,
but after, watch the clouds form too.
We must remember
there's always the rainbow
after it rains, and there's always an answer to all life's pains.
There's always something to learn in everything that goes bad;
there's always a time to be happy,
after you've been sad.

Challenger
2005
Carnival Goal Playground Equipment

Challenger Elementary School in Thief River Falls will host its Fifth Annual Carnival from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 7. Funds raised during the carnival will be used to help defray the cost of a project that will replace some playground equipment at the school. Above are some Challenger Elementary School students next to a display of the proposed playground equipment, and a list of individuals and businesses who have already made donations to the project. Pictured above are Jade Dearinger, Travis Aune, Mattlyn Erickson, and Brady Hoffard.

Challenger School Carnival set for May 7

Challenger Elementary School Parents Teachers and Students in Partnership (PTSP) organization is busy working on preparations for the Fifth Annual Challenger Elementary School Carnival to be on Saturday, May 7, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"We are very thankful for the important role our local businesses, school staff, and community members play in making our carnival a success each year!" said Maryfran Twistol, Volunteer Coordinator at Challenger.

Funds raised this year at the carnival will go to pay for playground equipment that must be replaced. Estimated cost of the playground equipment for Challenger is about $55,000. All funds to pay for this equipment will be obtained through donations and fund raising.

Twistol noted that on display at the school is an artist's concept of the playground equipment the school hopes to install with funds raised, and a listing of the businesses that have donated to date.

Donations are still being accepted for the carnival and playground equipment. Questions and donations can be directed to Maryfran Twistol at 218-681-2345, extension 718.

The carnival, held at the school, has two main goals: good old fashioned family fun in a safe environment; and raising funds to benefit projects at Challenger.

The carnival consists of games, such as basketball shoot, BINGO, football toss, volleyball, a general store, preschool games, dunking tank, and many more! You can also bid on items donated by businesses, community members, and Challenger staff available at the silent auction. Good carnival food, including pizza, cotton candy, popcorn, hot-dogs, and pop will be available the entire day.

All area residents are welcome to come out and join in the family fun at the Challenger Carnival on Saturday, May 7, 2005, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tickets for the carnival may be purchased at the door on Saturday. Children must be accompanied by adults.

"Working together, we will make great things happen," said Twistol.

Willis participates in young bassists conference

Ben Willis, 17, of Thief River Falls, recently participated in a two-day conference for young bassists in Madison, Wis., on March 25 and 26.

This was the 12th annual conference, sponsored by the Richard Davis Foundation for Young Bassists Inc. Richard Davis, professor of bass at the UW-Madison, is an internationally acclaimed performing and recording artist.

The students, ages 10-18, from seven states, participated in master classes and clinics, worked in classical and jazz ensembles, learned famous bass lines from symphonic classics and performed publicly in recitals. The conference ended with a student concert that included an 80-person youth bass orchestra. There was a session on parenting young bassists, sibling band performances and a clinician recital. Everyone took part in a question and answer session with the 17 master bass clinicians who shared their insights as teachers and performers on subjects that included both European classical and jazz worlds of music.

"This conference gives bassists the opportunity to play with peers and master performers and helps them gain confidence in their ability," Davis said.

Willis studies locally with Derek Drase of Lincoln High School and Valdin Buschmeier of Crookston. His parents are Kimberly Ditz and David Willis of Thief River Falls.

The Times' Wedding and Engagement Announcement Policy

When submitting an announcement, please be advised of our policy regarding weddings and engagements:

• Engagement announcements should be submitted at least 30 days prior to the wedding date.

Wedding write-ups will be published as follows:

• If the wedding took place within six weeks from date of receipt at The Times office, a detailed write-up will be published from information provided, along with a picture, if submitted.

• If the wedding took place from six to 12 weeks before submission to The Times, we will run a brief social announcement or a picture with a short caption stating names of the bride and groom, names and addresses of parents, date and place of wedding and where the couple is residing.

• If the wedding took place from three to six months before submission to The Times, we will run a brief story or short caption under a picture announcing when the wedding took place.

• There will be no publication of weddings after six months have elapsed.

Every effort will be made to publish the wedding write-up within two issues of receipt. Forms are available at The Times office to help in organizing information regarding weddings and engagements.

What is it?

There are many unique and different tools used on farms. This one will be on display at the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village this summer when the Smithsonian Traveling Exhibit "Barn Again! Celebrating an American Icon" will be at the Village. Guess what this tool was used for.

Answer: The barn pulley is part of the original hay hook system that epitomizes the grandeur of an old barn. The hay fork was connected to a barn pulley running along an iron track beneath the ridge of the barn and this system could lift large loads of loose hay by horsepower. These old workhorses could also hold a wagon for repairs.

"B" honor roll - grade seven, Sara Philipp, Heather Phelps, Emma Heaton, Beth Philipp and Timothy Nelson; grade eight, Jordan Anderson, Sabine Frederick, David Hanson, Rachel Nelson, Marshall Mickelson, Kiefer Kainz and Katie Weber; grade nine - Brittany Forsberg, Otto Rubischko, Adelle Prestebak, Cole Dahlen and June Johnson; grade 10, Nick Mickelson, Stephanie Drangstveit, Jennifer Harzke, Kristen Mutnansky, Michael Swanson, Jenna Wellman and Crista Boutain; grade 11, Marie Dahlen, Mike Isaak, Josh Tharaldson, Jessika Forsberg and Mary Kuske; and grade 12, Dustin Isaak and Elizabeth Nelson.

Pastor Rich Apfel to speak at Eagles View Church April 24

Pastor Rich Apfel, Love Never Fails based out of Mission TX, will be speaking at a special service at Eagles View Church and Outreach Center, located at 111 Fourth St. East in Thief River Falls. The meeting will be held on Sunday, April 24 at 6 p.m.

Pastor Rich Apfel and his wife have been reaching the area of Mexico for many years, ministering to street kids of all ages. Bringing the saving knowledge of Jesus Christ to a hurting world. Through their ministry, they have seen many lives changed for the better.

The public is invited to an evening of testimonies of the work the Lord is doing in that area and to learn more about the ministry of Love Never Fails.

Laymon completes NMF's excellence in nonprofit management series

Information provided by Northwest Minnesota Foundation

Denise Laymon

Nearly two years ago, Northwest Minnesota Foundation began offering its new curriculum of classes for nonprofit managers. Director of the Thief River Falls Education Foundation Denise Laymon, of Thief River Falls, is the first to receive a certificate from the University of St. Thomas for attending the required courses.

Laymon completed 10 of the 13 courses, NMF leadership training and a diversity workshop, and also became eligible for a scholarship grant for a professional development opportunity. She will attend a conference in July to enhance her skills and expand her knowledge as executive director of the Thief River Falls Education Foundation.

Laymon will be traveling to the University of Wisconsin, Madison in July for the Planned Giving Program, a five-day intensive fundraising workshop presented by the Association of Healthcare Philanthropy, in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin's Graduate School of Business. The grant will cover registration for the program of $2,450 and up to $50 per night for no more than seven nights of lodging.

Says NMF Training Specialist Rebecca Weir, "Denise's participation and scholarship is a model of what we hoped the Excellence in Nonprofit Management Series is designed for. She completed the series courses and will be involved in a significant program, which we hope will positively impact her career and her community.

Thief River Falls named Tree City USA

Thief River Falls has been named a Tree City USA by The National Arbor Day Foundation (TNADF) to honor its commitment to its community forest. It is the 17th year Thief River Falls has received this national recognition.

The Tree City USA program is sponsored by the foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

Thief River Falls has met the four standards to become a Tree City USA: a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program, and an Arbor Day observance.

"The trees we plant and care for today will cool and beautify our communities, increase property values, help clean the air and water, and conserve energy for years to come," said John Rosenow, TNADF president.

He added, "An effective community forestry program is an ongoing process of renewal and improvement – a program of tree planting and care that continues through the years. The Tree City USA award is an excellent indication that there is a solid foundation for that process of improvement."

Campaign results in 10 percent increase in blood donations

A joint campaign between United Blood Services (UBS) and Tesoro Corporation resulted in a 10 percent increase in blood donations throughout western Minnesota and North Dakota. The promotion, "Give a Pint – Get a Gallon," offered a $2 Tesoro giftCard™ to all volunteer blood donors during the week of March 28 through April 2, and attracted 1,668 patrons of which 248 were first-time donors.

"Not only did we exceed our goal during the campaign week, but we saw double the number of first-time donors than we typically see, which is always exciting," said Denise Hanson, UBS representative. "We hope the campaign jump-started an ongoing increase in blood donations, reversing a dangerous trend we saw the first part of this year."

"Tesoro is very excited to partner with United Blood Services to raise awareness for this important cause," said Mark Wilson, Tesoro vice president of marketing. "It was very encouraging to see the number of first-time donors that participated. Everyone at Tesoro is optimistic by the turnout, and we are hopeful that the trend will continue throughout the year."

Fifty-three blood drives were scheduled during the promotion, and collections were also taken at UBS centers in Bismarck, Minot, Fargo and West Fargo, N.D.

Oak Ridge Lutheran to host supper and bake sale May 7

Oak Ridge Lutheran Church will host its annual Old Fashioned Country Church Supper on Saturday, May 7 from 4 to 7 p.m. A bake sale will also be held.

The menu includes ham; cheesy, scalloped potatoes; corn; deviled eggs; homemade bread; pickles; Jello; pumpkin or apple pie; and coffee or milk.

The cost is $6 for 12-year-olds to adults, $3 for 5- to 11-year-olds and $1 for kids under 5. Proceeds, as well as matching funds from Thrivent, sponsor Kids to Camp.

Oak Ridge is located seven miles west of Thief River Falls on Highway 1 and one mile north.

Goodridge student earns MSUM Valedictorian Scholarship

Elizabeth Nelson

A Goodridge student, Elizabeth Nelson, has received a $1,000 Valedictorian Scholarship from Minnesota State University Moorhead. Nelson is the daughter of Donna and the late Lee Nelson of Goodridge.

The Valedictorian Scholarship awards $1,000 for the freshman year and is given to students admitted to MSUM who rank number one in their graduating class.

Oakland Park Nursing Home Board to meet April 21

The Oakland Park Nursing Home Executive Board will meet on Thursday April 21, at the nursing home, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Terri Olson included in 2005 "Who's Who Among Students"

Terri Olson of Thief River Falls was selected for inclusion in the 2005 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" from Bemidji State University.

Olson, a senior majoring in nursing, has been named to the BSU dean's list and has been active in her position as in-service coordinator for the Oakland Park Nursing Home as well as volunteering as chairperson for the nursing home's marketing committee.

Students are included in this annual directory, first published in 1934, based upon academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

A total of 23 BSU students were included in this edition and were chosen from more than 2,300 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

Sara Kalinoski

Jillian Larson

Kalinoski and Larson named student rotarians of the month for April

Sara Kalinoski and Jillian Larson, both seniors at Lincoln High School, have been chosen as student rotarians of the month for April.

Sara Kalinoski is the 18-year-old daughter of Barb and Greg Kalinoski of Thief River Falls. She is the younger sister of Stacia, 20, and older sister of Mike and Tom, 15.

While attending LHS, Sara participates in student senate, NHS, track, cross-country, band, choir, Northern Expression School of the Arts, Keyclub and she is the senior class secretary. Outside of school, Sara works as a lifeguard and teaches swimming lessons. Her hobbies include reading books, watching movies, listening to music and spending time with friends.

After graduating this spring, Sara plans to attend college at the University of Minnesota - Twin Cities.

Jillian Larson is the 18-year-old daughter of Mark and Jean Larson of Thief River Falls. She is the younger sister of Brittany Larson, 21.

While attending LHS, Jillian has participated in Keyclub, math league, choir, orchestra, curriculum advisory council, tennis, literary arts, chamber orchestra and NHS. Outside of school, Jillian is active in Girl Scouts. Her hobbies include reading and writing.

After graduating this spring, Jillian plans to attend Carleton College in Northfield.

Odegaard and Legion Auxiliary coordinate blood drive

Blood drive coordinator, Sharon Odegaard, along with the American Legion Auxiliary, have coordinated and sponsored another successful blood drive in Thief River Falls. Ninety-two people volunteered to donate blood and 75 were able to give. Twelve donors donated on the automated 2RBC machine, which collects two units of red blood cells at once. Three people gave blood for the first time.

According to Lisa Moellenkamp, donor recruitment representative for United Blood Services, "Communities like Thief River Falls, make a great regional blood program work. People volunteer to donate when there has been a well-organized campaign, informing the public of a need for blood."

Those who assisted with the drive included McDonalds, Super One, Farm Credit, Thief River Falls Times and KTRF/KKAQ Radio. Space to hold the drive was provided by the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls.

Agassiz NWR Lost Bay Habitat Drive opens

The Lost Bay Habitat (Auto) Drive at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is now open and will remain open through October. The Habitat Drive entrance is located at Refuge Headquarters at 22996 290th St. N.E. in Marshall County (Marshall County Road 7). The four-mile drive is located 12 miles north of Thief River Falls and 11 miles east of Holt. The drive is open from sunrise to sunset seven days a week. Interpretive signs along the drive describe the types of habitats and several species of wildlife that depend on those species of plants.

Two hiking trails are located on the refuge. Headquarters Hiking Trail is one-half-mile long with a crushed granite rock surface making the trail accessible to all modes of human travel. An interpretive leaflet is available at the beginning of the trail. The Maakstad Hiking Trail is a one-fourth mile long mowed grass trail along the drive which is open for walking. Habitats are different along the trails so take time to walk both trails. Both walking trails enable individuals to have a closer look and hear the sounds of nature. Take some time to remain motionless and people will see more wildlife than when moving constantly.

Three kiosks with information signs and leaflet dispensers are located on Marshall County Road 7. One kiosk is located across from the Parker Observation Deck, and the other kiosk is located near the east boundary of the refuge. Another kiosk is located at the Refuge Headquarters parking lot. Interpretive signs and Refuge and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service leaflets are available at the kiosk locations.

Permanent 20 power spotting scopes are mounted on the Parker Deck and also on the Headquarters Office Deck for observing wildlife. An occupied bald eagle nest, situated on an island in Parker Pool near the Observation Deck, can be observed from County Road 7. If the pair are successful in raising the eaglet(s) to fledgling, the eagles will be visible at least until they leave the nest in mid-July.

To talk to a refuge staff member before, during or after a visit, contact the refuge office between the hours of 7:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, excluding holidays. Call 449-4115, extensions 214, 210, 211, 215 or 213 for further information. Bring binoculars and a spotting scope to get a closer view of wildlife, identification books to identify wildlife or plant species, and camera to capture some lasting memories.

School News & Views

Irv Peterson, Superintendent, School District 564

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

A busy time of year

Springtime is probably the busiest time in the school year. Teachers feel pressured to accomplish as much as possible in the fleeting weeks. Students have culminating projects in some classes, a faster pace on lessons in other classes and many activities that still consume much of their time. Many of the spring activities take students out of the classroom while the demand to complete assignments continues. Lessons in time management are very valuable for our young people.

If there is one thing that has received more attention this year in school compared to previous years, it would likely be "reading." Not only are we progressing with an outstanding reading initiative in the primary grades at Challenger Elementary School (CES) for all students, regardless of ability, but this initiative has been receiving much positive attention from our intermediate teachers as well. You may know that we have other reading initiatives in school that have been in place for years. We have had Reading Recovery for a number of years now, and Title I is a federal program designed to assist struggling readers that has been around for decades. Both of these programs aim to assist those students who are behind grade level or not keeping up with their peers. Inclusion in the program is restricted to those who test at or below a certain reading level.

Our new reading initiative, called the Literacy Collaborative, does not replace either of these programs, but rather enhances them while also allowing the newest research and teaching methods to be presented to all students. We are working together with 10 elementary schools around the country and Ohio State University (OSU) in this project. Professors at OSU have conducted research on various reading methods and brain research findings over the past decade, and are continuing to research the effectiveness of these methods in elementary classrooms around the nation. We are fortunate to have been chosen to participate with them and be included in cutting edge reading research.

One of our elementary teachers, Julie Kragness, has been receiving training at OSU during this school year and is bringing this cutting edge research to our staff and students. We are only in the early stages of this program, but are extremely excited about the positive effects we are seeing already. The main positive impact that I see is that this is a way to teach reading that is developed for all learners, not just for struggling learners. Teachers everywhere and throughout time have used whatever knowledge and research that has been available to them. With all the studies regarding how the brain operates and how people learn, we are currently making huge strides in our teaching methods and strategies. This is another fine example of continuous improvement and being the best we can be. We look forward to expansion throughout CES in the years ahead.

One of the aspects of this reading program is that we need to have reading materials for all our students that are leveled to their reading ability. Basal reading textbooks have always been rather dry and uninteresting to many students and they do not match the reading level of all students in the class. By also having reading materials that match student interests at all reading levels within a class, we will foster more of a 'love of reading' and consequently a 'love of learning' that will not only encourage students to read more, and more often, but to enable them through that increased practice of reading to become better readers, and then, of course, better learners. A student who reads well is far more apt to read their social studies assignment or their science or health assignment, and as their comprehension skills increase, they will better understand what is being taught in all these classes.

Reading classes have been expanded at Franklin Middle School (FMS) as well the past couple years. We have had SSR (sustained silent reading) at FMS for several years. This year's eighth grade Basic Skills Test reading results were the highest they have been in four years. SSR was implemented at Lincoln this year and it has been a huge success there as well. The extra hours devoted to practicing reading naturally makes an individual a better reader — a faster reader with better comprehension skills. At the same time it builds vocabulary and enhances overall learning. Our reading initiatives at all levels have been a very positive addition in school this year and a real boost for all our students.

Congratulations are in order for more of our outstanding professionals. Shane Zutz has been named outstanding assistant principal for the Northern Region of the state by the Minnesota Secondary Principals Association, and Mark Lee has received the state's highest award for driver education instructors. We are extremely proud of all our teachers. I am amazed at how many of our Thief River Falls staff have received regional and state awards in the past few years. We are definitely in good hands.

Our board of education and administration have recently been involved in retreats where we have been discussing proposed new programs, or expanded programs for our students. Budgetary concerns prevent us from adding many new ideas at this time, but we continue to evaluate all our current programs and all those that have been proposed. I will delve more into some of those proposals next time.

Production and sponsorship arts grants available

The Arts Council of the Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) has announced a May 1 deadline for its Production Assistance Scholarship Grants Program. The Arts Council will accept applications for a variety of grants in literary, performing and visual arts. Please note that only a small amount of funding remains, so this round of grants will be quite competitive.

Organizations whose permanent addresses are within the seven-county Minnesota service area of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau are eligible to apply. They may apply for a maximum of $2,000 in matching funds per grant. Each organization may receive up to $3,000 in grant funds annually. Production Assistance grants are available for the creation, performance or exhibition of arts. Sponsorship grants provide funds to host guest artists or touring groups.

Application materials for all the grant programs are available from Mara Wittman, Arts Council director, NWRDC, 115 S. Main, Warren, MN 56762, (218) 745-6733, or through the NWRDC Web site (www.nwrdc.org) in the arts section. Grants can now be filled online, but must then be printed and sent in the mail to the NWRDC office.

Tharaldson wins VFW essay contest

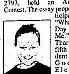
Recently, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary, Post 2793, held an Americanism Contest. The essay proposed to participates was "What Veterans Day Means To Me." Kathlyn Tharaldson, a fifth grade student from Goodridge Elementary School, was first place in the local VFW Post contest. Her entry was submitted to the District level where it won second place. She has been presented with a monetary award and an American flag from Post 2793.



Kathlyn Tharaldson

The following essay is the winning entry submitted by Kathlyn Tharaldson:

What Veterans Day Means To Me

What Veterans Day means to me is a day when we remember and think about all the soldiers who have fought in all the wars and are still fighting for our freedom. Veterans Day is sometimes a sad day because of all the people lost in the wars and it is sad for the families that lost a member or members in their families. It is also sad for the families that still have someone overseas still fighting for our freedom. The families don't get to see or talk to their loved ones for months at a time.

Veterans Day can be a day to celebrate and be happy for the wars that we have fought and got our freedom. This is a day to be thankful for our soldiers who have fought hard and are able to come home to their loved ones.

I am very proud for the men and women who are willing to take the chance to fight in the wars to keep peace and freedom. It takes special people who are willing to risk their lives every day for our country. This is why I think it is very important to have a special day to recognize all the very brave soldiers who have fought and are still fighting.

PARENTING TIPS
Traffic Safety

As parents, we realize that traffic safety is important. Motor vehicles are the leading cause of death for preschool children. Children need to be educated to recognize and safely deal with traffic hazards.

Two things parents can do to help prevent accidents are:

1. Teach children about and model safe walking behavior.
2. Closely supervise children near traffic.

Several characteristics of "normal" young children make traffic safety a challenge. For example, young children are in a hurry to explore their environment and want to be independent. But children lack the experience to judge the speed of an oncoming car. Furthermore, the child's height restricts his/her view around parked cars. Children are impulsive and may dart out after a toy (often a ball) without thinking about safety rules. As parents, we need to remember that it takes years of experience, maturity and practice for children to learn how to be safe in traffic.

(Contributed by the Early Childhood Family Education Department of School District 564.)

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Help your child understand where the boundaries are. The word "curb," for example, means nothing until you explain it to your child. Remember that your child may need to see and touch the curb to really understand the meaning.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Tate Sorvig, Lincoln High School

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

Respect: Taking the lid off

"Hat off, Mr. Sorvig!" exclaims intensely offended Mr. Anonymous Teacher.

I jerk my hat quickly off my head and manage to say through my shame, "Terribly sorry, Mr. Anonymous Teacher, how positively rude of me. I apologize for subjecting you to such a blatant form of utter disrespect. I sincerely hope that I have not completely ruined your day because of my intolerable disregard for authority."

Hats. They are a sure sign of the presence of evil. One might as well be carrying a sign that reads, "I'm a terrible person. Please, yell at me and make me feel inferior because I am holding this sign." It's true, hats are terribly offensive to school administrators. This fact has been proven by numerous studies at the St. Hilaire Institute of Technology. Deep within the fountains-of-knowledge brains of our educators, there is a mechanism which demands the utmost respect. And you know what? They deserve it. Without our teachers, the human race would soon perish. Teachers ought to be treated like kings and queens of men. And yet, the only real physical sign of respect students can give them is to take off their hats? I think that these modern day Aristotles and Socrateses deserve a bit more respect than just the simple doffing of a few caps. Perhaps, I am wrong, but how is wearing a simple baseball cap any less disrespectful than fixing one's hair into a green, foot-tall, spiky Mohawk? Or, for that matter, having hair at all? On this note, I believe that school policy should follow military policy. Administrators should shave everyone's head in order to spare our poor teachers from the horrors of headwear.

Actually, a face is probably a lot more disrespectful than hair. Perhaps, if we really want to protect our teachers, we should all wear dark glasses to cover the dark rings around our eyes from studying too late or just put a paper bag over each of our heads in order to prevent teachers from seeing facial expressions that may suggest that the student has a differing opinion. They should probably take away our spitball shooters, destroy the paper airplane plans that have been passed down by generations of rascals, and take away our freedom of speech. Eureka! In order to present our hard-working educators with the respect due to them, students should be removed altogether! Our teachers deserve respect, dang it, and, by gum, we're going to give it to them. I propose a schoolwide teacher respect day. If we really want to respect our teachers, we will kindly remove ourselves from their presence. So, on Thursday, April 21 (schoolwide teacher respect day), all students who wish to respect their teachers will kindly stay at home. Students and parents reading this article, please, for the sake of educators everywhere, spread the word of this noble and righteous event. If you believe in the welfare of our teachers, the need for respect in today's society, and that, doggone it, teachers are people too, then honor them on April 21 by participating in schoolwide teacher respect day. Thank you, teachers, for all you do. Hats off to you!

Northland Retired Educators to meet April 25

The Northland Retired Educators April meeting will be held on Monday, April 25, 2005, at the Heritage Center in Thief River Falls, beginning at 11:45 a.m. Speakers include officer Teresa Mattison and Danica Robson. All retired educators are encouraged to attend.

...A strange legend

Hard to believe, but there is a legend that in the 11th century a baby boy was born in Ireland who would come to predict the first pope to be chosen in the 21st century. Not only that, but his predictions say that this pope of the 21st century will be second to the last pope before the end of the world and that the final Roman pontiff will see the destruction of Rome and the coming of the antichrist. Some say the last pope will be Jesus Christ - maybe.

The baby boy was Malachy O'Morgair (or O'Moore). He grew up and became a priest. He was canonized in 1190 as St. Malachy. According to a popular legend, St. Malachy was a holy man who had the gift of prophecy, even predicting the day and hour of his own death. He was also said to perform miracles, heal the sick, and have visions.

One of his predictions had to do with 111 popes of the Catholic Church from Pope Celestine II in 1143 to the "end of the world." He saw the predictions of the popes while visiting Rome and he presented them to the pope then as a gift. The pope placed them in the archives, where they stayed for nearly four centuries. They were found and printed in 1559.

St. Malachy's prophecies consisted of numbers of the popes, each of which was assigned a short description in Latin. The descriptions were said to refer to a family name, a birthplace, coat of arms or other things relating to the specific pope.

As an example, some of us remember Pope John XXIII, the pope who convened the Second Vatican Counsel and "opened the windows" of the Catholic Church. His Latin descriptive phrase was "Pastor et Nauta," or "Pastor and Mariner." How did this relate to the pope? He was Patriarch of Venice (a marine city) and Pope (the supreme pastor).

The pope previous to our presently deceased pope was Pope John Paul I. He was pope for only 34 days. His Latin description, "De Medietate Lunae," translates to "Of the half moon. Some speculate that the half moon referred to the fact that he was born in the diocese of Belluno ("beautiful moon"). Others claimed it was because his reign lasted from the time the moon was exactly half full, to the next half moon phase, approximately one month.

Our Pope John Paul II's Latin description was "De Labore Solis," which translates to "Of the eclipse of the sun" or "From the labor of the sun." Karol Wojtyla was born May 18, 1920, during the largest partial solar eclipse in Europe known to that time. Not only that, but his funeral and burial took place on April 8, 2005, at the time of a hybrid solar eclipse when parts of the earth had total eclipse and others had an eclipse in which a brilliant ring appeared as the moon hid the sun.

The Latin phrase for the new pope to be chosen now is "Gloria Olivae," which means "Glory of the Olive." This phrase sounds quite odd, but it has been the object of much speculation.

Some say that the new pope will be from the order of St. Benedict, because they are known as the "Olivetans" and their tradition holds that at the end times the pope will come from their order. It has also been said that the Glory of the Olive is Christ since Israel is referred to as the olive tree and Christ is known as the Glory of Israel. This appears to mean that the pope will be Christ, which would be quite odd indeed.

Some say that Gloria Olivae would fit that the next pope be of Jewish descent. St. Paul claimed that Abraham's descendants, the Jews, were like a cultivated olive tree and Gentiles were the wild olive branches grafted to the cultivated. The two combined would make one glorious tree. And one must consider that Jesus gave his apocalyptic prophecy about the end times on the Mount of Olives. Or, it could mean that the new pope will have an olive complexion, be from an olive-producing country, or perhaps his mother's maiden name will have something to do with olive. Or, he could be a pope who will bring about peaceful resolution (offer an olive branch) to the world's problems.

The Prophecies of St. Malachy conclude with the following prophecy: "In the final persecution of the Holy Roman Church there will reign Peter the Roman, who will feed his flock among many tribulations; after which the seven hilled city will be destroyed and the dreadful Judge will judge the people. The end." (Note that this prophecy was not given a number in the Prophecies of St. Malachy. The number 112 was given to this final prophecy when they were found in 1559.)

Needless to say, it is all very confusing to the ordinary person, but it is an interesting story. Accept or reject the prophecy, as you see fit. It is just for your enjoyment and nothing else.

Moving is disturbing

Moving is disturbing! After my house sold last week, I had just a few days to get out. It's just as well, since moving, like ripping off a Band-Aid, is best if done quickly.

Moving requires that one confront years of bad decisions, the evidence of which has built up underneath the basement stairs.

Moving forces you to confront habits you didn't realize you had. After digging through the mounds of junk, you start to question your sanity.

Turtlenecks. I buy them, but I never wear them. Then I forget that I bought them, forget that I never wear them, and buy some more. When I move, I find turtlenecks by the garbage bag full, most of them worn no more than once. I am to turtlenecks what Imelda Marcos was to shoes.

Chocolates. I never eat them, but when little fundraising urchins come knocking at the door looking every bit like the little match girl, I can't turn them down - so I order a box. Or two. Or three, depending upon how close to death the little urchin appears.

The chocolates build up in my storage closet. Sometimes mice break into the box, but most of them remain in pristine condition until I move.

Cheese and salami boxes - those Hickory Farms things people give for Christmas. When I get one, I never get around to using the cheese or the salami. Today, I found a box of salami and cheese which I know I moved twice, which means it is about 11 years old.

Pens, pencils and Sharpie markers. I hoard them. One desk drawer filled up, so I started another. Today, I had to bundle them all up with rubber bands. There were too many to fit into a shoe box - and that is after living here only seven years.

Spices. I only use salt, pepper and garlic powder, yet today I discovered no fewer than five full containers of nutmeg in the kitchen cupboard. I never use nutmeg, but because its smell reminds me of eggnog, I pick some up whenever it is on sale.

Anise, oregano, sage, Cajun spice, orange extract, vanilla extract, two jars of cardamom, paprika, fenugreek, tandoori, curry powder, onion powder, all sit on the shelf gathering dust.

Cake mixes. As far as I can remember, I have never baked a cake in my life. But there's always hope! So, I pick up cake mixes whenever I feel ambitious, and they gather on the top shelf, right along with about a dozen boxes of Stove-Top dressing, which I have also never once baked.

Empty shampoo bottles. Make that just-about-empty shampoo bottles. During childhood, my mother diluted the shampoo with water. The savings helped us make it through the Great Depression of the 1970s.

Prosperity has returned, but old habits die hard: I never get around to actually putting water into the shampoo bottles to get that last little bit out, but today I found about two dozen nearly-empty shampoo bottles underneath the sink. I keep them just in case worse comes to worse, I guess.

Confronting odd habits of which one was only dimly aware is just one reason why moving is such a psychologically disturbing event.

There are also the clusters of dust bunnies behind the couch, which call into question one's cleanliness.

There are the ugly pictures on the wall that you haven't noticed for years which call into question one's good taste. There are the Christmas gifts from loved ones stashed away and forgotten in musty dark corners which call into question one's gratitude.

One finds unanswered letters, evidence of faded friendships, unfinished projects and long-neglected hobbies. Grandma crocheted six afghans for me, but all of them itch. Is it right that I store them under the stairs?

Hauling heavy boxes isn't what bothers me most about moving. No, the worst of it is the realization that I am not so far removed from people who keep 50 cats in the house.

Artist grants available for high schoolers

The Arts Council of the Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) is accepting applications for grants of up to $500 for student artists in its Artist Training Mentorship Grant category. Supported with funding from the McKnight Foundation, these programs provide artists with grants for studying with a mentor or attending a training opportunity.

Applications are encouraged from high school students working in literary, performing or visual art. Activities that are completed for school credit or tuition costs are not eligible.

The deadline is May 15. Students must be Minnesota residents who have resided in the seven-county northwestern Minnesota area for at least one year prior to the deadline date. Those seven counties include Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. Students who will be in the ninth through 12th grades next year are eligible to apply.

Application guidelines and forms are available from Mara Wittman, Arts Council director, NWRDC, 115 S. Main, Warren, MN 56762; (218) 745-6733; or mara@nwrdc.org. Applications downloads are also available on the NWRDC Web site (www.nwrdc.org/arts.htm).

LHS Key Club hosts blood drive

The Key Club coordinated and sponsored a successful blood drive at Lincoln High School on March 10. A total of 79 people volunteered to donate at their drive to help patients in this area and 57 were able to give. There were 47 first-time donors, mostly consisting of students.

School blood drives make up a large percentage of the community blood supply in the fall, winter and spring. United Blood Services appreciates the time and energy the Key Club puts forth to organize its school blood drive, as well as the support from students, faculty and administration.

Increase the bottomline, hire a certified crop adviser

by Rick Morgan
FBM instructor, Moorhead

I have been involved with agricultural education for 30 years and every once in a while, I will pick up on a trend or a hint of something. Going over many farmers' annual analyses and how they compare to our "group average," I have concluded that crop consultants are one of the best investments a farmer can make. Time after time when I would ask a farmer how he managed to spend less than the average per acre for chemicals, he would say he followed recommendations from his certified crop adviser.

In the heat of the battle, once the crop is planted, germinated and off to a good start, who makes the call for what, when, where or how much to spray? What chemical is going to be used for a specific problem? If it were weeds, there may be different weed problems in different fields. Do you make a chemical mixture to take care of all the weeds in all the fields or do you follow a recipe designed for each field? Can you save money?

In corn on rented ground, the bottom 10 percent crop chemical cost spent only $7.98 per acre while the group average was $19.39 per acre. In soybeans, the lowest 10 percent spent $6.97, while the average was $13.55. In wheat, the lowest 10 percent spent $10.04 on chemical costs, while the average was $21.43. And finally on sugarbeets, in the Moorhead area, the lowest 10 percent spent $65.44 per acre, while the average spent $107.50.

The point I want to make is that there is money to be saved and still have clean, healthy crops. Some of you may pull the trigger too soon to spray Round-Up on your soybeans, thus making the second spray almost a must. Your sprayer is your most important piece of farm equipment, but how much money you send through it to get the job done is totally up to you.

Marjorie A. Aamodt, 59

Shelly - Marjorie Ann Aamodt, 59, of rural Shelly, died on Friday, April 15, 2005. She died peacefully in her home surrounded by family and friends after a courageous battle with cancer.

Funeral Mass was held on Tuesday, April 19, 2005, at Holy Family Catholic Church in Halstad. Interment was held at Augustana Cemetery in rural Halstad.

Marjorie was born on November 28, 1945, in Slayton, the daughter of Frank and Josephine (Krell) Pacholl. She attended parochial school in Wilmont, and graduated in 1963 from Our Lady of Good Counsel High School in Wilmont. After high school, she moved to Minneapolis.

Marge was united in marriage to Julian Aamodt on November 27, 1965, in Wilmont. While living in the Twin Cities, she worked for Control Data Corporation, Thermo King Corporation, and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Minnesota. In 1976, Marge and Julian moved to Shelly.

She worked for the Halstad Living Center, Halstad, for 14 years, and from 1991 to 1999 at Noel's Super Value in Halstad. She then returned to the Halstad Living Center and worked in the Heritage House until 2003. Marge was a member of Holy Family Catholic Church in Halstad.

Marge's greatest joy was spending time with her grandchildren, putting many miles on her car to help out with babysitting or to attend school events, basketball games or wrestling tournaments. She especially enjoyed playing games with them and having fun things waiting for them in "Grandma's Closet." Marge had a talent when it came to home decorating projects and enjoyed planning gatherings for family and friends. She also enjoyed cross-stitching, gardening, and her flowers. She was known to always think of others and Marge's family and friends "always came first."

Marjorie is survived by her husband of 39 years, Julian; son Randy (Shelley) Aamodt, Thief River Falls; daughter Kelly (Roger) Bovee, Monticello; two brothers, Frank (Linda) Pacholl Jr., Groveland, Calif., and Glen (Laura) Pacholl, Aliso Viejo, Calif.; sister, Mary Jo Johnson, Fargo, N.D.; five grandchildren; and several nieces, nephews, and cousins.

She was preceded in death by her parents, a brother, Robert, and a nephew, Brent Leen.

Lester W. Nordlum, 86

International Falls - Lester Wendell Nordlum, 86, died on Monday, April 11, 2005 at his home in International Falls.

Funeral services were held on Friday, April 15 at Zion Lutheran Church in International Falls. Interment was held at Forest Hills Cemetery in International Falls.

Lester was born in Middle River on August 23, 1918, the son of Hudda Gustafson of Sweden and John C. Norlum of Norway. Lester married Lillian Mary Jackson on October 10, 1940 in International Falls.

Lester lived in Middle River for 15 years and moved with his family to International Falls in 1933. The family operated the Mando Company Farm where the nursing home now sits. He later owned and operated the Riverdale Dairy with his father and brother Clarence. Lester also worked in the finishing room at Mando for 30 years. He also logged and hauled pulp wood. He retired in 1981.

Lester and his wife, Lillian, were extremely active in his 23 years of retirement. They spent time in Alaska gold mining and hunting moose, caribou, Dahl sheep and fishing for salmon. Before and during retirement, they spent a lot of time in Canada, canoeing and portaging, ice camping and fishing. They deer hunted on the Kohler Pit road for 50 years.

Lester thoroughly enjoyed the opportunities and life in the northland. He was always surrounded by family and numerous friends.

His special friends were all fishing, hunting, snowmobiling and four-wheeling partners, his niece, Karen and her husband Dick Holm and nephews, David and Mary Jackson.

Lester is survived by his wife Lillian of 64 years; his son, Roger of Alaska and New Mexico; daughters, Janet (Jody) Schulz of International Falls, Betty Gerlach of Hastings and Marilyn (Bill) McEvoy of International Falls; 12 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Lester was preceded in death by his parents; an infant sister, Violet Nordlum - and three brothers, Clarence, Ernest and Ray Nordlum.

Ann Fox, 46

Erskine - Ann Marie Fox, 46, died on Monday, April 4, 2005 at her residence in Erskine.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, April 9 at the Warroad Baptist Church. Interment was held at the Riverside Cemetery in Warroad.

Ann Marie Fox, the daughter of Jennie (Carlson) and Paul W. Hassel, was born on February 4, 1959 in Roseau. After growing up in Warroad, Ann traveled to several places, including, California for several years where she worked as a clown. She would do birthday parties and other special events. She moved back to Roseau and Warroad for several more years. She worked at a restaurant and at Wally's in Roseau and did her favorite, clowning in Roseau and Warroad.

In November of 2002, she moved back to Thief River Falls, where she did clowning and worked at the Northern Lights Bookstore. She loved children and had lots of time for them. She loved making different sculptures of balloons, including animals, hearts and swords. She also enjoyed crafts and was an avid scrabble player, just ask her cousin Jean.

She is survived by her son, Brian; siblings, Shirley (Gene) Moser of Red Lake Falls, Walter (Karen) Hassel of Roosevelt, Wanda (Jim) Westman of Strathcona, Mary Jo (Wayne) Knutson of Warroad and Clarence "Skip" Strom Jr. of Halma; godparents, uncle Albert and Aunt Betty Peterson of Grandview, Wash.; and several aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, great nieces and nephews, and cousins.

She was preceded in death by her parents and grandparents.

Darrell Wick, 64

St. Paul - Darrell Wick, 64, of St. Paul and formerly of Thief River Falls, died on Saturday, April 16, 2005 at Regions Hospital in St. Paul.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, April 22, at Como Park Lutheran Church, 1376 Hoyt Ave. West, St. Paul, MN 55708.

A complete obituary will appear in the next edition of The Times.

F. Harry Wilson, 80

Cloquet - F. Harry "Soapy" Wilson, 80, died Sunday, April 17, 2005 at St. Luke's Hospice in Duluth.

Visitation will be 5 to 7 p.m. on Thursday, April 21 at Nelson Funeral Care in Cloquet. The visitation will resume on Friday, April 22, from 10 a.m. until the 11 a.m. funeral service, also at Nelson Funeral Care. Interment services will be at Maple Grove Cemetery with full Military Honors accorded by the Cloquet Combined Honor Guard.

Harry was born on October 31, 1924 in Rush City, the son of Felix E. and Edna (Garthofner) Wilson. Harry grew up near the shores of Cross Lake in Pine City. Boyhood activities revolved around fishing, boating, swimming and ice boating. He also worked on his grandparents' farm near Rock Creek. Harry was active in Boy Scouts and attained the rank of Eagle Scout. He was also the master of the long defunct, two-handed set-shot while a member of the feared Pine City Dragon basketball team.

Boyhood was abruptly replaced by manhood when Harry enlisted in the U.S. Navy during WWII. Harry lost his only sibling, older brother Kenneth, who was killed in action in Italy with the U.S. Army in WWII. After discharge, Harry and lifelong friend, Kenny Hegstrom, tried to celebrate for everyone who returned safely from the war. Their friendship was kept intact through marriage, and raising children, and continues to this day.

Not getting enough time on the water in the service, Harry sailed the Great Lakes on the ore boats. Thinking there must be warmer occupations in his future, he enrolled at the Duluth Teachers College, finishing up at St. Cloud State where he met his wife, Arlene, who worked as a secretary there. Married in 1951, she gave him more of an education than he got anywhere else. Arlene passed away from cancer in 1985.

Out of school, Harry's good looks and gift of gab quickly landed him a job as a soap salesman with Proctor & Gamble. After several short stints in Billings, Montevideo, Robbinsdale, and Edina, Harry was "promoted" to Cloquet, where he raised his three children while selling soap under the pseudonym "Soapy Wilson" in the Arrowhead Region for over thirty years. Harry woefully witnessed the family grocers being replaced by the supermarkets during his career. To his dismay, a handshake and your word were replaced by technology.

Retirement was filled with golfing, fishing, card playing, and taking numerous houseboat trips on Lake Vermillion with family and friends. His grandchildren are now astute Blackjack players thanks to Harry. He also had a love for jazz, attending Saturday afternoon jam sessions at a local club, gaining another nickname "O'Douls". He was always whistling some jazz tune. He will be hugely missed by his family and friends.

He is survived by one son, Steve (Beth) Wilson of Thief River Falls, MN; two daughters, Debra Asp of Lake Park, and Felicia (Stan) Palmer of Bloomington; and four grandchildren.

Harry was preceded in death by his parents; his wife Arlene; one brother Kenneth and one son-in-law, Craig Asp.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I need to replace my Social Security card. What information do I need?

A: To replace an existing card, not to change your name on the card, you need to present a document(s) to establish your identity. Acceptable evidence to do this has tightened up in recent months. In general you must present one or more current documents that provide biographical information the SSA representative can compare with existing information on your computer record.

Biographical information includes your name, age or date of birth, or parents' names. Having a photo ID is helpful but not mandated. There is not just one acceptable form of ID. Examples of useable ID include a U.S. Passport, driver's license, some employee ID cards and military records. ID that does not contain enough biographical information to compare with SSA records is not sufficient evidence of identity. Better evidence of identity must be provided before processing is continued.

Items not acceptable as ID include vehicle registrations, credit cards, and fishing licenses. Neither of these are complete lists. More information about Social Security numbers, including the needed SS-5 application form, is on the SSA Web site www.socialsecurity.gov and available from any SSA office. Replacement cards are mailed from a central national location and take about two weeks to be received.

Did you know? You can connect to other useful web sites from the Social Security Administration Web site, www.socialsecurity.gov. For example, at the bottom of the SSA homepage is a link to www.firstgov.gov, the U.S. government's official web portal. Also at the bottom of the SSA homepage is www.govbenefits.gov, a screening tool for locating a variety of potential government benefits. In , the "resources" section of the homepage are links to each of the SSA regions and through them to the specific sites of the states served by those regions. A link to the North Dakota state site is found through the Denver regional site while the Minnesota state site can be found through the Chicago regional site.

Requests to school board would deplete budget

by David Hill
Editor

Over $700,000 in capital requests have been made to the board of education for School District 564 leaving District officials wondering where the money will come from. The latest request was presented to the board of education by the Soccer Association Monday, April 11.

Glen Kajewski, Thief River Falls Soccer Association, asked the School Board to consider bringing soccer within the District's activities system.

Soccer has become immensely popular in the community. In the three years that the Soccer Association has offered soccer in the community, over 300 children have registered each year. Not only are children supporting the program, but adults are as well, which was evidenced by the fact that over a dozen individuals (players and parents) were in attendance at the meeting. Kajewski also said that one of the goals of the Soccer Association has been to stress education for its coaches. Over 50 coaches have gone through training.

"The interest and support of parents and volunteers has been excellent," said Kajewski.

If approved, soccer would be a fall sport in the District. Kajewski said that Thief River Falls is probably one of the last communities of its size in the region to introduce soccer. Detroit Lakes has had a soccer program for eight years. Crookston and East Grand Forks also have soccer programs. Based upon their experience and that of other schools, Kajewski said he didn't think other fall sports, particularly football, had much to worry about soccer. Numbers of children in soccer also indicate that the District could field about two teams of 18 players each. Kajewski said there's a good mix of boys and girls in the program..

Kajewski said he didn't have any estimates of how much it would cost to implement the program. Their soccer program operates strictly on volunteers and costs less than $20,000 per year.

Irv Peterson, School District Superintendent, said the District has estimated that it would cost about $20,000 to bring the program into the activities system. That includes paying for coaches, travel expenses, supplies and equipment.

Kajewski said the Soccer Association would be willing to work with the School District to raise funds and help make it happen. He also mentioned the equipment they already had on hand would reduce the cost.

But Peterson reminded the Board of Education that they have already received $700,000 in capital requests. The Board, he said, needs to be cautious and conservative. It needs to wait and see what the Legislature and the governor are going to do.

"We're not going to go out and recommend a new program without knowing the dollars are there to sustain it," said Peterson.

Peterson thanked Kajewski for his presentation adding that the Soccer Association did a marvellous job of going through the "Prowler Process" - a method that produces a detailed feasibility study.

School Board Chairman Steve Young said next year's budget would soon be in the hands of committees.

But Peterson said it may be two months before the Soccer Association has an answer.

In later discussions when the subject of all of the requests came up again, Young said the public may have the impression that because of the referendum and the "spectre" of more money from the state, that the District has more money than anticipated. That's not true, he said, but it may explain why the Board of Education has received so many requests.

Barb Kalinoski, representative on the Board of Education, said the School District just cannot do business like it used to.

Peterson said he had begun visiting with some of the clubs and organizations in the community and he pledged to the Board of Education that he would preach the message that "the Board of Education will be cautious and conservative." It just cannot afford to do otherwise, he said.

Randy Twistol, representative on the Board of Education, also encouraged Peterson to visit with staff.

Young noted that the Board of Education needs to respond to all these requests fairly broadly. It's not that their requests don't have merit, he added. All of the programs proposed, if approved, would be beneficial for the District.

Peterson said that he had read a disturbing senate proposal that day that was proposing to keep education funding flat. He said he had thought the governor's proposal for a two percent increase as the absolute bottom so that this new proposal was very disturbing. In the past several years, he said, the District has utilized its fund balance to keep the cuts at a minimum. This has resulted in a significant decrease in the fund balance. "We need to build our fund balance and be tough on sustainability - we need to stop the bleeding and maintain where we're at," said Peterson.

But Kalinoski said the message is beginning to sound like things are getting worse. "We have a lot of successful programs in the District, we just can't do business the way we used to." It's important, she said, to remind the public that "we are moving forward."

Pennington area host families needed

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for an academic semester and year program homestays, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.) executive director, John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

Pennington County area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative, may call P.I.E., toll-free at 1-800-631-1818. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

Groups promoting canoeing in region

Looking for a place to canoe or kayak? Did you know the Red Lake River offers a great opportunity? To promote this regional natural resource, a Web site has been developed and is being promoted in Canoe & Kayak On-Line. The Web address is www.nature-northwest.org/redlakeriver.

The Web site provides basic information on the Red Lake River and the areas along the river. The Red Lake River is a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) State Canoe Route that is a relatively smooth ride for most of the trip, however Class I, II and III rapids can be found. Detailed maps of the Red River Lake can be downloaded from the site. There are links to the National Weather Service Office and USGS Water Resources for accurate water levels.

The Web site and on-line promotion is a partnership with Riverland Tourism Association, Red Lake River Corridor, Minnesota DNR and Explore Minnesota. The Riverland Association represents the communities of Crookston, East Grand Forks, Fertile, Fosston, Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls.

MnSCU Chancellor to present NCTC interim president

Minnesota State Colleges and Universities (MnSCU) Chancellor James H. McCormick will be visiting the campuses of Northland Community and Technical College on Thursday, April 21, to officially present the college's interim president.

McCormick will be accompanied by MnSCU Trustee Cheryl Dickson, Vice Chancellor for Human Resources Bill Tschida, and the interim president. They are expected to arrive at the East Grand Forks campus of NCTC at 11:30 a.m., Thursday. A program will begin at 11:45 a.m. in the commons/cafeteria area.

The guests of honor are then scheduled to travel to the Thief River Falls campus where they are expected to arrive at 1:30 p.m., and will host a presentation from 1:45 to 2 p.m. in the commons area.

The MnSCU board of trustees is expected to confirm the appointment of the interim president at its meeting on Wednesday. The successor's name will be released at that time.

The interim president will replace Dr. Orley Gunderson who is retiring at the end of this academic year. Gunderson has served as the college president in Thief River Falls for 25 years.

The public is invited to attend the campus presentations.

New Medicare Web resource helps patients

A new consumer Web site unveiled recently by the Centers For Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) and the Hospital Quality Alliance (HQA), a public-private collaboration, provides instant, objective, easy-to-use, and free information about the quality of hospital care in Minnesota and nationwide. The hospital quality information is now available by visiting www.hospitalcompare.hhs.gov or www.medicare.gov and selecting Compare Hospitals in Your Area, or by calling 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227). Either way, consumers get the information they need to help them make more informed healthcare decisions.

The new resource was developed by CMS, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, in partnership with HQA, and nearly every acute care hospital in the nation. It reports quality of care information for hospitals about care to all adult patients, regardless of payer, on three common conditions: heart attack, heart failure, and pneumonia. Some hospitals may have data on additional conditions, and in the future, new measures and information on patient's perceptions of care will be added.

"We are working closely with Minnesota's health care providers and Stratis health to improve the quality of care available in hospitals, physician offices, nursing homes, home health agencies and kidney dialysis centers," said CMS Regional Administrator Jackie Garner. "This is just one step we are taking to make sure that Medicare fits beneficiaries' health care needs by modernizing the program to include a new prescription drug benefit."

Stratis Health, the Medicare Quality Improvement Organization (QIO) serving Minnesota, has worked with hospitals since its inception in 1971. The organization works to continuously improve hospital quality in Minnesota by offering hands-on resources, one-on-one training, and staff education.

"CMS's new Web resource, "Hospital Compare," gives consumers information to help them make informed decisions about hospital care," said Patsy Riley, president and CEO of Stratis Health. "From our perspective, we are excited about this tool because it helps achieve our mission of improving health care for providers and consumers. We also believe "Hospital Compare" dovetails nicely with the many existing hospital quality efforts currently underway in Minnesota."

"As an organization tasked with working with hospitals to improve their quality of care, we have seen firsthand how Minnesota hospitals are making changes and improving," said Riley. "We are especially impressed by the level of participation - all but one of Minnesota's eligible hospitals are voluntarily submitting data for Hospital Compare. We commend our state's hospitals for making quality a top priority every day."

CMS's participation in "Hospital Compare" is part of its Hospital Quality Initiative, which in turn is part of a national Quality Initiative that also focuses on improving the quality of care in home health agencies and nursing homes. The national Quality Initiative is an important step in CMS's comprehensive quality strategy which consists of four elements:

- Regulation and enforcement activities conducted by state survey agencies and CMS;
- Improved information for consumers on quality care;
- On-going, community-based quality improvement programs for providers; and
- Collaboration and partnerships to leverage knowledge and resources.

Stratis Health is a nonprofit independent quality improvement organization that collaborates with health care providers and consumers to improve health care. The organization has served in Minnesota as the Medicare QIO for many of its 32 years in existence. Since the advent of the quality improvement approach in the early 1990s, Stratis Health has focused on collaborative improvement work with hospitals, clinics, health plans, and most recently, nursing homes and home health agencies.

TRF women share a kidney

While waiting for a kidney transplant, Burkel was on dialysis for 14 months. For many months, she was on peritoneal dialysis. Four times a day at home, she was hooked up to a bag for about 30 minutes each time to filter impurities out of her body. She also gave herself an Epogen shot once a week to increase her red blood cell count.

After undergoing hernia surgery last September, she went on hemodialysis for three months. As a result, she traveled to Grand Forks or Fargo, N.D., three times a week. Each time, she spent four or five hours waiting as her blood cycled through a machine. While she waited, it removed waste from her body, and then the clean blood was put back into her body.

As she waited for a kidney transplant and endured dialysis, she publicized her search for a kidney donor. Around the same time, Hesse was reading the Redeemer Lutheran Church bulletin. She read about Burkel's quest to receive a new kidney and how the donor needed to have an O blood type.

Hesse researched the kidney donation process. She decided to donate her kidney, and her family supported her decision. "My family has been phenomenal," said Hesse about her husband, Vince; and children, Pascale, 14; and Vince, 8.

Hesse called the transplant coordinator to say she was willing to be tested. She was told a donor had already been found, but later learned that potential donor apparently wasn't able to donate a kidney.

A month later, the transplant coordinator called and asked Hesse if she would be willing to have blood drawn. Two days later, Hesse discovered she was a match. She said she went "through a wringer" of tests for a few months to see if she could give a kidney to Burkel.

"I didn't want to meet her until I knew I would do it," Hesse said. In February 2005, Hesse learned she would be able to donate the kidney.

With Hesse sitting in her office, the transplant coordinator called Burkel. Burkel recalled, "She said, 'Do you want to talk to your donor?'"

Of course, Burkel wanted to talk to Hesse, a stranger who has since become a friend. Burkel said she was "very excited and almost shocked" that a donor had been found.

Burkel added she has always felt God has been orchestrating things in her life. "I felt if I was supposed to get a kidney, it was going to happen," she said.

Hesse and Burkel met in person for the first time in February 2005. Ironically, they learned Hesse's son is a Boy Scout in the troop led by Burkel's son Rob. They also discovered Hesse and one of Burkel's sons went to school together.

Now they have another thing in common - a kidney, which they jokingly refer to as Burkel's "Lutheran kidney" since Hesse is Lutheran and Burkel is Catholic.

The surgeries

Burkel received the new kidney on March 15. At 5 a.m. that day, her kidney donor, Hesse, went into the hospital to have one of her kidneys removed. Two-and-a-half hours later, the operation began.

Three surgeons were responsible for Hesse's surgery. "Of course, I want the one with the smaller hand," said Hesse, both jokingly and seriously. She noted it didn't exactly work that way.

Small incisions were made on Hesse's body to remove one of her kidneys. A three- to four-inch cut was made to enable surgeons to take out the kidney. Hesse referred to her incisions as scratches or something similar to what one might experience with a gallbladder surgery. At 9:30 a.m., she was in the recovery room.

Meanwhile, Burkel was being admitted into the hospital. A few hours later, she was out of surgery after gaining an extra kidney. Her own kidneys weren't removed, Burkel said.

For Hesse's part, she noted the transplant surgery was harder on her husband than on her. "I said, 'Sedate him and keep me awake,'" she remembered.

Her husband stayed in her hospital room while she recovered there. He was "absolutely exceptional," said Hesse, noting that her 6-foot-5-inch husband slept scrunched up on a pullout bed during her hospital stay. She added he refused to sleep anywhere else.

Hesse said she took pain pills for a short time after her surgery and cannot lift anything heavy for six to eight weeks after her surgery.

Burkel's insurance paid for Hesse's medical costs. Due to laws regarding organ donation, Hesse had to cover her own expenses pertaining to her loss of wages, her transportation to Fargo, and her hotel room and food while she stayed in Fargo.

And Hesse would be willing to go through it again. Despite the monetary, physical and emotional costs, Hesse said, "If I could do it again, I would."

For her part, Burkel has been taking approximately 20 medications a day since her transplant surgery. Eventually, she will only have to take two anti-rejection pills a day for the rest of her life.

Even though she has to take those medications, Burkel is looking forward to life with her new kidney. She's no longer on dialysis and doesn't have to schedule her days around her dialysis and/or bring her dialysis equipment with her.

"I'm looking forward to seeing my niece in Green Bay, Wisconsin, and not having to bring all these things along," Burkel said.

Helping hands

Both women have received support from their families, friends, coworkers and employers before, during and after their surgeries.

Hesse works full-time at Digi-Key in international sales and part-time as a waitress at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. She has received support from her employers and coworkers at both places. Hesse was able to return to work at Digi-Key on April 10. In May, once she is allowed to lift more weight, she will be able to return to the Evergreen.

"Digi-Key has been so wonderful," said Hesse, who noted that the management has been phenomenal to let her have time off.

Hesse described a caravan of Evergreen staff who brought a week's worth of food to her family and brought her flowers after her surgery.

"The community has been unbelievable," Hesse said.

Hesse also received help from her parents-in-law and sister after she recovered from the surgery. "I was baby-sat until I went back to work," said Hesse, who stayed with her parents-in-law for a week after the transplant surgery. A week later, her sister stayed with her for a week at Hesse's home. Her sister also cared for Hesse's children while Hesse was hospitalized.

Burkel has been told she can return to work in three months. She works in transcription in the Northwest Medical Center Physical Therapy Department. Burkel also works on a fill-in basis at Dakota Clinic. Both employers have been supportive, she said.

Support from employers and others have helped Burkel and Hesse before and after their surgeries. The support they've received from each other has surely helped as well, and they have a bond that will last for years.

"I think she's a very special person," Burkel said.

"I'm sure we'll keep in touch," Hesse said.

And they can laugh about the "Lutheran kidney" that's 20 years younger than the rest of Burkel.

A traveling museum or "BUSeum" made its way to Thief River Falls on Monday. The traveling museum was created by Dr. Michael Luick-Thrams, director of a non-profit Iowa based organization called TRACES. The exhibit called "Behind Barbed Wire," detailed the experiences of American POWs who were captured while fighting against Nazi Germany.

City of Thief River Falls
$ 532,300

During the Small Cities Development Program grant award ceremony held April 14 in St. Paul, Thief River Falls Community Development Director Mike Moore (left) accepted a $532,300 grant from Matt Kramer, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development. # Discussions continue about Greenwood Street bridge

The bridge will span from the Greenwood Street and Oakland Park Road intersection across the Red Lake River and through Greenwood Cemetery to Pennington Avenue South.

Council member Harriet Worker noted the bridge is needed to ease traffic congestion, especially with substantial growth on the southside of Thief River Falls. She added she has attended numerous meetings, where traffic congestion at the intersection of First Street and Main Avenue has been discussed.

Disagreeing with Worker, Kajewski said the bridge will not reduce traffic congestion since it will lead to more traffic on Pennington Avenue.

Regarding the potential bridge, street improvements and railroad crossing, Kajewski said, "It doesn't make good planning sense to me to do one without the other."

No decisions were made regarding those projects. More discussions are expected. A public hearing is expected this fall about the Greenwood Street bridge.

Council members learned the Barzen Avenue construction project will remain in the 2005 Street and Utilities Improvement Project.

Council member Ken Schmalz told his colleagues he had attended an April 8 meeting at Arctic Cat about the Barzen Avenue project. He said Arctic Cat officials have put their blessing on the project.

That decision came after a consultant hired by Arctic Cat studied drainage in that area. Among Arctic Cat's concerns was the possibility that some of its product, located outside near Barzen Avenue, could be damaged by flooding. Arctic Cat representatives did not attend the April 12 council meeting.

At a prior council meeting, Arctic Cat officials requested a six-week time extension to allow its consultant, Blake Carlson of JOR Engineering of Crookston, to study drainage in that area. In the meantime, council members decided to leave the Barzen Avenue project in the 2005 Street and Utilities Improvement Project with the option to remove it after Carlson presented his findings.

After Carlson's presentation, it was determined Barzen Avenue will be improved this year. Adjacent to the Arctic Cat and Digi-Key properties, that section of Barzen Avenue is currently gravel. It spans an area adjacent to County Ditch 70, which is maintained by Pennington County.

This year, Barzen Avenue will have 16 inches of gravel and pavement to aid car traffic. Curb and gutter would not be placed along the roadway.

Lindberg has recommended that the city, Pennington County, Digi-Key and Arctic Cat pay for the estimated $150,000 project. The four entities have already agreed to pay for the project, which Digi-Key had asked the council to consider.

City Council approved the transfer of real property from the city to the Thief River Golf Club. The property was transferred for $1, according to City Administrator Jodie Torkelson.

About 10 years ago, that property was transferred to the city in order for the golf course to become an 18-hole golf course. Due to the property transfer, the city was able to buy supplies for that project and help complete the construction of the 18-hole golf course. The golf course was also changed from a private golf course to a public golf course. At that time, city leaders and golf course officials signed the agreement with the understanding the property would eventually be transferred back to the golf course, which is what has now happened.

More information may be available at a later date.

The council approved obtaining bids for a new sanitation truck. The Sanitation Department is seeking a conventional automatic truck to replace a 1980 sanitation truck. The department has $75,000 in its budget for the vehicle, Lindberg said.

Mayor Dale Wennberg signed a proclamation proclaiming April 29 as Arbor Day. On that day, city leaders will plant two trees at Ralph Engelstad Arena during a ceremony.

The next council meeting is scheduled April 26 at 5 p.m. at City Hall. Prior to the council meeting, a public hearing will be held regarding the environmental information worksheet for water treatment plant sludge management. That public hearing is scheduled from 4 to 5 p.m. April 26.

Gary Heden took time out of his day to view the "Behind Barbed Wire" BUSeum exhibit at the Thief River Falls Public Library on Monday. The exhibit drew a total of 357 visitors during its four-hour stay in Thief River Falls.

County Board considers its highway department's plans

$1.2 million.

The plan's fifth year, 2009, calls for CSAH 3 to be overlaid to 10-ton designation from Highway 59, east to CSAH 27. The overlay's estimated cost is $1.8 million. Also planned for 2009 is grading of CSAH 31, at a cost of $795,000.

Engineer's Items

- Bids were received and opened by County Engineer Mike Flaagen and assistant engineer George Broadwell for cracksealing and crushing, screening and stockpiling of class one aggregate for the upcoming construction season. Because of an error in the legal notice, that listed the bid letting date as April 23, none of the cracksealing bids were accepted. Five bids were received for cracksealing, which have been tabled for review by Pennington County Attorney Dave Olin.

Four bids were received for crushing, screening and stockpiling of class one aggregate. The lowest bid, $52,350 was received and accepted from Dale Vogt Dirt Service of Bemidji.

- The board approved a contract for custodial services between Green View Inc. and the Pennington County Joint Operations Facility. The contract length is one year. Green View is a non-profit company based in Fargo, N.D. that hires "needy elderly persons" for maintenance work. Green View will recruit and hire its own employees, advertising for ages 55 and older.
- Flaagen presented commissioners with the Pennington County Highway Department's annual summary of highway information for 2004. During 2004, the Highway Department spent $1.4 million maintaining 655.5 miles of road (CSAH-regular, CSAH-municipal and county roads), both paved and gravel. Construction projects totaled $2.4 million.

The Highway Department listed a total fund balance of $1.7 million. Unallocated costs-CSAH regular totalled $249,926, unallocated costs-CSAH Municipal totalled $2,900.75; and unallocated costs local totalled $389,820.18.

The Highway Department also listed the following expenditure totals for Federal Highway Administration reporting: snow and ice control, $78,955.10; right of way purchases, $129,356.75; engineering, $264,553.67; construction, $2,172,809.50; and building and equipment, $215,749.78.

- Flaagen reported that Blake Carlson Engineering, a firm hired by Arctic Cat, finished its study of CD-70. Blake Carlson reported that improvements to Barzen Ave. will have no new impact on the Arctic Cat property. The City of Thief River Falls requested a meeting between the entities to finalize plans for the project. As of Tuesday's board meeting, a date and time had not yet been determined.
- The board reviewed and approved the terms of agreement for the joint operations facility that will house the Pennington County Highway Department, Mn/DOT and the Minnesota DNR.

Sheriff's Items

Pennington County Sheriff Mike Hruby presented two items to the board.

- The board approved the hiring of two part-time Sheriff's Department employees. The board approved the hiring of Kelsey Jensen as part-time office clerk and Adam Thompson as part-time dispatcher/jailer.
- The board also approved the state of Minnesota Sentence to Serve contract.

Hruby updated the board on discussions with Red Lake County, potentially contracting with Pennington County for jail services. Hruby has been in contact with commissioners from Red Lake County and will likely host jail tours soon.

Hruby reported that the jail has an average daily population between 60 and 65. Secure cell population is close to 100 percent, with 40-45 inmates typically housed in the minimum security annex.

The board approved a wetland exemption for Johnathan Pream. Brian Malone of the Pennington SWCD presented an application for a wetland exemption. The exemption will allow pream to build a 33 feet by 60 feet driveway, with a culvert, to cross the wetland, which currently restricts access to his property.

Bonnie Stewart of People Connection presented an overview of her non-profit business. The People Connection, part of the People's Alliance for Living (PAL), was started in 2000 after its home community of Fosston lost five young men to suicide between the years of 1997 and 1999.

According to Stewart, suicide is the second leading cause of death among 15- to 24-year-olds and third for 10- to 14-year-olds.

Recent funding allowed the connection to expand into Pennington County. The connection and PAL work with schools and communities. Since becoming the first state granted suicide prevention organization in 2000, PAL has reached over 4,500 middle and high schools students with awareness training.

Over 2,500 faculty, staff and administration have been trained in suicide prevention. It has provided advanced suicide prevention training to health care and law enforcement professionals.

The program's state grant would have been funded through 2006, but 2005 legislation threatens its future.

Bob Goede presented the Minnesota Counties Insurance Trust annual report. MCIT is celebrating the completion of its 25th year of service in 2005.

Since its beginning in 1979, MCIT has changed its focus from collecting contributions from members and paying claims, to collection contributions, managing claims, preventing and/or mitigating losses and more.

Early coverage was limited to worker's compensation in 1979 and property/casualty, which was added in 1988. Now coverage is tailored to meet the needs of its clients, including accidental death coverage for law enforcement K-9, employee dishonesty, equipment breakdown and others.

Currently, MCIT has 461 member organizations, including 81 counties.

Other Items

- The board approved a bid of $3,142.33 by [illegible] of Thief River Falls for electrical work in a recently constructed storage garage at Oakland Park Nursing Home.
- The next meeting of the Pennington County Board of Commissioners will be April 26, [illegible]

Jim Snyder, president of Border State Bank in Thief River Falls, presents a donation for $252 to Jim Sims, activities director in School District 564 - Thief River Falls. The donation represents funds pledged during the Sweet Shots campaign conducted by Border State Bank during the month of February. During that month, each three-point shot (Sweet Shot), during varsity home or away games, was awarded with a $3 donation from the bank. The proceeds of the fundraising effort will be divided into thirds with one-third going to the girl's basketball program, one-third to the boy's basketball program, and one third to a non-athletic program (this year, the post prom event).

Border State Bank Sweet Shot program generates donations

Border State Bank's Sweet Shot fundraising effort in February generated over $250 for Lincoln High School — Thief River Falls programs.

"We saw a lot of enthusiasm from the crowd, and that's what we wanted," said Tami Bredeson, marketing and sales director of Border State Bank.

The Sweet Shot program awarded each three-point shot made during boys and girls varsity basketball games in February. Four schools, including Thief River Falls, which are all located at Border State Bank locations, were included in the contest.

Since this was the first year of the Sweet Shot promotion, Border State Bank didn't know what to expect. When the totals came in, Bredeson said Jim Snyder, president of Border State Bank in Thief River Falls, decided to triple the dollars. For Thief River Falls, the total donation amounted to $252. For Thief River Falls teams that meant that during the month of February 28 three-point shots were made.

Bredeson said the donation will be divided in thirds between boy's and girl's basketball programs, and a non-athletic group. She said it is Border State Bank's hope that this will give students who wouldn't normally attend a basketball game incentive to attend games and support their teams. The recipient of one-third of the donation going to a non-athletic program at Lincoln High School is the post prom party.

4-H holds Regional 4-H Communication Arts Contest

The Regional 4-H Communication Arts Contest was held April 11 in Karlstad. There were 17 participants in the annual event, which had a theme of "Youth Against Prejudice."

This year, the Center for 4-H Youth Development, in cooperation with the Jewish Community Relations Council, is sponsoring scholarships or trips to Israel for the senior state winners and $100 savings bonds to the intermediate state winners in each category. Contest participants could exhibit their talents in Creative Writing, Public Speaking, Photo Story, and/or Interpretive Reading. Participants were placed in one of four age divisions: cloverbud, beginner, intermediate or senior.

Among Pennington County participants, the first place winners were:

- Creative Writing, Intermediate Division – Erica Wayne of Happy Acres 4-H Club
- Public Speaking, Intermediate Division – Erica Wayne of Happy Acres 4-H Club
- Photojournalism, Intermediate Division – Erica Wayne of Happy Acres 4-H Club

Wayne now advances to the state competition scheduled June 19 at the Sabes Jewish Community Center in St. Louis Park.

Other Pennington County 4-Hers participating in the Regional Communication Arts Contest included from Happy Acres 4-H Club – Christa Anderson, Gianna Anderson, Joshua Anderson, Kiara Anderson, Shania Sele and Erin Wayne; from Highlanding 4-H Club – Rachel Frederick and Sabine Frederick; and from Silverton 4-H Club – Makayla Peterson.

Erica Wayne, a member of Happy Acres 4-H Club, received first place in the Intermediate Division categories for Creative Writing, Public Speaking and Photojournalism at the Regional Communication Arts Contest held April 11 in Karlstad. She now advances to the state competition. (Submitted photo)

Public invited to help a bluebird at Old Mill State Park

This season brings with it many spring delights, including the return of songbirds. One of the most popular of these songbirds is the Eastern bluebird, decked out in bright blue feathers, a rusty colored throat and white belly.

On Saturday, April 30, bring the entire family to the picnic shelter at Old Mill State Park and help a bluebird during a birdhouse-building workshop. The workshop begins at 2 p.m. when park volunteers will give a presentation about the Eastern bluebird, how to select an appropriate site in a yard to attract bluebirds to the birdhouse being created, and how to maintain the birdhouse. After that, the construction of the birdhouses will begin. All nesting box material will be precut and ready for assembly. Materials for the birdhouse are free, but there is a limit of one box per family unless extra materials are available.

Those who plan to participate are asked to call the park before April 29, so volunteers can determine how many nesting boxes to have on hand. Participants should bring their own drills (cordless preferred) if they have any, otherwise drills will be provided.

The program is free and open to the public, however, a Minnesota State Park Vehicle Permit ($25 for an annual permit or $7 for a day permit) is required to enter the park and can be purchased at the park office.

The growth of the bluebird population in Minnesota is due largely to workshops and programs like this, where individuals create nesting boxes for these birds to encourage successful population growth.

At Old Mill State Park, bluebird nesting sites have doubled over the past year. Hopefully, workshop participants will have successful results in their own backyards.

For more information, call (218) 437-8174.

On April 15, over 50 students from Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls went on a field trip to the North Dakota Museum of Art on the University of North Dakota campus to see the Desparecidos exhibit, which in Spanish means the disappeared. The exhibit is a compilation of pictures of individuals who have "disappeared" in Latin America since the mid 20th century. (Submitted photo)

Over 50 LHS Spanish students visit Desaparecidos exhibit in Grand Forks

by Sheryl Novacek
LHS Spanish teacher

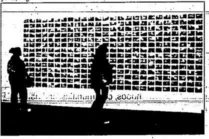
On April 15, over 50 students currently studying Spanish at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls took a field trip to the North Dakota Museum of Art on the University of North Dakota campus to view the Desaparecidos exhibit. The Spanish word "desaparecidos" means the disappeared. Many of the works in the exhibit were created by individuals who are friends or relatives of the tens of thousands of people who have "disappeared" in Latin America since the mid-20th century. The twelve artists featured present memories of the disappeared citizens of Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Venezuela, Colombia and Guatemala.

In many instances, the large-scale disappearances in the southern cone of South America - Chile, Argentina and Uruguay - are directly related to the dictatorship of Augusto Pinochet who deposed the democratically-elected President Salvador Allende of Chile. At that time, anyone who disagreed with the policies of Pinochet and the military might simply disappear. In a network of terror called "Operation Condor," Pinochet's followers expanded their atrocities to the entire southern portion of South America. Pinochet has been in and out of courts in South America and Europe for years, charged with crimes against humanity; but the varying impunity and immunity statutes, combined with the fact that Pinochet is now 89 years old, make it unlikely that he will ever be punished for these crimes.

One of the confirmed methods of eliminating the "disappeareds" was to drug them and drop their bodies into the estuary of the Río de la Plata which borders Argentina and Uruguay. In the case of pregnant women who were abducted, they were kept alive until their babies were born, at which time they were killed and their babies were adopted by military families. The children of these adoptions have, over the years, begun to learn of their birth parents and the horrifying circumstances of their adoptions, in their search for a true identity.

Not all disappearances were the result of the actions of Pinochet and his armies, and it would be impossible to isolate one cause. Other factors that have been suggested were drug disputes, oil concerns and, in the case of Guatemala, genocide. Even now, mass graves are being discovered in Guatemala with the remains of Indigenous Maya peoples. Given the absence of dental records and DNA technology, many of these "disappeareds" will never be identified.

The common denominator with all of the survivors is that they want to have their family members returned for proper burials; and although they are disappeared, they do not want their family members to be forgotten. It is unlikely that the Spanish students who visited the exhibit will soon forget.



A student from Lincoln High School, Thief River Falls, examines some of the photos included in an exhibit called Desparecidos, which in Spanish means the disappeared. The exhibit is now on display at the North Dakota Museum of Art on the campus of the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D. Over 50 students went on a field trip on April 15 to see the exhibit. (Submitted photo)

Vatthauer Farm Supply/Qualify Farm Supply in Thief River Falls recently won a new Arctic Cat All-Terrain Vehicle in the N-Tense Sweepstakes drawing. The owners were entered into the drawing by ordering N-Tense, an ammonium sulfate replacement product from Willmar based West Central Inc., distributor of crop protection and plant food inputs. When used as an ammonium sulfate replacement with glyphosate, N-Tense gives faster and better results, and is more convenient to use than dry AMS bags or high volume additives. Pictured at the presentation ceremony were: (from left) Darrell Hursman, West Central Inc.; Brian Vatthauer; Dean Vatthauer; Randy Adamson of RV Sports, Arctic Cat dealer; Gary Clow, Quality Farm Supply; and Joel Lynne, West Central Inc.

Jump Rope for Heart fundraiser raises second highest total

Students at Challenger Elementary in grades two through five recently participated in a fund raising event for the American Heart Association. One hundred-ninety students participated in the event this year. Jump Rope for Heart students raised over $13,588.58 this year, the second highest total in school history. The top 10 money collectors were: Mia Nelson, Tobin Pietras-Swanton, Miranda Sumner, Tyler Wilebski, Samantha Langlie, Billie Lindland, Madison Brekke, Brooklyn Anderson, Chandler Grindeland and Cheyenne Willoughby.

Several businesses and volunteers made the fundraiser successful.

NATIONAL VOLUNTEER WEEK • APRIL 17-23, 2005

Volunteerism – Your opportunity to help and grow

While the dictionary defines the word "volunteer" as a person who serves without pay, a volunteer is so much more.

They are the people who are making a difference in the lives of our children, lightening the loads of staff members at our hospitals and nursing homes, and brightening the days of our senior citizens and shut-ins. There is not one segment of the population that is not served by volunteers. Volunteers are the individuals that make a town a community – a place we want to call home.

National Volunteer Week began in 1974 when President Richard Nixon signed an executive order establishing the week as an annual celebration of volunteering, and every president since, has signed a proclamation promoting National Volunteer Week. During his State of the Union Address, President Bush called on all Americans to give at least two years of their lives – the equivalent of 4,000 hours – to service to their neighborhoods, communities, and nation.

You are never too young or too old to volunteer. If you have never volunteered before, ask yourself the following questions:

- What am I interested in doing as a volunteer?
- Do I want to do something I am good at?
- What do I want to learn about?
- Do I want to learn a new skill?
- Do I want to volunteer in something that is related to my job?
- How much time can I dedicate to volunteering?
- Do I want to volunteer on a daily, weekly, monthly, or episodic basis?
- Do I have an area of expertise that would benefit an organization?

Once you've determined how you want to volunteer, call one of the agencies listed below. Many of these agencies are run by volunteers, and your help would be greatly appreciated.

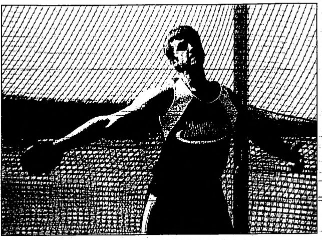
The Thief River Falls TIMES



Erik Brenna of Thief River Falls tossed the discus Monday during the Northland Pioneer Invitational boys and girls high school track meet at Lowell T. Swenson Field.

High school track meet at Lowell T. Swenson Field...

EGF wins two Northland titles

East Grand Forks won both portions of the Northland Pioneer Invitational boys and girls high school track meet Monday at Lowell T. Swenson Field. The Green Wave girls out-scored second place Stephen-Argyle 185-71, while the Green Wave boys finished with a 181-135 edge over runner-up Thief River Falls.

Six schools participated in the event, sponsored by Northland Community and Technical College, on a warm, windy afternoon.

It was the first outdoor meet of the year for the Prowlers, who had three individual first place finishers: Katie Walrath in the girls 200-meter dash, Scott Rakozy in the boys 400 and Sam Mattison in the boys pole vault.

The Lowell T. Swenson Field track will be the site of the Thief River Falls Quent Jones Invitational Friday, April 29.

Prowlers beat Gators with a five-run sixth

This time the comeback wasn't quite as dramatic, but a late-game rally was still needed Saturday before Thief River Falls emerged with a 7-3 high school baseball win over Badger/Greenbush-Middle River at the Multi-Events Center.

The Prowlers overcame a 6-1 deficit and won a 7-6 eight-inning Thursday season-opener against Roseau. Saturday, the Gators led 3-2 before Thief River Falls scored five times in the bottom of the sixth to win 7-3.

Strong pitching by starter Jon Drees kept the Prowlers in the game until the bats came alive, and seventh inning relief pitching by Alex Carlson sealed it. Drees did not give up an earned run in his six innings of work. He struck out eight and walked one. Carlson struck out the side after starting the seventh with a walk.

"Once again, we hung in there and came back late," said Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "Our pitching was outstanding."

The Prowlers did start with a 2-0 first inning on back-to-back one-out errors and an RBI single by Carlson.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River bunched its offense into the fourth inning on the strength of two base hits, a hit-batsman and an error.

Thief River Falls' sixth inning outburst began with singles by Carlson and Michael Benedict. A one-out walk issued to Wyatt Reed loaded the bases and a walk given to Justin Brooks forced in the game-tying run. The big blow in the inning was a two-out, two-run single to center by Helling.

"They gave us chances early and we didn't capitalize," explained Zutz. "We are talking to our hitters about getting more offensive. We seem to be thinking too much and not letting our natural ability take over."

Prowlers are part of Tri-State Invitational golf meet at U-of-M

Thief River Falls boys high school golf coach Dick Tyler was excited when he received news that the Prowlers had landed a spot in the prestigious Tri-State Invitational at the University of Minnesota this spring. He wasn't, however, nearly as enthused when the results came in.

Fargo South won the 24-team event played Friday and Saturday at the Les Bolstad Golf Course with a 614 – two shots better than both White Bear Lake and Anoka. Thief River Falls, meanwhile, came in at 679 and a tie for 20th.

"The team did not play the course very well," admitted Tyler. "We had hoped to finish somewhere in the middle of the team totals."

Spot trouble added strokes to the Prowlers' individual and team totals, according to Tyler. "We had a few holes that led to our higher individual totals, which then means a higher team total," he explained. "The team will not place very high in golf meets if we need to count one or more scores in the 90's."

Jordan Ensrud of Anoka was medalist with a 67-74–171 over the par-71 course.

Teams played with five players, counting the low four scores each day. Line-up changes were allowed after Day 1.

A pitch was delivered by Northland's Rochelle Nelk during Friday's Minnesota Community College Conference softball match-up against Hibbing at the Multi-Events Center. Nelk, a freshman from Wheaton, shares the Pioneers' pitching duties with Shannon Olson, a freshman from Bagley.

Top-ranked Pioneers lose close decisions

With a 4-0 start in Northern Division play and a 12-2 record overall, Northland began last week as the No. 1-ranked team in the Minnesota Community College Conference state softball poll. But a a 1-5 home stand will make it a short stay atop the charts.

The downward slide began with 7-6, 9-6 Wednesday losses to Central Lakes. A Friday split against Hibbing included a 5-2 Game 1 win for the Cardinals and a 10-2 eight-run rule six-inning Game 2 victory for the Pioneers. Saturday, Rainy River came up with a pair of one-run wins, 4-3, 2-1.

All that added up to a 5-5 Northern Division record and a 13-7 overall mark for the Pioneers.

"We're struggling with the bats," admitted Northland coach Kathy Huschle. "Actually, we're making contact, but we're making too many fly-ball outs. We're making it too easy on teams. We've got to hit the ball on the ground and force teams to make plays."

Those fly balls are robbing the Pioneers of a chance to use one of their best assets, explained Huschle. "We've got good team speed," she said. "We can steal bases and put

Berg, Prowlers shut out West Fargo, 1-0

Megan Berg pitched a three-hit shutout Friday as Thief River Falls won a 1-0 Friday high school softball game at West Fargo, N.D.

It was a pitcher's duel between Berg and the Packers' Amber Jerger, who threw a four-hitter.

"The two pitchers were on their game," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson. "There were only four or five hard-hit balls all day. Megan hit her spots all day, except for two pitches."

One of the Berg 'misses' was a one-out line drive over the head of the center fielder in the bottom of the seventh. But on the hit, the Prowlers came up with what Okeson called the "defensive play of the game" as Kjelsy Loeffler played the ball off the fence and quickly got the throw to the infield to hold the runner to a double.

"If she gets to third with one out, they bunt her home and tie the game," explained Okeson.

Berg struck out the final two batters to end the game, giving her 14 for the day.

Thief River Falls scored the game's only run in the fifth inning when Amanda Timm laced a single to left and advanced on a wild pitch. The extra base allowed Chasity Johnson an opportunity to swing away instead of giving herself up on a sacrifice bunt. Johnson capitalized on the situation by sending a bouncer that hopped over the corner of the bag at third and went for an RBI double.

"It was not a well-hit ball, but it was effective," noted Okeson.

Another Thief River Falls defensive gem came in the sixth when Brittni Johnson snagged a hard-hit ball behind her head to preserve the Prowlers' 1-0 lead.

"We got the one big hit today, and they did not," said Okeson.

It was the second win in as many starts for the Prowlers.

"We need to work on our base running," mentioned Okeson. "We got caught stealing twice and ran Northland first baseman Bekah Lindgren stretched to field a throw that retired Hibbing runner Tayna Albano during Friday's Minnesota Community College Conference softball action at the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls. The two teams split the Northern Division doubleheader, with the Cardinals winning the opener 5-2 and the Pioneers taking the nightcap 10-2.

Northland sweeps MCCC baseball twinbill

Northland swept Hibbing 8-5, 5-2 Saturday to stay in the race for a Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division pennant.

The Pioneers start the third week of MCCC play with a 3-1 record in the Northern Division, where front-runner Itasca is 5-1. Third place Mesabi Range is 4-2.

Sunday, Northland split a nonconference twinbill against Minot State University-Bottineau, winning the first game 9-2 before losing the nightcap 10-5.

The Saturday games were the first to be played on the Northland diamond this spring. Earlier in the week the Pioneers' home opener took at the Multi-Events Center. Sunday's twinbill was played at Bottineau, N.D.

Northland was 10-11 overall heading into a home field rematch today (Wednesday) vs. MSU-Bottineau.

The Pioneers will also play a nonconference twinbill at Dakota County Tech Thursday before getting back into Northern Division schedule with doubleheaders Saturday vs. Vermilion and Sunday at Hibbing.

All Northland doubleheaders have 1 p.m. start times.

Gators shut down TRF offense

Problems on offense and defense added up to a 2-0 Thief River Falls loss Saturday in a high school softball match-up with Badger/Greenbush-Middle River at the Multi-Events Center.

The Prowlers' hit and error totals were identical – four – as they lost for the first time in three starts.

"We did not show up defensively, and we lacked the big hit" said Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson. "We mis-played three fly-ball outs and that was the difference."

Angie Flaten recorded the second shutout in two days for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River pitching after Ashley Walton two-hit Red Lake County Central in a 12-0 Friday victory. The Prowlers were also coming off a Friday shutout – a 1-0 win at West Fargo.

The Gators got the only run needed for the win in the third when Missy Bruggeman laid down a one-out drag bunt and was ruled safe on a close play at first. She stole second and scored on a two-out line drive to center that knocked the glove off the outfielder's hand. The ball popped out for an error.

Bruggeman scored an insurance run in the fifth on lead-off single to left that was mishandled for an error and an extra base. A sacrifice bunt and sacrifice fly plated the run, although a strong throw from left fielder Kayla Gallagher made for a close play at the plate.

Thief River Falls pitcher Megan Berg struck out 10, but the Gators did finish with eight hits.

"Megan and (catcher) Kindra Trontvet kept us in it," said Okeson. "They moved the ball around. But B/G-MR came up with the big hits when needed. When you play teams this caliber, you can not give any extra at-bats and extra bases. We gave them three extra at-bats and two extra bases on errors. Instead of forcing them to bunt and getting outs, they were able to swing away. And they are very good at the plate."

The game, rescheduled from an original April 1 playing date, was the Prowlers' 2005 home opener.

"It was a great game to watch and fun to play in for the girls," said Okeson. "They were very disappointed after the game. This group is starting to understand the game, and growth from these last two games should provide us with some extra incentive come post-season."

pressure on the other teams. But to do that, we have to get on base."

Hibbing's first-game win came on the strength of a four-run third inning that featured a three-run home run by Tanya Albano.

"That home run pretty much was the game," confirmed Huschle. "That really took a lot out of our kids."

Northland rebounded in Game 2 when a 13-hit offense backed the one-hit pitching by Shannon Olson. Katie Walseth and Angie Van Maasdem had three hits each for the winners.

The Pioneers' offense took a step backwards Saturday when they could muster just four runs in 14 innings off Rainy River pitcher Linsey Imhof.

Rainy River used an inning-opening walk, fielder's choice and back-to-back singles to score two runs in the top of the seventh for the 4-3 Game 1 win.

Northland pitcher Rochelle Nelk worked six shutout innings in Game 2, but a pair of Rainy River runs in the fifth still proved to be enough for the 2-1 win and the sweep.

While disappointed with the results, Huschle said the Pioneers can still gain confidence in close setbacks. "The good news is the fact that all the teams we lost to, we know we can beat," she said.

TRF wins 11-1 game

Thief River Falls combined seven hits with nine walks and three Red Lake County errors as the Prowlers won an 11-1 high school baseball match-up at the Multi-Events Center Monday.

The win pushed the Prowlers' early-season record to 3-0.

"We took advantage of their mistakes when we had the chance," offered Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz.

The Prowlers shattered a 1-1 tie with a five-run third inning, then hit the 10-run rule spread by scoring twice in the fourth inning and three times in the fifth.

"Once again, I thought our pitching and defense set the tone until we got going offensively," said Zutz.

The Prowlers' offense featured a 3-for-3, 2 RBI-game for Lucas Genereux and a 2-for-2 afternoon by Alec Holen. They both scored three runs.

Players were greeted by unseasonably warm temperatures and extremely high winds.

DNR duck meeting scheduled for TRF

Duck hunters who want to provide input on this fall's duck season regulations and learn more about state habitat issues are invited to Department of Natural Resources meetings at 18 locations around the state on Thursday, April 28, from 7-9 p.m.

One of those sites will be Thief River Falls, where the meeting will be held in Room 654 at Northland Community and Technical College.

"The meetings are designed to do two things," said John Guenther, director of the DNR's Fish and Wildlife Division. "First, we want to know the pulse of the public on bag limits, season length, zones and split-seasons, spinning-wing decoys, the youth waterfowl hunt and various waterfowl regulation options, including over-the-water Canada goose hunting in the early seasons. Second, we want to share our information on habitat, populations and regulations so that those who attend have a deeper understanding of the issues and what needs to occur to make a difference."

The DNR is developing a comprehensive duck recovery plan. Ducks Unlimited, Delta Waterfowl, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and various conservation organizations have agreed to help develop the final plan by December. Citizens will have an opportunity to discuss elements of the plan at the meetings.

Guenther said in a typical year the DNR adds some 3,000 acres to its wildlife management area system, restores 50 to 100 wetlands, plants 10,000 to 20,000 acres of grasslands, manages 250 shallow lakes and conducts numerous research projects, including placing leg bands on nearly 10,000 ducks and geese.

"Good things are happening every day, but they are offset by so many other things on the local, national and international level that are detrimental to the quality or quantity of our wetlands, nesting cover and other duck needs," Guenther said.

A rose is not a rose is not a rose.

Some die soon. Don't waste your money on roses which don't live through our winters!

Instead, plant the hardy roses from the Morden Experiment Station in Manitoba. Unlike the non-hardy tea roses, the Canadian roses survive our winters without cover. Choose from several beautiful colors.

The Morden Blush blooms light pink several times per summer on a two-foot bush. It can be combined with the dark pink Morden Centennial to make a stunning hedge. Both roses feature classy, tea-rose like foliage.

The William Baffin rose grows large enough to be trained onto an arbor or trellis, or it can stand alone. One area gardener reported 424 blooms on her William Baffin two years ago.

The Morden Sunrise, the first orange-yellow repeat blooming rose from Canada, features a tangerine scent.

The Morden Ruby blooms a mauve red, while the petite Winnipeg Parks rose features cherry-red blossoms.

The Cuthbert Grant red is the most fragrant of the hardy varieties, while the Hope for Humanity blooms blood-red all summer.

Please remember to plant your roses about four to five inches deeper than the crown.

Purchase your roses in the bare root building at Bergeson's. They can be planted as soon as you can dig a hole. See pictures of many of these roses at www.bergesonnursery.com.

Tree seedlings made available

Tree seedlings in a limited number of species are available from state forest nurseries, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"White pine, silver maple, white spruce, red cedar, red oak, pin oak, green ash and jack pine can still be ordered from General Andrews and Badoura nurseries," said Steve Vongroven, a DNR nursery supervisor. "If ordered before May 10, the seedlings can be shipped by common carrier at a charge of $13 per thousand seedlings or picked up at the nearest state forest nursery."

After May 10, remaining supplies of tree seedlings can be obtained through over-the-counter sales. A person has go to one of the two state forest nurseries to place a seedling order, which they can take home the same day. Over-the-counter sales will be offered until all seedling supplies are exhausted.

"Customers should call one of the nurseries before ordering to check out the tree species still available and from which nursery," said Vongroven. "Not all available species will be stocked at both nurseries."

General Andrews Nursery is near Willow River and can be reached at 218-372-3182. Badoura Nursery is near Park Rapids and can be reached at 218-652-2385. The tree seedling order form is available on the DNR Web site at http://www.dnr.state.mn.us/forestry/nurseries/index.html.

A minimum order of 500 trees is required. The price varies from $80 per 500 trees to $250 per 500 trees, depending on the species ordered. By state law, seedlings purchased from state forest nurseries must be used to establish or reforest wood lots, windbreaks and shelterbelts, or used for erosion control, soil and water conservation, or permanent food and cover for wildlife.

DNR holding firearms auction sale on April 23 in Twin Cities location

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will hold a firearms auction on Saturday, April 23. The firearms auction will only be open to those persons who possess a current/valid Federal Firearms Dealer's License and valid identification.

The auction is a cooperative effort of the DNR and the Minnesota State Surplus Property Operations.

The auction will be held at the Minnesota Department of Administration, surplus operations center, 5420 Highway 8, (County Road I & 35W), Arden Hills.

All firearms are sold as is, including all defects or faults, known or unknown. Firearms cannot be returned once they have been purchased.

Both long guns and handguns will be sold at this auction. People who purchase handguns, they must bring their own gun cases.

A list of the guns being auctioned will be available on the Department of Administration Web site www.mmd.admin.state.mn.us. The state auction hotline is 651-296-1056.

Live auctions conducted by the Minnesota Department of Administration during the year ending June 30, 2004, generated a record $6.2 million in revenue. Almost 90 percent was returned to the state agencies and governments providing the goods, with the rest funding operating expenses.

The Department of Administration has an online auction for surplus property at www.mnsurplus.org and a daily "garage sale" at the Arden Hills warehouse.

The warehouse is open weekdays from 8 a.m.-4 p.m., except holidays.

DNR wildlife poster photo contest is now under way

Third Department of Natural Resources Nongame Wildlife Checkoff photo contest is underway. DNR officials are asking Minnesota resident amateur and professional photographers to submit photos featuring live ospreys in the wild by the June 17 deadline.

Winning photos from the contest will be featured in the 2005 Nongame Wildlife Checkoff Poster, said Carrol Henderson, DNR Nongame Wildlife Program supervisor.

The poster which helps promote donations to the Nongame Wildlife Program, is available free to people who donate to the Wildlife Checkoff Fund on their Minnesota state tax forms.

Photographers may submit up to 12 original slides taken in Minnesota. Photos chosen to be included in the 2005 poster will be published with photo credit.

Contest winners will receive a framed copy of the poster featuring the winning photo, along with a choice of a complimentary copy of the best selling CD "Restore Your Shore" or a copy of the award winning book "Landscaping for Wildlife," both published by the DNR Nongame Wildlife Program.

Entry forms and contest rules may be obtained from the DNR Information Center by calling toll free 1-888-646-6367, or by visiting the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Contest searching for new life jacket design

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is cooperating with the Boat U.S. Foundation for Boating Safety and Clean Water and the Personal Flotation Device Manufacturers Association (PFDMA) to announce the "Innovations in Life Jacket Design Competition."

The goal of the nationwide contest is to encourage and solicit innovative ideas and new technology to design a life jacket that a majority of boaters will want to wear.

"We're helping spread the word about the contest because when someone comes up with a new life jacket design that is perceived as more desirable and worn by the public, fewer Minnesotans are going to die in boating accidents," said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist. "And for the winning designer, the $5,000 cash prize put up by the Boat U.S. Foundation and the PFDMA isn't a bad thing either."

The first modern foam life vests were designed in Minnesota and marketed in the mid 1960s by the late Maurice O'Link, cofounder of outdoor sporting goods maker Stearns Manufacturing in St. Cloud. Life jackets have come a long way from the crude cork vests or orange kapok life preservers to the introduction of slim-line fishing vests and life jackets that automatically inflate when a person enters the water, according to Smalley.

"I'd like to see the next advancement in life jackets come from Minnesota, too," he said. "Everyone is eligible to enter the competition. It would be great if the next big thing in life vests came from a university engineering student or better yet, an elementary school science class."

According to the U.S. Coast Guard, more than 80 percent of the people who have died in boating accidents would have survived if they had been wearing a life vest, because most people who perish in boating accidents succumb to drowning.

"It's a completely different scenario than car accidents," Smalley noted. "Most boating deaths involve a single-boat accident where the victim falls overboard or the boat capsizes. No thundering crash, no fireballs, no explosions. You just don't see nearly as many people across the country being killed in boat crashes compared to freshwater drowning."

DNR records indicate many victims do have swimming ability, but cold water or other factors prevent their survival because they can't stay afloat long enough to be rescued or climb back in the boat.

"Let's face it," Smalley said, "many people, especially men, look at wearing a life jacket as admitting weakness. For them, it is to be avoided at all cost. That's why we see incidents where a boat capsizes and the two little children on board, who were wearing life vests, survive. Dad or grandpa drowns because they were too embarrassed to be seen wearing a life jacket."

The winning design is not obliged to meet the stringent U.S. Coast Guard approval requirements to win. However, the necessary design elements should include wearability, reliability, innovation and cost.

"I think the winner will be someone who thinks completely outside the box to solve the age old problem of why boaters won't wear their life jacket," Smalley surmised.

The competition runs through Dec 15. The winner will be announced at the Miami Boat Show in Florida in February.

For more information, visit www.boatus.com/foundation/lifejacketdesign, or contact Ruth Wood at the Boat U.S. Foundation, 703-823-9550 ext. 3204; e-mail rwood@boatus.com; or Bernice McArdle at the PFDMA 312-946-6280; e-mail BMcArdle@nmma.org.

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota brought the first real rain to the area on Sunday afternoon. Elsie Lefrooth and I had just finished brunch that the Lions had served at the community center to help the Boy Scouts, when it began to rain in earnest. Some folks were happy to get rain and others thought it could have dried some more, thinking we might have to wait to get in the gardens. They reminded us of the Memorial Day frost which has a habit of coming on that date in this vicinity.

Between the intermittent showers, Elsie and I made our way to the nursing home to help Palmer Hallberg celebrate his birthday. Marlene Pearson usually has a party for him and several of his friends and neighbors were there and enjoyed a wonderful lunch. While there we visited many of our friends and relatives who are guests at the nursing home.

We also visited Rev. Riveness who had a leg amputated last week and was back at the home. He was doing fine considering he is 95 years of age and the surgery was quite radical. He was still singing those Scandinavian songs that brought joy and comfort to hundreds during his time. He has a God given gift to bring comfort and peace to sick and tired people and I have heard some who were ill ask if Riveness wasn't there yet? They were waiting for him. On Sunday, he said he wasn't able to use the crutches but not for a time then we would!

A benefit was held at the Karlstad Community Center for Robert Thompson who has spent the past two weeks in Rochester taking treatments. He came home on Saturday. More than 300 friends and relatives responded and had a nice dinner together. His brother, Richard Thompson, from Red Lake Falls accompanied him back to Rochester for a week's stay to help make the time a bit more pleasant.

Andrew Thompson and his fiancee, Erin, and Lisa Thompson and friend Jed had pancakes at Grandpa Isaac and Grandma Betsy Thompson's home on Saturday.

Paul and Shirley Anderson and Kristopher Anderson were among the many attending the benefit for Robert Thompson on Saturday evening. Eva Bernard visited at Paul and Shirley's home with Kristopher on Sunday before he left for Atlanta.

Lowell Lefrooth visited Grandma Elsie after he had the treatment on his shoulder last Thursday. We wish that it will soon be better.

David and Elaine visited Elsie Lefrooth on Saturday evening. Dean Holmstrom visited Elsie and helped her on Thursday.

Spring is really here! Among the plants I took up from their winter's nap only a week ago, the pink lady is opening its first lily today. I can hardly believe it, but maybe it's because we turned our clocks ahead? We may have longer evenings, but the sun is not up at 6:00 a.m. neither. I just saw a hummingbird out here and that means I have to put out some more feeders. Til next week---More sunshine!!!

Saturday morning, Ruth Sustad visited with Gordon and Adolle Anderson at Oakland Park and Gagney Irwin at Valley Home. She also visited at Liz Swenson's home.

Easter, Tammy Swanson and children spent from Thursday through Saturday at Halward Anderson's home. Easter Sunday dinner guests were Gerral and Marilyn Melvie from Bagley, John and Shelly Melvie and girls and Doug and Diane Hanson and boys.

Halward and Adolle Anderson met Lloyd and Dolores Raftersoth on Thursday morning in Grand Forks for a noon lunch.

Those in attendance Thursday for CW After 5 dinner meeting held at the Best Western were Leona Gustafson, Ruth Sustad, Ardelle Anderson, Betty, Lori and Sky Ranum. Also, Ruth Tostrup from Newfolden and Rose Sollid from Thief River Falls.

Thursday evening, Ruth Sustad was a supper guest at Jeremiah and Holly Vad's home.

Jill Hall visited with Liz Swenson on Friday afternoon. Joyce Kron was a Thursday afternoon visitor at Liz Swenson's home and brought Liz treats.

The Rosewood Homemakers held their March meeting at the home of Joyce Kron with nine members present. They were Jill Hall, Clarice Rooker, Hazel Olson, Linda Johnson, Enid Sande, Leo Schoy, Ruth Johnson and Juliet Moldsness. The lesson was led by Enid Sande.

The Rosebank Historical Association met at the New Solum Town Hall. A summary of last year's work was reviewed and a community picnic was held at the Rosebank School. The board voted to raise membership from $2.00 to $3.00 per year. Continued improvements are planned for the following year restoring the school house to its original condition.

Easter weekend, Mark Ranum from Waconia spent time at Betty Ranum's home. Thomas and Mary Carlson of Chicago were weekend guests. Kevin, Kim, and Sky Ranum of Thief River Falls were also dinner guests for Easter.

Marion Halvorson of Warren visited at Mother Liz's on Tuesday evening, and Wednesday Jill Hall called at Liz Swenson's home. Wednesday, Darren Holter came to visit in the evening and Darrel Swenson stopped in Friday morning. Friday afternoon granddaughter Shari came to visit.

The road ahead poses challenges for school board

What do you do when over $700,000 in new programs or program improvements are proposed?

The Board of Education for School District 564 has a difficult challenge ahead of it, but it's preferable to the problems faced by other school districts.

At its meeting on April 11, School District 564 Board of Education received a request to embrace soccer among its list of activities, or opportunities, offered to students in the District. Over 300 athletes have registered for soccer each of the three years it has been offered as a club sport in Thief River Falls. Obviously, it is a popular activity. The request was not unexpected, either. Recently, leaders of the soccer organization in Thief River Falls undertook the Prowler Process, which is the District's method of developing and presenting a proposal to the Board of Education. As of late, this isn't the only organization to undertake the Prowler Process and make a presentation to the Board of Education.

The Board of Education has received several worthy requests, like soccer, that would expand or enhance current programs offered in the District - all-day kindergarten is one of those requests. At the April 11 meeting, School Superintendent Irv Peterson said that if all of those requests were implemented, it would cost the District over $700,000.

Last November, residents in School District 564 approved a levy referendum that will eventually provide additional operating income to the District. Residents, however, seem to have already forgotten that the Board of Education has been making cuts and sparing students additional cuts for years by dipping into its fund balance. Had the referendum not passed, our Board of Education would now be looking at making over $1 million in cuts to the District's educational programs. The passing of the referendum and the potential for additional state aid will certainly help this District, but the increase doesn't mean the District has lots of extra cash to spend.

Peterson has urged the board to remain cautious and conservative. He reminded them that many cuts had been prevented in the past by using up a significant portion of the District's fund balance. "We need to stop the bleeding and maintain where we're at," said Peterson. He continued in this same vein, by urging them to consider proposals that they believe they can sustain. That's wise counsel.

Voters in many school districts in Minnesota, but not all, have approved levy referendums. There are several school districts in Minnesota who are facing the difficult task of cutting hundreds of thousands of dollars from their budgets. Additionally, no one knows what will happen with state funding of education because Minnesota's financial difficulties aren't over. At this precarious time, it would be wise to proceed cautiously.
